An Oldtime Soda-Pop Factory Completes Transition Sunday

An 87-year-old one-time soda-pop factory officially completes its transition to a museum Sunday.

Members of the Arlington Heights Historical Society will culminate 12 years of hard work when they dedicate and open their museum at 500 N. Vail.

Dedication ceremonies, scheduled to begin at 2 p.m., will be held at the Evangelical Free Church, 404 N. Dunton. A tour of the museum and its exhibits will follow.

THE DEDICATION program will call attention to the heritage of Arlington Heights and the contributions of its citizens to the history and progress of Illinois.

Albert F. Volz, first mayor of the village; Mrs. Milton Daniels, museum curator; Virgil K. Horath, director, and Mrs. Herman Berthold, president, will make brief presentations.

The dedication is co-sponsored by the village and featured speaker at the ceremony will be John G. Woods, village president.

The society purchased the property for the museum in September, 1966 for $32,500. Built in the early 1880's with 11-foot ceilings and 12 inch walls, the building served as a combination residence and soda-pop factory for F. W. Muller.

SOCIETY MEMBERS have labored to restore the 11-room brick building to its 1881 condition. Floors and woodwork were stripped of old stain and varnished, walls were re-papered and a fireplace installed in the formal parlor.

Mrs. Stephen Jurco is in charge of the Sunday program. Both the ceremony and tour are open to all interested persons.

Futurities

The Arlington Heights Historical Society and the village will co-sponsor a dedication ceremony Sunday for the society's new museum. The 2 p.m. ceremony will be held at the Evangelical Free Church, 404 N. Dunton St., and a tour of the museum at 500 N. Vail St. will follow.

HUAC STUDENT PROBE HERE?

by MARY DRESSER

A pamphlet conceived of and mimeographed by a Prospect High School student and distributed at the school this September may kindle a House Un-American Affairs Committee probe of the high school protest movement.

Mount Prospect police chief Newell Esmond says only a few pamphlets, entitled "Students Will Organize for Freedom," were distributed on school property Sept. 10.

The pamphlets were attributed to the Suburban Liberation Front.

TWO ILLINOIS congressmen, Rep. John N. Erlenborn of the 14th District (DuPage County) and Rep. Edward Derwinski of the 4th District (Blue Island) intend to ask the Un-American Affairs Committee to examine the entire area of college and high school political action.

Erlenborn alerted Derwinski to the contents of the pamphlet after receiving one copy in September from a school teacher in Naperville.

Erlenborn reprinted a copy of the single pamphlet in his possession and sent it to the files of the House Un-American Affairs Committee.

He also wrote a column in his weekly newsletter to constituents calling the "liberation front" title a warning to high school students of possible danger ahead.

ERLENBORN LISTED the "front's" headquarters at 616 S. Williams St., Mount Prospect. This is the home of William F. Schreiber, who's wife says he is a conservative.

The Schreiber's teenage daughter has been active in student protest groups. She told the Herald, following the incident, she and some friends were responsible for the pamphlets.

Finley McGrew, press secretary for Erlenborn, who is vacationing in Europe, told the Herald, "the committee is on the trail of this college thing and now we want to see in what degree it has penetrated high schools.

"We will see if we can pin anything on this Suburban Liberation Front," continued McGrew. "Obviously this is not spontaneous with high school students. Somebody is trying to enlist them."

MCGREW SAID he doubts if any Prospect High School students or administrators will be asked to testify before the committee unless it gets into an area of violence; then the question will be taken under advisement.

Prospect Principal Alvin Kulieke dismisses the pamphlet as "things nobody can put any sig-

y JOAN KLUSSMANN

Any high school student has heard the charge that the majority of heroin addicts begin their career of drug addiction with marijuana.

What stumped two bearded vice squad detectives during a lecture program at Forest View High School Tuesday was the question:

"What percentage of marijuana smokers become addicted to heroin?"

THEY DIDN'T know.

But that was about the only question that Don Shaw and Richard Lundgren of the sheriff's vice and gambling unit couldn't answer during their hour-long sessions with sociology and co-operative work training classes at Forest View.

The officers, wearing neatly trimmed beards and business suits for the occasion, strive for a disheveled appearance while working in the field.

Using high school slang they told students they were there to present the facts.

"WE CAN GIVE you an idea of what might happen to you if you use drugs, but the final choice is up to you."

While some students questioned and condemned the severity of punishment for possession of marijuana, there was general applause when Shaw declared that the drug should not be legalized.

"Alcohol and cigarettes are hazardous too," one girl said, "but our parents aren't thrown into jail for using them."

THE FIRST-OFFENSE penalty for possession of narcotics and marijuana is two to 10 years in the penitentiary. The officers also explained, in an example well understood by Northwest suburban teenagers, that their fathers' expensive new cars would be sold if they were caught in the auto with marijuana. The kids groaned.

One clean-cut youth hopefully suggested that only people from the inner city go from using tmarijuana to "the hard stuff."

The officers agreed that the majority of cases come from ghettos, but warned that suburban dwellers are not immune.

The soft-spoken detectives informed their audience that marijuana, while not a narcotic, may affect chromosomes.

"IF YOU WANT to bear children who are a little wacky, smoke marijuana," they said.

Prior to the question session, students watched a color film on LSD which used psychedelic camera effects to illustrate hallucinations. A group of youths representing categories from athlete to hippie told why they started using the drug and what happened to them when they did.

Loneliness, fear and curiosity led to one experience: "I turned toward her and she had a flesh-dripping monster face."

While the film showed potential damages to drug user and offspring, the sophistication of today's student was recognized and some "pro" comments were inserted.

"I'M NOT SO afraid any more" and "I feel things more now" were added along with adverse comments.

Doctors in the movie admitted that the older generation didn't do such a good job and praised the advantages of a rebellious spirit, but they differentiated between the possible danger of LSD and other harmless student activities.

The other film, "Hooked," pinpointed the experiences of former drug addicts. The group told of their amazement at "being hooked," pointed out the lengths they would go in order to obtain their drug supply and

5 Years Later, JFK Recalled

by TOM WELLMAN

Five years later, John F. Kennedy still lives in the minds of many of the students at John Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

Although most of the students at Hersey were in grade school when the news of the assassination flashed across radio and television on a gray Friday afternoon in 1963, they remember.

Although many of them can't recall precisely what they felt at the time, they all try to understand what he stood for.

ED BERMUDEZ, a freshman, remembers: "He went out to help the poor people and the Negroes. He concentrated on people less well-off, the people in the slums and the Indian reservations."

JANET PESJAT, a sophomore, says: "He stood for civil rights. I loved to watch his speeches. He was more directed to the views of teenagers than other people are."

KATHY ABBOTT, a freshman: "He wanted to stay completely out of war."

Some of the students at Hersey still idolize John Kennedy. They especially admire his position on civil rights, his handling of the Cuban missile crisis, and what seems to them his greater attention to domestic, rather Bus drivers for the Ritzenthaler Bus Line recently turned in their report cards pin-pointing the intersections they regard as hazardous in the Arlington Heights area.

Lt. Jack Aldrich of the Arlington Heights police traffic department agrees with the driver's observations and adds a few intersections of his own for good measure.

THE FIRST intersection listed is Thomas Street and Arlington Heights Roadi n Arlington Heights. Drivers "can't get across Arlington Heights Road at Thomas," they report.

The second dangerous intersection is the Jack London school driveway and Dundee Rd. in Wheeling, outside the jurisdiction of Arlington Heights police.

THE CENTRAL and Douglas intersection in unincorporated Arlington Heights frightens a third driver, who says, "I have to make a right turn onto Douglas from Central. In order to do this, I have to straddle two lanes with flashers going. It's awfully hard to get the cars to stop behind me so I can turn

TIMID CROSSING GUARDS need not apply for the job of directing school buses through the intersection of Arlington Heights Road and Thomas Street. A driver for the Ritzenthaler Bus Co. has nominated this intersection as the most hazardous spot on her route. Thomas Street is half way between the stoplights at Oakton Street and the four-way stop at Palatine Road. Traffic released from these points forms a steady stream, making it difficult to pull out onto Arlington Heights Road. Arlington Heights police are making a check of traffic volume at this intersection. Lights probably will not be installed at Thomas Street, but the check may indicate lights at Palatine Road are needed to "bunch" traffic, allowing more time to cross from Thomas.

LAWMAN: County Clerk Edward J. Barrett ordered the states attorney to arrest Oak Park's Republican committeeman for not playing political ball the way the county clerk wanted it played. Word has it that State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) and County Commissioner Floyd Fulle, both Republican committeemen, were marked for election night arrest by the truculent Democrat. Both had ignored his orders on election judge credentials, but both hold elective office, and Barrett backed off.

GOP COUNTRY: 3rd District Republicans Eugene Schlickman and David Regner (Mount Prospect) were the two heaviest state representative vote-getters in Illinois. Schlickman weighed in with 130,000-plus while Regner was second with 113,000. "This is the largest district in the state," says Schlickman, "and it is the fastest growing." He is certain the 1970 census figures will point up the need for redistricting not only the 3rd Illinois but the 13th Congressional (Donald Rumsfeld) District as well. And Rumsfeld did terribly well. He rolled up the second highest plurality in the nation among all congressional candidates.

After her picture was taken with the $3,640 display car, she was told the car she would actually receive would be minus some of the display car features, such as power steering, power brakes and wide tires. The value of the car she was to receive was considerably less than the car advertised as grand prize. The woman's husband insisted that since she had posed for her picture in front of the higher-priced car and signed a picture release, either the picture would have to be retracted or the car delivered. After he threatened legal action, shopping center representatives agreed to deliver the prize as promised. The lady now has her $3,640 sports car and the publicity picture ran as scheduled in a local paper.

Dist. 25 Plans for Election

Planning is under way for the Dist. 25 board of education election next April.

Officers of the nominating committee are assembling delegates from orgnizations within the school district.

Purpose of the committee is to locate, place on the ballot and endorse candidates qualified for election to the Dist. 25 board.

Robert T. Korte, committee chairman, has asked each of the approximately 50 organizations within the district to submit the names of one new delegate. Each member organization is represented by two delegates, serving staggered two-year terms.

TWO SEATS ON the board, currently held by Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton and James Penn, are at stake in the April 12 election. Both incumbents are eligible for reslating by the caucus nominating committee under its bylaws relating to tenure of office.

Eligible for membership in the committee are organizations that are non-political, non-religious and either civic or educational in interest. They must have properly elected officers and be in operation for two previous years.

Korte said any organization meeting the above requirements is encouraged to petition him in writing, 1011 N. Princeton, Arlington Heights, before Jan. 8 so that the group's request can be presented to the nominating committee.

The committee has scheduled meetings for Jan. 8, Jan. 16 and Feb. 6, 1969. Victor Myer is serving as vice-chairman and Mrs. Walter Soderholm as secretary-treasurer.

LAWMAN: County Clerk Edward J. Barrett ordered the states attorney to arrest Oak Park's Republican committeeman for not playing political ball the way the county clerk wanted it played. Word has it that State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-3rd) and County Commissioner Floyd Fulle, both Republican committeemen, were marked for election night arrest by the truculent Democrat. Both had ignored his orders on election judge credentials, but both hold elective office, and Barrett backed off.

GOP COUNTRY: 3rd District Republicans Eugene Schlickman and David Regner (Mount Prospect) were the two heaviest state representative vote-getters in Illinois. Schlickman weighed in with 130,000-plus while Regner was second with 113,000. "This is the largest district in the state," says Schlickman, "and it is the fastest growing." He is certain the 1970 census figures will point up the need for redistricting not only the 3rd Illinois but the 13th Congressional (Donald Rumsfeld) District as well. And Rumsfeld did terribly well. He rolled up the second highest plurality in the nation among all congressional candidates.

THE RUN AROUND was included in her prize. A Palatine woman won the grand prize, a new sports car, at a recent grand opening of a new shopping center in northern Arlington Heights. After her picture was taken with the $3,640 display car, she was told the car she would actually receive would be minus some of the display car features, such as power steering, power brakes and wide tires. The value of the car she was to receive was considerably less than the car advertised as grand prize. The woman's husband insisted that since she had posed for her picture in front of the higher-priced car and signed a picture release, either the picture would have to be retracted or the car delivered. After he threatened legal action, shopping center representatives agreed to deliver the prize as promised. The lady now has her $3,640 sports car and the publicity picture ran as scheduled in a local paper.

ALAS for the Illinois Racing Board! The board was prepared Saturday to show off its plush, luxurious Loop meeting room to the crowd that showed up for the racing dates meeting. However, such a mob appeared that the meeting had to be transferred to a meeting room on the 19th floor of the State of Illinois building. Wooden prison benches replaced soft, cushioned chairs and the 100 members of the audience squirmed and squirmed throughout the long meeting.

OUCH. The Dist. 25 school board last week approved an agreement with the Arlington Teachers' Assn. regarding grievance procedures. Dist. 25 Plans for Election

Planning is under way for the Dist. 25 board of education election next April.

Officers of the nominating committee are assembling delegates from orgnizations within the school district.

Purpose of the committee is to locate, place on the ballot and endorse candidates qualified for election to the Dist. 25 board.

Robert T. Korte, committee chairman, has asked each of the approximately 50 organizations within the district to submit the names of one new delegate. Each member organization is represented by two delegates, serving staggered two-year terms.

TWO SEATS ON the board, currently held by Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton and James Penn, are at stake in the April 12 election. Both incumbents are eligible for reslating by the caucus nominating committee under its bylaws relating to tenure of office.

Eligible for membership in the committee are organizations that are non-political, non-religious and either civic or educational in interest. They must have properly elected officers and be in operation for two previous years.

Korte said any organization meeting the above requirements is encouraged to petition him in writing, 1011 N. Princeton, Arlington Heights, before Jan. 8 so that the group's request can be presented to the nominating committee.

The committee has scheduled meetings for Jan. 8, Jan. 16 and Feb. 6, 1969. Victor Myer is serving as vice-chairman and Mrs. Walter Soderholm as secretary-treasurer.

Near Chaotic Meeting Ends In Delay on Apartment Plea

In an emotion-charged meeting that almost ended in chaos, the Arlington Heights Plan Commission delayed rezoning Wednesday night for 16 one-bedroom apartments on Chicago Avenue near Wilke Road.

The commission voted, 7 to 4, to reject a motion to deny rezoning from single-family to apartment usage for five parcels of land near the corner of Chicago and Vine streets.

However, the commission agreed to resume consideration on Dec. 11, and at that time both rezoning and the plans for the 16 units will be discussed again.

AFTER A DATE had been set for the December hearing, several members of the audience jumped up and shouted that they had not been heard enough. When chairman Fred Ainslie pounded his gavel, one man jumped up and shouted, "Shut up!" Ainslie then adjourned the meeting by gaveling a second time.

Earlier, William Hallett of 726 N. Chicago, representing the residents opposing the project, charged that an apartment would increase flooding in the area and he presented a petition of 122 names backing his position.

ROLAND SCHAPANSKI, architect and contract purchaser of the property, said he was not out to "rape the neighborhood." He said he would keep undesirable elements out of his apartment.

Commissioner William Hannum said he felt the plans were incomplete, adding he would need more information before he could vote.

Another commissioner, James Ryan, said the 7-4 vote indicated the commission probably would approve the rezoning in December.

However, he said next month's meeting later would permit the commission to force Shapanski to "toe the mark" in developing apartments compatible with the community.

Fete Pre-empts Dist. 25 Meet

The next meeting of the Dist. 25 school board will be held Dec. 12 at Ridge School, 800 N. Fernandez, Arlington Heights.

A joint meeting of this association and the Illinois Assn. of School Administrators will be held in Chicago this weekend.

Each school board holding active membership in the association is entitled to one voting delegate at all business session and elections and Clayton Sauers will represent Dist. 25. H. Robert Powell will serve as alternate at the sessions.

arena

by DAVID HOYT
City Editor

Everett Dirksen is far less impressive backstage than he is from the box seats. Encounter the man after show time and it is not exciting, nor inspiring.

But he's not altogether disappointing either. He belches and scratches and blows his nose. And one of the reasons he got my vote was because he was so uncommonly human offstage.

HOYT

I wish the same could be said for other Republicans. Too many are on stage off stage, always polite, hard working, noncommittal, cosmetic, deodorized.

Indded some of them are so objectionably perfect that it has moved poets to bemoan the passing of autocrats, and columnists to create fictional opposites.

FOR THE NEW Republicans cannot be faulted on lack of intelligence, foresight, or hard work. What they lack is flair and the kind of eccentricities that can endear a oplitician to his public.

Harry Truman was adored because he called a spade a spade and several other things in some of the tartest language in American presidential history. He has become a legend where polite Ike has not.

The modern Republican is so efficient, witty, charming, genial, genial genial. So altogether good, that one dispairs of emulation. And how do you love the cybernetically perfect? How does love grow for the man who doesn't sweat?

With this in mind, I propose to create eccentricities for some Republicans that are so good, they should be deficient. Candidates for instant eccentric are New York's mayor, John Lindsay (I can hear the GOP women shouting, "Leave him alone. We love John."), our very own Congressman Donald Rumsfeld, our very own Sen. Charles Percy and Massachusetts' very own Sen. Ed Brooke. Let's suppose:

GLENVIEW (GOP)—Congressman Donald Rumsfeld (R-Ill.) broke into a laughter Tuesday night just before falling into the punchbowl at a reception in this northern Illinois community.

The congressman, who had had his usual one too many, regaled the party with Irish dealect jokes. Capping the evening's hilarity was Rumsfeld's presentation of a Mayor Daley dart board to State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-Arlington Heights). . .

WASHINGTON, D.C. (GOP)—Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) attacked the Nixon administration's food stamp plan in the Senate Wednesday, charging his own party with "the grossest kind of deceit."

Striding back and forth in front of his seat, the bearded independent carried his pet Pekingese, Dodo, while he fulminated against the stamp plan.

He spiked his oratory with an occasional forray to the desk of minority leader Everett Dirksen.

"You drink so much Jack Daniels, you're beginning to look like him," he roared at his colleague from Illinois, striking Dirksen's desk with a riding crop. . .

NEW YORK (GOP)—New York Mayor John Lindsay appeared at Truman Capotes' Saturday night fun and food frolic wearing matching red fall and dinner jacket and upstaging such traditional scene stealers as Tiny Tim, George Plimpton and Aristotle Kennedy Onassis.

"This is such fun, my goodness," simpered Lindsay, long looked on as the next Republican in line for the presidency. . .

DEERFIELD, MASS. (GOP)—The railsplitter has not disappeared from the American political scene. A trip to the summer retreat of Sen. Ed Brooke (R-Mass.) convinces even the most doubtful that railsplitting is very much alive.

And Sen. Brooke has added a new twist to the American legend. He splits 'em by hand.

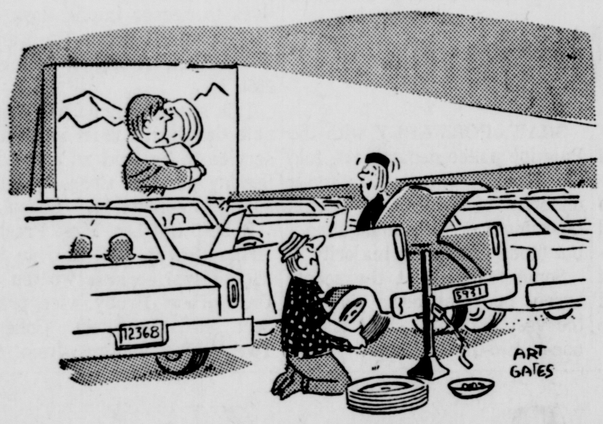
Every morning the woods ring with "AGGHH!" "EEAHHTT!" and "AEEII!" as the senator uses his karate prowess to split kindling for the fire.

"We thought a crazy man was loose or something when we first heard it," said Leonard Higgins, 52, who runs a roadside stand near the senator's retreat. And Higgins is not the only one the affable Brooke has surprised with karate.

"I use it as an attention getter when I speak to Rotary clubs and bankers associations around the state," says Brooke.

"They're usually attentive when I begin, but after I put my hand through a chair or table, they're really bug eyed."

Ah, yes, it could be exciting, but not likely.



"I can see better now!"

Still At Top in Building

Arlington Heights continues to lead all communities in the Chicago area in the value of homebuilding permits issued according to statistics released by the Bell Savings and Loan Association.

In October, the Arlington Heights building department issued 85 house permits valued at $2.6 million. Hoffman Estates was second with 100 permits valued at $2.4 million.

In the first 10 months in 1968, Arlington Heights constructed 705 homes valued at $20.1 million. Schaumburg is second with 661 homes at $16.8 million.

In October, $3.4 million worth of total permits were issued, compared with $5.2 million in September, and $4.9 million in October, 1967. About $650,000 in apartment permits were issued last month, which ranks Arlington Heights tenth in the October list of apartment construction.

Illinettes Give 1st Performance

Six area co-eds are members of the University of Illinois' newly formed pom-pon squad, the Illinettes, which recently gave its first performance in ceremonies before and after the Illinois-Northwestern football game.

Other Arlington Heights students on the squad are Mary Fischer of 1021 N. Race St., a sophomore in elementary education, Lynn Fyfe of 1016 E. Rockwell St., a sophomore in art, Irene Haughey of 1544 N. Kemicott, a freshman in LAS, and Kathleen Katovich of 728 N. Dunton Ave., a junior in psychology.

Kim Garrity, 2200 Bluebird Lane, Rolling Meadows, a freshman elementary education major, is also on the squad.

Near Chaotic Meeting Ends In Delay on Apartment Plea

In an emotion-charged meeting that almost ended in chaos, the Arlington Heights Plan Commission delayed rezoning Wednesday night for 16 one-bedroom apartments on Chicago Avenue near Wilke Road.

The commission voted, 7 to 4, to reject a motion to deny rezoning from single-family to apartment usage for five parcels of land near the corner of Chicago and Vine streets.

However, the commission agreed to resume consideration on Dec. 11, and at that time both rezoning and the plans for the 16 units will be discussed again.

AFTER A DATE had been set for the December hearing, several members of the audience jumped up and shouted that they had not been heard enough. When chairman Fred Ainslie pounded his gavel, one man jumped up and shouted, "Shut up!" Ainslie then adjourned the meeting by gaveling a second time.

Earlier, William Hallett of 726 N. Chicago, representing the residents opposing the project, charged that an apartment would increase flooding in the area and he presented a petition of 122 names backing his position.

ROLAND SCHAPANSKI, architect and contract purchaser of the property, said he was not out to "rape the neighborhood." He said he would keep undesirable elements out of his apartment.

Commissioner William Hannum said he felt the plans were incomplete, adding he would need more information before he could vote.

Another commissioner, James Ryan, said the 7-4 vote indicated the commission probably would approve the rezoning in December.

However, he said next month's meeting later would permit the commission to force Shapanski to "toe the mark" in developing apartments compatible with the community.

Fete Pre-empts Dist. 25 Meet

The next meeting of the Dist. 25 school board will be held Dec. 12 at Ridge School, 800 N. Fernandez, Arlington Heights.

A joint meeting of this association and the Illinois Assn. of School Administrators will be held in Chicago this weekend.

Each school board holding active membership in the association is entitled to one voting delegate at all business session and elections and Clayton Sauers will represent Dist. 25. H. Robert Powell will serve as alternate at the sessions.

Everett Dirksen is far less impressive backstage than he is from the box seats. Encounter the man after show time and it is not exciting, nor inspiring.

But he's not altogether disappointing either. He belches and scratches and blows his nose. And one of the reasons he got my vote was because he was so uncommonly human offstage.

HOYT

I wish the same could be said for other Republicans. Too many are on stage off stage, always polite, hard working, noncommittal, cosmetic, deodorized.

Indded some of them are so objectionably perfect that it has moved poets to bemoan the passing of autocrats, and columnists to create fictional opposites.

FOR THE NEW Republicans cannot be faulted on lack of intelligence, foresight, or hard work. What they lack is flair and the kind of eccentricities that can endear a oplitician to his public.

Harry Truman was adored because he called a spade a spade and several other things in some of the tartest language in American presidential history. He has become a legend where polite Ike has not.

The modern Republican is so efficient, witty, charming, genial, genial genial. So altogether good, that one dispairs of emulation. And how do you love the cybernetically perfect? How does love grow for the man who doesn't sweat?

With this in mind, I propose to create eccentricities for some Republicans that are so good, they should be deficient. Candidates for instant eccentric are New York's mayor, John Lindsay (I can hear the GOP women shouting, "Leave him alone. We love John."), our very own Congressman Donald Rumsfeld, our very own Sen. Charles Percy and Massachusetts' very own Sen. Ed Brooke. Let's suppose:

GLENVIEW (GOP)—Congressman Donald Rumsfeld (R-Ill.) broke into a laughter Tuesday night just before falling into the punchbowl at a reception in this northern Illinois community.

The congressman, who had had his usual one too many, regaled the party with Irish dealect jokes. Capping the evening's hilarity was Rumsfeld's presentation of a Mayor Daley dart board to State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-Arlington Heights). . .

WASHINGTON, D.C. (GOP)—Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) attacked the Nixon administration's food stamp plan in the Senate Wednesday, charging his own party with "the grossest kind of deceit."

Striding back and forth in front of his seat, the bearded independent carried his pet Pekingese, Dodo, while he fulminated against the stamp plan.

He spiked his oratory with an occasional forray to the desk of minority leader Everett Dirksen.

"You drink so much Jack Daniels, you're beginning to look like him," he roared at his colleague from Illinois, striking Dirksen's desk with a riding crop. . .

NEW YORK (GOP)—New York Mayor John Lindsay appeared at Truman Capotes' Saturday night fun and food frolic wearing matching red fall and dinner jacket and upstaging such traditional scene stealers as Tiny Tim, George Plimpton and Aristotle Kennedy Onassis.

"This is such fun, my goodness," simpered Lindsay, long looked on as the next Republican in line for the presidency. . .

DEERFIELD, MASS. (GOP)—The railsplitter has not disappeared from the American political scene. A trip to the summer retreat of Sen. Ed Brooke (R-Mass.) convinces even the most doubtful that railsplitting is very much alive.

And Sen. Brooke has added a new twist to the American legend. He splits 'em by hand.

Every morning the woods ring with "AGGHH!" "EEAHHTT!" and "AEEII!" as the senator uses his karate prowess to split kindling for the fire.

"We thought a crazy man was loose or something when we first heard it," said Leonard Higgins, 52, who runs a roadside stand near the senator's retreat. And Higgins is not the only one the affable Brooke has surprised with karate.

"I use it as an attention getter when I speak to Rotary clubs and bankers associations around the state," says Brooke.

"They're usually attentive when I begin, but after I put my hand through a chair or table, they're really bug eyed."

Ah, yes, it could be exciting, but not likely.

Still At Top in Building

Arlington Heights continues to lead all communities in the Chicago area in the value of home-building permits issued according to statistics released by the Bell Savings and Loan Association.

In October, the Arlington Heights building department issued 85 house permits valued at $2.6 million. Hoffman Estates was second with 100 permits valued at $2.4 million.

In the first 10 months in 1968, Arlington Heights constructed 705 homes valued at $20.1 million. Schaumburg is second with 661 homes at $16.8 million.

In October, $3.4 million worth of total permits were issued, compared with $5.2 million in September, and $4.9 million in October, 1967. About $650,000 in apartment permits were issued last month, which ranks Arlington Heights tenth in the October list of apartment construction.

Illinettes Give 1st Performance

Six area co-eds are members of the University of Illinois' newly formed pom-pon squad, the Illinettes, which recently gave its first performance in ceremonies before and after the Illinois-Northwestern football game.

Susan Stratton of 514 W. Miner St., Arlington Heights, a junior speech major, was one of two students who conceived the idea last spring. Other Arlington Heights students on the squad are Mary Fischer of 1021 N. Race St., a sophomore in elementary education, Lynn Fyfe of 1016 E. Rockwell St., a sophomore in art, Irene Haughey of 1544 N. Kennicott, a freshman in LAS, and Kathleen Katovich of 728 N. Dunton Ave., a junior in psychology.

Kim Garrity, 2200 Bluebird Lane, Rolling Meadows, a freshman elementary education major, is also on the squad.

Cook County COG Re-elects Its Officers

Five Northwest suburban officials were unanimously re-elected Wednesday to top posts in the developing Council of Governments of Cook County (COG).

Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village president, was given the chairmanship for a second year. Roger Bjorvik, Palatine Park District secretary, was again named first vice chairman.

Arlington Heights Pres. John Woods, Mount Prospect Pres. Dan Congreve and Dist. 59 Supt. Dr. Donald Thomas were endorsed to return to their positions on the 21-member COG executive committee.

MEETING IN Lyons Township High School, Western Springs, representatives from some 50 governmental units elected the board that will continue to be a key in uniting local governments against regional problems.

Pahl set an immediate task of acquiring a professional staff while he reviewed COG accomplishments during its formative year. He also set a 1969 membership goal of 20% of the county's 500 governmental units.

Wednesday was the first annual meeting of the council's general assembly, representing all 98 member governmental bodies. COG was founded in June, 1967, at the initiation of Richard B. Ogilvie, Cook County board president and governor-elect.

Still in organizational stages, first by-laws were presented the general assembly for adoption Wednesday. Municipal membership fees were changed from a flat $75 to a 10-cent per capita basis.

INCREASED membership fees and a recent $15,000 in donations will provide "seed money" to hire a full-time COG director, Pahl said. Professional staff would have a first job of promoting funding, membership and programs, he said.

A shortcoming of the council's first year was the competition for time of member officials, since all COG executive committee members are full-time businessmen or government administrators plus being public officials, Pahl said.

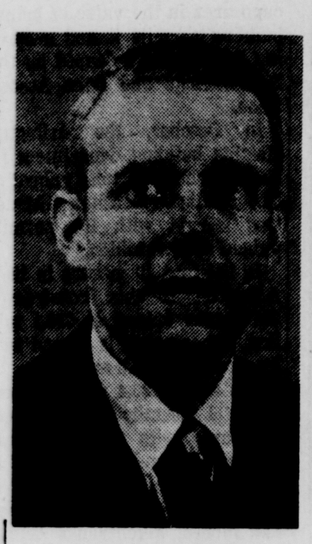
James Banovetz, former director of the Loyola University Center for Research in Urban Government (CRUG), served as the first executive director and William Merrill, CRUG senior analyst, was staff co-ordinator. Loyola also provided office space and some secretarial help.

A target $30,000 budget for 1969 would go primarily for staff and office space, Pahl said.

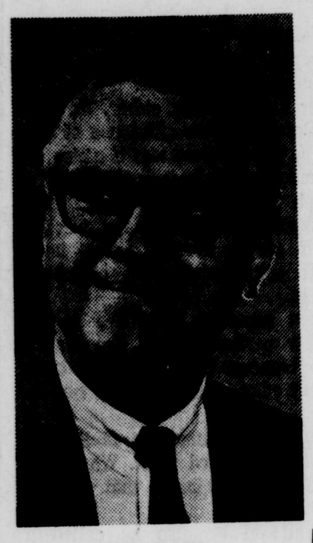
CONGREVE presented the finance committee report calling for a sliding membership fee for municipalities. School districts, park districts and townships would continue to be billed at the flat $75 rate, Congreve said.

Large governmental units, such as Cook County, Chicago and the Metropolitan Sanitary District, would be considered separately, hoping to get the same $5,000 fee that Cook County paid the first year, Congreve reported.

Reports from the five divisional working committees of COG listed the groundwork the executive committee had made on regional problems and projects.



ROGER BJORVIK



JACK PAHL

AT THE anniversary meeting, COG had accomplished or set these objectives:

—Regional planning and recreation: Recreational use of retention basins and a countywide system of bike paths and nature trails.

—Public works: A seminar on Dutch elm disease, successful opposition to sewage sludge farms and a policy position on motor fuel tax fund returns to insure adequate area roadways.

—Public safety: A request to prepare a nuisance control ordinance for unincorporated Cook County and consideration of Bell Telephone's 914 emergency telephone service.

—General services: Compilation of a reference library of governmental records, data compilation on Cook County public officials, study of co-operative purchasing and bidding procedures, liaison between COG and the Chicago Bar Assn. committee on local government, investigation of employe hospital and insurance plans and a record of all government salary schedules.

—Health, education and welfare: Improved instruction methods in schools, an emphasis on career training for youth, a recent Cook County conference on education for school officials, study of air pollution control legislation and study of decentralizing juvenile court.

OTHER EXECUTIVE committee members elected Wednesday are Evert Schultz, Thornton Township supervisor and COG second vice chairman; Nicholas Blase, Niles village president; Bernard Cunningham, Park Forest village president; Fred Dumke, Oak Lawn village president; John Emery, Evanston mayor; Lee Burkey, LaGrange village president; Ernest Maxey, Robbins village

'Failure' Corners—

A fourth driver nominates Central and Westgate as her hazard corner of the year. She recalls, "Last Friday I stopped at Westgate and Central. I had flashers going, stop arm out, and was next to the gravel shoulder of Central Road when a woman driver passed on the right side of the bus in the shoulder of the road. Two boys emerging from the bus were scared out of their wits."

She continues, "Doesn't this woman understand what a school bus indicates when we are stopped, flashers going, and stop arm out? I guess the school bus needs more warning lights, especially during the dark wintery days."

ALDRICH SAYS he is surprised none of the drivers mentioned the intersection that gives him the worst nightmares, Thomas and Rand Road.

Lights are scheduled for the Thomas-Rand intersection, but meanwhile traffic pulling in and out of businesses and service stations, cars crossing Rand to enter Windsor Drive going north, and students from Hersey High School play a deadly tag game with each other.

The Arlington Heights police department does not station an officer at the intersection because, Aldrich says, "I don't believe anybody could handle it."

Buses avoid the corner by detouring, but cars and children cross the intersection, Aldrich notes.

Dist. 214 is busing students who live within walking distance of Hersey High School because of the danger at the Rand-Thomas intersection.

THE INTERSECTION of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads is another dangerous corner, Aldrich says. By 1970 he hopes Algonquin Road will be widened to permit four-lane traffic.

The triangle formed by Central, Kirchoff and Dunton needs signals to unsnarl the traffic that backs up to Arlington Heights Road from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Aldrich hopes the signals will be in by next year so the officer who now directs traffic with lighted batons can be released for other duty.

Arlington Heights Road and Rt. 58 is traffic headache no. 8. The county is widening Rt. 58 to four lanes and the improvement should reach the Arlington Heights Road intersection by next year, Aldrich speculates.

THE LAST BAD intersection on Aldrich's list is the point where Euclid Street crosses the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and feeds into Northwest Highway. New street lighting is scheduled for this intersection will begin within a few days.

Signals will be in operation at the two streets intersecting Euclid, Davis Street and Northwest Highway within two months.

In the bus driver's hazard reports, one man, a former truck driver, has the most comprehensive complaint.

He listed his whole route as a hazard.

Students Remember JFK—

than international, issues.

They admit, however, that they have a clearer idea of what the Rev. Martin Luther King and Sen. Robert Kennedy stood for. Although many of them disliked certain things about Robert Kennedy, they felt that all three men stood up for youth.

Kathy says that she "lost all hope when Bobby Kennedy was killed. I was clinging to him for new ideas."

Since June, Kathy and Janet feel that there is little hope left for someone to represent and understand them. However, they want to give Richard Nixon a chance.

SHEILA ZEBRUSKI, a sophomore, dislikes Nixon, but she believes he deserves a chance to prove himself as president.

However, the students miss a national "spokesman." Kathy, although she admits that "I don't trust anyone over 30," says that Kennedy had the magic of representing both students and older people.

Parents, according to these students, are set in their attitudes and don't care about the problems of teenagers.

Parental attitudes reject brotherhood with Negroes, Kathy says. "Our parents expect us to marry someone of the same race and religion."

Sheila says that marriage to a person of another race is not discussed in her home. "I told Mom the way I felt about mixed marriages, and now it is a closed subject."

JFK, according to the students, could have bridged the gap between youth and adults. They say he could have all groups together.

SOME OF THE students feel responsibility for the death of John Kennedy. Janet, when she heard about the assassination, says she felt guilty. She was in grade school at the time.

Kathy felt the same way. "I felt that I needed more time to do something about it."

Students and persons across the country will remember in different ways today. One girl says that students at Hersey, when they remember, will relive their emotions of five years ago.

All of these students feel that most of the 1,500 students at Hersey haven't been aware that Kennedy died five years ago today. The administration at Hersey has no plans to announce it, but these students said that the majority would remember sometime today.

Yesterday, however, the students thought about both John Kennedy and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. One girl said that Jackie "didn't seem to care" when she remarried. "It's because Onassis is so old. He has no ideas of the young people."

One girl, who lost her father three years ago and watched her mother remarry, had a different opinion. "You don't know. It's different when someone's gone."

HUAC Probe--

Kulieke says he hasn't seen any more pamphlets since the incident in September but he is sure conversations about the Suburban Liberation Front go on in the high school.

If the committee requests information, Kulieke said he would make a point to investigate the student unrest. The Suburban Liberation Front is not a school activity, he said, and the only connection Prospect has with it is student conversation picked up casually.

"WE WON'T HAVE an organized probe," said Kulieke. "The staff will have ears open in a casual way. I don't see any reason to jump the gun."

U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld (R-13th) told the Herald he will have no comment on the 14th and 4th District congressmen's probe of activities in his bailiwick until he sees the pamphlets. Erlenborn apparently failed to give a copy of the pamphlet to Rumsfeld.

Derwinski told the Herald he wants a probe of the entire area of student involvement. He targeted Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and "other left-wing groups."

"The Communists want to control our universities as in South America and Europe and they believe they are immune from government control," he said.

"WE NEED FACTUAL information," said Derwinski. "I think a probe is in order. If it discloses there isn't a conspiracy, the activists will be vindicated. If it shows, and I believe it will, there is conspiracy, the Justice Department could be called in."

Derwinski said he and Erlenborn had an accidental conversation on the subject.

"He was motivated by the pamphlet," said Derwinski.

Derwinski noted Prospect High is not in his district. He said he is aware of individual student activists in the Homewood and Flossmoor high schools.

Derwinski said he will not make any accusations until the committee investigates the matter.

HOWEVER, he called attention to the fact that high school students have participated in marches on the Pentagon and Chicago's Lincoln and Grant parks.

"I think we will find SDS is deliberately involving high school students," he concluded.

Forest View Principal Lawrence Jenness said he has a group of seven dissident students, all seniors, who have formed a Student Involvement Co-ordinating committee to question school policy and structures.

These students appeared before the student council and, after heated discussion, were granted a school charter. The students now have constitution and a school sponsor and have held four meetings.

THE STUDENTS want to begin community activities, push for changes in the school and encourage an exchange of ideas with teachers. Some of them attended a Suburban Liberation Front organizing session this summer.

Jenness says they are "sharp kids.' He hopes to encourage them to work through the school structure rather than outside it.

"These kids are saying we have to continually search to make curriculum relevant," said Jenness. "We can't object to that. We try to maintain communication."

Boy Injured In Head-on Accident

John Theroux, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Theroux, 330 S. Burton, Arlington Heights, is in good condition in a New Haven hospital after his car was struck in a head-on traffic accident Saturday night.

Also injured in the crash was Sue Swanezy, 18, a former Arlington Heights resident who now attends Princeton High School.

Theroux suffered a ruptured spleen, collapsed lung and broken arm in the accident. Miss Swanezy, who suffered head injuries, was removed from the critical list Sunday.

THEROUX, Miss Swanezy and another couple were driving through New Haven in Theroux's Volkswagen when they were struck head on by a car driven by Edward Wilson of Petersburg, Va.

Police charged Wilson with crossing the center line and reckless driving. He will appear in court in New Haven Dec. 15.

Theroux's sister, Barbara, 15, was killed in an unsolved hit and run accident in Arlington Heights May 4.

Historical Museum Is for the Young

The Arlington Heights Historical Museum officially opens this weekend. Fom now on, mementos of old Arlington Heights, carefully preserved, catalogued, and restored by volunteers, will be on display to enrich children's understanding of how their grandparents and great-grandparents lived.

"People think a historical museum is for old folks," Arlington Heights patriarch Al Volz has noted.

"THEY'RE WRONG." he insists. "A historical museum is for the young people. We know what happened in the old days, the kids don't. In the historical museum, we're saving it for them."

Volz knows he won't be around forever to see the kids of the future, but part of his generation's memories will be passed to the young becaus eof the work being done by the Historical Society.

Children of today, in their suburban subdivisions, rarely see farm equipment or butter churns or wood-burning stoves. Their children will have no idea what a scythe or a washboard looked like.

The museum sponsors plan to have the equipment used on farms and in farm homes on display as soon as more space can be prepared. Some day kids will be able to sit on an old fashioned fire truck or climb aboard an old thresher, or peddle a foot-propelled grind stone.

In a suburban area, with families moving in and out constantly, this contact with the past can provide a security to childrenofthepresent.

The society is to be commended for bringing the irreplaceable past to the young who need contact with thegenerationsprecedingthem.

'Violence, Hope': Theme of Sermon

The inter-faith service planned by the Arlington Heights Ecumenical Action and Discussion committee (AHEAD) of the Clergy Fellowship is designed to provide a challenge to the participants.

It will ask them to look beyond the many riches of their lives to deeper implications of, "Violence and Hope—The Family of Man, Arlington Heights, 1968."

This sermon theme will dominate the third annual inter-faith service to be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, in the Grace gymnasium of Arlington High School.

Robert Hawley, First Presbyterian Church, will narrate the audio-visual sermon written by Dr. Norbert Hruby, vice president of Mundelein College. Twenty-nine pictures from the files of the Arlington Heights Herald will be used as slides.

REV. ROWLAND Koch, chairman of the ahead committee and pastor of the Congregational United Church of Christ. will offer the invocation.

Rev. William Robertson, pastor of the Christian Church of Arlington Heights and chairman of the Consultation on Church Union committee of the Clergy Fellowship, will read the original litany to which the participants will respond.

Rev. Edmund Schrieber, Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church, will read the Old Testament reading from Ezekiel 37:1-4 and Mr. James Andrew will read Matthew 23:27-39.

The house lights will dim at the conclusion of "Light Everlasting," sung by the choir of Southminster Presbyterian Church and Hawley will narrate the sermon on the stage above the sanctuary platform.

Drug Addiction—

described the misery involved in breaking the habit.

Students in the audience who held cynical attitudes toward the possible bad effects of marijuana gasped in astonishment when one boy in the film said he was hooked on heroin at the age of 15.

SHAW, FORMERLY with the Palatine police department, told the Herald, "Three years ago a minority of suburban students txperimented with marijuana," but "today it is a big majority."

Some teachers at the school agree, but emphasize that for the vast majority pupils it is a one-or two-time attempt.

We've Heard...

No Body a Good Body

A report of a body in a field at Glen Lake and Higgins in Hoffman Estates sent firemen rushing to the scene. The "body" turned out to be a straw dummy discarded by children. The firemen decided it might be useful for drills and kept it.

All Aboard! For Christmas

A 30-cent "Santa Claus" fare for children, good for a round trip from suburbs as far as 71 miles from Chicago, will be offered by the Chicago and North Western Railway again this year.

This year, the special will be available on Sunday, Dec. 1, the date of Chicago's annual Christmas Parade, and on Saturday, Dec. 7, 14 and 21. The low-rate fare will apply to children from 5 to under 12 years of age. There is no charge for youngsters under five. The railroad requires that youngsters, in maximum groups of four, be accompanied by an adult.

Pardon Our Blooper

A headline on an article in "We've Heard . . ." in Wednesday's editions of Paddock Publications gives the incorrect implication that 8-year-old Malinda Robertson, 236 Albert Terrace, Wheeling, was at fault when a dollar was stolen from her recently in the Dunhurst Shopping Center. Paddock Publications apologizes for this misinterpretation of the situation.

Harper-Regner Union: Tempest in Teaspoon?

State Rep. David Regner is the only non-college person mentioned by name in Harper Junior College's new business office manual.

"Tax-sheltered annuities are available for interested employes. Call Dave Regner at 392-8850," the notation says.

Ah hah, said the vigilant reporter, the junior college knows it needs Regner's support in getting bills passed in the legislature and is currying favor.

A call to another local insurance agent reinforced the notion.

"ALMOST EVERY insurance man handles this type of policy. To refer people to just one agent gives him an unfair advantage," Arlington Heights businessman Victor Beisler declared.

But it wouldn't be the first time a suspected scandal was just a tempest in a teaspoon.

Harper dean of business William Mann says the college decided early to deal with just one agent handling tax-sheltered annuities if it could do so and still give its faculty members a fairly broad choice of companies.

A faculty committee interviewed eight or 10 interested in surance groups. Regner's was chosen.

THE HARPER board of education approved the arrange-'Brand X' if that's what somement last spring.

Regner says that he thinks he was chosen because the other insurance agents he works with are all local and convenient to deal with and because the group isn't committed to dealing with just one firm.

"My own company is Connecticut Mutual. But I'm just as willing to place a contract with one wants," he explained.

Both Mann and Regner say the business involved in the arrangement is hardly phenomenal.

TAX-SHELTERED annuities are only available to persons who are self-employed or working for a non-profit agency. The amount paid for the annuity comes "off the top" of the owner's salary and is not taxable until the annuity is paid out, usually at age 65.

Because of this, the annuity is most attractive to a two income family where failure to tax the annuity payments puts in a lower taxing bracket.

Regner says that so far he's handled just four such contracts for Harper faculty members.

James McElhose was gassed on one of the French battle fields the latter part of October. But in a letter written by him Nov. 7, he says that he is recovering nicely, though for a time he feared that he would lose his eyesight. Many relatives and friends are looking forward to his recovery and safe arrival home. James is a member of the famous 26th division, which with the 1st and 2nd division is credited with having "saved France and saved the world."

The junior class of the high school has arranged for the installation of a "jute box" (sic) in the high school cafeteria, which will serve as a noon-hour orchestra for music and dancing. During the cold weather students are required to use only part of the building and to make the lunch period more pleasant the music has been added.

The juniors are also trying to make the basketball games not only an athletic thrill, but are sponsoring a "dime dance" after each home game and the jute box will make this possible. Dancing will be continuous from the close of the last game until about 11:30.

All adults who are not too decrepit to enjoy a little boogy woogie are invited to join in the basketball dances and try their luck at cutting up parts of the asphalt tile floor.

Accordingly, the official said, a survey of all existing walks is under way, at the end of which "we should know the what and where."

Cook County COG Re-elects Its Officers

Five Northwest suburban officials were unanimously re-elected Wednesday to top posts in the developing Council of Governments of Cook County (COG).

Jack Pahl, Elk Grove Village president, was given the chairmanship for a second year. Roger Bjorvik, Palatine Park District secretary, was again named first vice chairman.

Arlington Heights Pres. John Woods, Mount Prospect Pres. Dan Congreve and Dist. 59 Supt. Dr. Donald Thomas were endorsed to return to their positions on the 21-member COG executive committee.

MEETING IN Lyons Township High School, Western Springs, representatives from some 50 governmental units elected the board that will continue to be a key in uniting local governments against regional problems.

Pahl set an immediate task of acquiring a professional staff while he reviewed COG accomplishments during its formative year. He also set a 1969 membership goal of 200 of the county's 500 governmental units.

Wednesday was the first annual meeting of the council's general assembly, representing all 98 member governmental bodies. COG was founded in June, 1967, at the initiation of Richard B. Ogilvie, Cook County board president and governor-elect.

Still in organizational stages, first by-laws were presented the general assembly for adoption Wednesday. Municipal membership fees were changed from a flat $75 to a 10-cent per capita basis.

INCREASED membership fees and a recent $15,000 in donations will provide "seed money" to hire a full-time COG director, Pahl said. Professional staff would have a first job of promoting funding, membership and programs, he said.

A shortcoming of the council's first year was the competition for time of member officials, since all COG executive committee members are full-time businessmen or government administrators plus being public officials, Pahl said.

James Banovetz, former director of the Loyola University Center for Research in Urban Government (CRUG), served as the first executive director and William Merrill, CRUG senior analyst, was staff co-ordinator. Loyola also provided office space and some secretarial help.

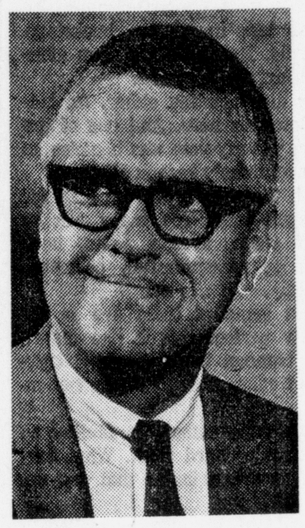
A target $30,000 budget for 1969 would go primarily for staff and office space, Pahl said.

CONGREVE presented the finance committee report calling for a sliding membership fee for municipalities. School districts, park districts and townships would continue to be billed at the flat $75 rate, Congreve said.

Large governmental units, such as Cook County, Chicago and the Metropolitan Sanitary District, would be considered separately, hoping to get the same $5,000 fee that Cook County paid the first year, Congreve reported.

Reports from the five divisional working committees of COG listed the groundwork the executive committee had made on regional problems and projects.

ROGER BJORVIK



JACK PAHL

AT THE anniversary meeting, COG had accomplished or set these objectives:

—Regional planning and recreation: Recreational use of retention basins and a countywide system of bike paths and nature trails.

—Public works: A seminar on Dutch elm disease, successful opposition to sewage sludge farms and a policy position on motor fuel tax fund returns to insure adequate area roadways.

—Public safety: A request to prepare a nuisance control ordinance for unincorporated Cook County and consideration of Bell Telephone's 914 emergency telephone service.

—General services: Compilation of a reference library of governmental records, data compilation on Cook County public officials, study of co-operative purchasing and bidding procedures, liaison between COG and the Chicago Bar Assn. committee on local government, investigation of employe hospital and insurance plans and a record of all government salary schedules.

—Health, education and welfare: Improved instruction methods in schools, an emphasis on career training for youth, a recent Cook County conference on education for school officials, study of air pollution control legislation and study of decentralizing juvenile court.

OTHER EXECUTIVE committee members elected Wednesday are Evert Schultz, Thornton Township supervisor and COG second vice chairman; Nicholas Blase, Niles village president; Bernard Cunningham, Park Forest village president; Fred Dumke, Oak Lawn village president; John Emery, Evanston mayor; Lee Burkey, LaGrange village president; Ernest Maxey, Robbins village

Mrs. Donald M. Peddycord, Hometown city alderman; Mrs. Charles O. Probst, Northbrook village trustee; Paul Thomas, Glenview village president; William Augustas, High School Dist. 205 superintendent; Mark Clayton, Northfield Township supervisor; Louis Schloderback Proviso Township supervisor; Mrs. Spencer E. Irons, Flossmoor Park District president; and Charles Grupp, Cook County commissioner.

'Failure' Corners—

A fourth driver nominates Central and Westgate as her hazard corner of the year. She recalls, "Last Friday I stopped at Westgate and Central. I had flashers going, stop arm out, and was next to the gravel shoulder of Central Road when a woman driver passed on the right side of the bus in the shoulder of the road. Two boys emerging from the bus were scared out of their wits."

She continues, "Doesn't this woman understand what a school bus indicates when we are stopped, flashers going, and stop arm out? I guess the school bus needs more warning lights, especially during the dark wintery days."

ALDRICH SAYS he is surprised none of the drivers mentioned the intersection that gives him the worst nightmares, Thomas and Rand Road.

Lights are scheduled for the Thomas-Rand intersection, but meanwhile traffic pulling in and out of businesses and service stations, cars crossing Rand to enter Windsor Drive going north, and students from Hersey High School play a deadly tag game with each other.

The Arlington Heights police department does not station an officer at the intersection because, Aldrich says, "I don't believe anybody could handle it."

Buses avoid the corner by detouring, but cars and children cross the intersection, Aldrich notes.

Dist. 214 is busing students who live within walking distance of Hersey High School because of the danger at the Rand-Thomas intersection.

THE INTERSECTION of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads is another dangerous corner, Aldrich says. By 1970 he hopes Algonquin Road will be widened to permit four-lane traffic.

The triangle formed by Central, Kirchoff and Dunton needs signals to unsnarl the traffic that backs up to Arlington Heights Road from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Aldrich hopes the signals will be in by next year so the officer who now directs traffic with lighted batons can be released for other duty.

Arlington Heights Road and Rt. 58 is traffic headache no. 8. The county is widening Rt. 58 to four lanes and the improvement should reach the Arlington Heights Road intersection by next year, Aldrich speculates.

THE LAST BAD intersection on Aldrich's list is the point where Euclid Street crosses the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and feeds into Northwest Highway. New street lighting is scheduled for this intersection will begin within a few days.

Signals will be in operation at the two streets intersecting Euclid, Davis Street and Northwest Highway within two months.

In the bus driver's hazard reports, one man, a former truck driver, has the most comprehensive complaint.

He listed his whole route as a hazard.

than international, issues.

They admit, however, that they have a clearer idea of what the Rev. Martin Luther King and Sen. Robert Kennedy stood for. Although many of them disliked certain things about Robert Kennedy, they felt that all three men stood up for youth.

Kathy says that she "lost all hope when Bobby Kennedy was killed. I was clinging to him for new ideas."

Since June, Kathy and Janet feel that there is little hope left for someone to represent and understand them. However, they want to give Richard Nixon a chance.

SHEILA ZEBRUSKI, a sophomore, dislikes Nixon, but she believes he deserves a chance to prove himself as president.

However, the students miss a national "spokesman." Kathy, although she admits that "I don't trust anyone over 30," says that Kennedy had the magic of representing both students and older people.

Parents, according to these students, are set in their attitudes and don't care about the problems of teenagers.

Parental attitudes reject brotherhood with Negroes, Kathy says. "Our parents expect us to marry someone of the same race and religion."

Sheila says that marriage to a person of another race is not discussed in her home. "I told Mom the way I felt about mixed marriages, and now it is a closed subject."

JFK, according to the students, could have bridged the gap between youth and adults. They say he could have all groups together.

SOME OF THE students feel responsibility for the death of John Kennedy. Janet, when she heard about the assassination, says she felt guilty. She was in grade school at the time.

Kathy felt the same way. "I felt that I needed more time to do something about it."

Students and persons across the country will remember in different ways today. One girl says that students at Hersey, when they remember, will relive their emotions of five years ago.

All of these students feel that most of the 1,500 students at Hersey haven't been aware that Kennedy died five years ago today. The administration at Hersey has no plans to announce it, but these students said that the majority would remember sometime today.

Yesterday, however, the students thought about both John Kennedy and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. One girl said that Jackie "didn't seem to care" when she remarried. "It's because Onassis is so old. He has no ideas of the young people."

One girl, who lost her father three years ago and watched her mother remarry, had a different opinion. "You don't know. It's different when someone's gone."

HUAC Probe --

Kulieke says he hasn't seen any more pamphlets since the incident in September but he is sure conversations about the Suburban Liberation Front go on in the high school.

If the committee requests information, Kulieke said he would make a point to investigate the student unrest. The Suburban Liberation Front is not a school activity, he said, and the only connection Prospect has with it is student conversation picked up casually.

"WE WON'T HAVE an organized probe," said Kulieke. "The staff will have ears open in a casual way. I don't see any reason to jump the gun."

U.S. Rep. Donald Rumsfeld (R-13th) told the Herald he will have no comment on the 14th and 4th District congressmen's probe of activities in his bailiwick until he sees the pamphlets. Erlenborn apparently failed to give a copy of the pamphlet to Rumsfeld.

Derwinski told the Herald he wants a probe of the entire area of student involvement. He targeted Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and "other left-wing groups."

"The Communists want to control our universities as in South America and Europe and they believe they are immune from government control," he said.

"WE NEED FACTUAL information," said Derwinski. "I think a probe is in order. If it discloses there isn't a conspiracy, the activists will be vindicated. If it shows, and I believe it will, there is conspiracy, the Justice Department could be called in."

Derwinski said he and Erlenborn had an accidental conversation on the subject.

"He was motivated by the pamphlet," said Derwinski.

Derwinski noted Prospect High is not in his district. He said he is aware of individual student activists in the Homewood and Flossmoor high schools.

Derwinski said he will not make any accusations until the committee investigates the matter.

HOWEVER, he called attention to the fact that high school students have participated in marches on the Pentagon and Chicago's Lincoln and Grant parks.

"I think we will find SDS is deliberately involving high school students," he concluded.

Forest View Principal Lawrence Jenness said he has a group of seven dissident students, all seniors, who have formed a Student Involvement Co-ordinating committee to question school policy and structures.

These students appeared before the student council and, after heated discussion, were granted a school charter. The students now have constitution and a school sponsor and have held four meetings.

THE STUDENTS want to begin community activities, push for changes in the school and encourage an exchange of ideas with teachers. Some of them attended a Suburban Liberation Front organizing session this summer.

Jenness says they are "sharp kids.' He hopes to encourage them to work through the school structure rather than outside it.

"These kids are saying we have to continually search to make curriculum relevant," said Jenness. "We can't object to that. We try to maintain communication."

Boy Injured In Head-on Accident

John Theroux, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Theroux, 330 S. Burton, Arlington Heights, is in good condition in a New Haven hospital after his car was struck in a head-on traffic accident Saturday night.

Also injured in the crash was Sue Swanezy, 18, a former Arlington Heights resident who now attends Princeton High School.

Theroux suffered a ruptured spleen, collapsed lung and broken arm in the accident. Miss Swanezy, who suffered head injuries, was removed from the critical list Sunday.

THEROUX, Miss Swanezy and another couple were driving through New Haven in Theroux's Volkswagen when they were struck head on by a car driven by Edward Wilson of Petersburg, Va.

Police charged Wilson with crossing the center line and reckless driving. He will appear in court in New Haven Dec. 15.

Theroux's sister, Barbara, 15, was killed in an unsolved hit and run accident in Arlington Heights May 4.

Historical Museum Is for the Young

The Arlington Heights Historical Museum officially opens this weekend. Fom now on, mementos of old Arlington Heights, carefully preserved, catalogued, and restored by volunteers, will be on display to enrich children's understanding of how their grandparents and great-grandparents lived.

"People think a historical museum is for old folks," Arlington Heights patriarch Al Volz has noted.

"THEY'RE WRONG." he insists. "A historical museum is for the young people. We know what happened in the old days, the kids don't. In the historical museum, we're saving it for them."

Volz knows he won't be around forever to see the kids of the future, but part of his generation's memories will be passed to the young becaus eof the work being done by the Historical Society.

Children of today, in their suburban subdivisions, rarely see farm equipment or butter churns or wood-burning stoves. Their children will have no idea what a scythe or a washboard looked like.

The museum sponsors plan to have the equipment used on farms and in farm homes on display as soon as more space can be prepared. Some day kids will be able to sit on an old fashioned fire truck or climb aboard an old thresher, or peddle a foot-propelled grind stone.

In a suburban area, with families moving in and out constantly, this contact with the past can provide a security to childrenofthepresent.

The society is to be commended for bringing the irreplaceable past to the young who need contact with thegenerationsprecedingthem.

'Violence, Hope': Theme of Sermon

The inter-faith service planned by the Arlington Heights Ecumenical Action and Discussion committee (AHEAD) of the Clergy Fellowship is designed to provide a challenge to the participants.

It will ask them to look beyond the many riches of their lives to deeper implications of, "Violence and Hope—The Family of Man, Arlington Heights, 1968."

This sermon theme will dominate the third annual inter-faith service to be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, in the Grace gymnasium of Arlington High School.

Robert Hawley, First Presbyterian Church, will narrate the audio-visual sermon written by Dr. Norbert Hruby, vice president of Mundelein College. Twenty-nine pictures from the files of the Arlington Heights Herald will be used as slides.

REV. ROWLAND Koch, chairman of the ahead committee and pastor of the Congregational United Church of Christ. will offer the invocation.

Rev. William Robertson, pastor of the Christian Church of Arlington Heights and chairman of the Consultation on Church Union committee of the Clergy Fellowship, will read the original litany to which the participants will respond.

Rev. Edmund Schrieber, Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church, will read the Old Testament reading from Ezekiel 37:1-4 and Mr. James Andrew will read Matthew 23:27-39.

The house lights will dim at the conclusion of "Light Everlasting," sung by the choir of Southminster Presbyterian Church and Hawley will narrate the sermon on the stage above the sanctuary platform.

Drug Addiction—

described the misery involved in breaking the habit.

Students in the audience who held cynical attitudes toward the possible bad effects of marijuana gasped in astonishment when one boy in the film said he was hooked on heroin at the age of 15.

SHAW, FORMERLY with the Palatine police department, told the Herald, "Three years ago a minority of suburban students txperimented with marijuana," but "today it is a big majority."

Some teachers at the school agree, but emphasize that for the vast majority pupils it is a one-or two-time attempt.

We've Heard...

No Body a Good Body

A report of a body in a field at Glen Lake and Higgins in Hoffman Estates sent firemen rushing to the scene. The "body" turned out to be a straw dummy discarded by children. The firemen decided it might be useful for drills and kept it.

All Aboard! For Christmas

A 30-cent "Santa Claus" fare for children, good for a round trip from suburbs as far as 71 miles from Chicago, will be offered by the Chicago and North Western Railway again this year.

This year, the special will be available on Sunday, Dec. 1, the date of Chicago's annual Christmas Parade, and on Saturday, Dec. 7, 14 and 21. The low-rate fare will apply to children from 5 to under 12 years of age. There is no charge for youngsters under five. The railroad requires that youngsters, in maximum groups of four, be accompanied by an adult.

Pardon Our Blooper

A headline on an article in "We've Heard . . ." in Wednesday's editions of Paddock Publications gives the incorrect implication that 8-year-old Malinda Robertson, 236 Albert Terrace, Wheeling, was at fault when a dollar was stolen from her recently in the Dunhurst Shopping Center. Paddock Publications apologizes for this misinterpretation of the situation.

Harper-Regner Union: Tempest in Teaspoon?

State Rep. David Regner is the only non-college person mentioned by name in Harper Junior College's new business office manual.

"Tax-sheltered annuities are available for interested employes. Call Dave Regner at 392-8850," the notation says.

Ah hah, said the vigilant reporter, the junior college knows it needs Regner's support in getting bills passed in the legislature and is currying favor.

A call to another local insurance agent reinforced the notion.

"ALMOST EVERY insurance man handles this type of policy. To refer people to just one agent gives him an unfair advantage," Arlington Heights businessman Victor Beisler declared.

But it wouldn't be the first time a suspected scandal was just a tempest in a teaspoon.

Harper dean of business William Mann says the college decided early to deal with just one agent handling tax-sheltered annuities if it could do so and still give its faculty members a fairly broad choice of companies.

800 Scouts, 1,000 Super Bags Drafted for War Against Litter

More than 800 Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts tomorrow morning will be engaged in doing a "good turn" for their respective communities that promises to tidy up several problem areas.

Working by Scout troop and Cub pack, the boys will carry out a massive clean-up project centered along the North Western Railway tracks, Salt and Weller creeks, school gounds and major roadways.

The three-hour program called "Operation Filth," is sponsored by the Sauk Woods District of the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council and is headed by assistant district chairmen Thomas F. Clauter, 304 N. Dale, Mount Prospect, and Stewart M. Grant, 415 W. Fairview, Arlington Heights.

ASSISTING them are Explorer Scouts from six posts in the district under the direction of George Dwyer, district Explorer Council president.

The Scouts will be equipped with a thousand plastic bags with a capacity of a quarter barrel. They will cover their assigned route in a walking pick-up, retrieving paper, cans, bottles and other debris, starting at 9 a.m.

The younger Cubs will confine their pick-up activities to their school yards and parks.

Collection points will be located in each village. Headquarters for the project will be the collection point at the east end of the parking lot across from Bowen Hardware in downtown Arlington Heights.

"WE FEEL that the Scouting movement should lead the way in keeping America beautiful," said Clauter, "and that we should start it right at home. It's also our way of saying thanks to these communities for their support."

Clauter emphasized that "Operation Filth" is not a door-to-door canvass for junk and is not intended to supplant regular village scavenger services.

SCOUT LEADER STEWART Grant points out to Scouts Bill Britts, Dave Grashorn and Tom Britts some of the debris they will be picking up Saturday morning in "Operation Filth." Grant, Arlington Heights finance director, is one of the organizers of "community good turn" for Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows.

Dutch Elm Disease—

DETROIT UPI — Two years of experiments by a florist and an allergy specialist may have paid off in a cure for Dutch elm disease, a killer of shade trees.

Floyd Gasdick, an electrical engineer and Detroit florist, and Dr. B. J. Szappanyos, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., have been experimenting with a liquid decongestant made from a secret formula.

If it works as well as they hope, it could neutralize an affliction which has plagued the eastern portion of the nation for years.

THEIR EXPERIMENTS have been conducted on 200 diseased elms on the campus of a Bloomfield Hills school.

"They were deathly sick, but we hope to save at least half of them," Gasdick said.

The decongestant is fed into the tree through a hole in the trunk. The experimenters say it clears the tree of the disease fungus within six weeks and will not harm healthy trees.

The only treatment for the disease to date has been killing beetles which spread it.

'New' Senate: Nixon Problem?

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON UPI — The U. S. Senate, once regarded as a citadel of conservatism, may belie its reputation in Richard M. Nixon's Washington.

Like the House, the Senate will be organized by Democrats for the 91st Congress starting Jan. 3, 1969. But the numbers — a 58-42 Democratic edge in the Senate and 243-192 margin in the House — do not reveal the ideological makeup of the Congress.

The House has been dominated by conservatives — the so-called Republican-Southern Democratic coalition — since the voters sent 47 new GOP members to Congress in 1966.

But the Senate, even with the five-seat gain for the Republicans in 1968, has leaned toward the liberal side despite the control of many leadership and committee chairman posts by conservative Democrats.

FOR EXAMPLE, the Senate in recent past sessions has consistently approved legislation in the antipoverty, education and welfare fields that was regarded as more liberal than the House's product — and in some cases more so than the Democratic administration sought.

This has been explained as a function of the Senate's constituency — entire states almost always including a big metropolitan area — rather than relatively single-interest congressional districts.

There will be 13 newly-minted senators and a returnee — Barry M. Goldwater — on hand to take the oath when Congress convenes. Based on advance indications, it is possible to guess that six of the 14 will vote on the conservative side. At least six of the newcomers will be expected to fall in with Senate liberals or in some middle ground.

PREVIOUS VOTING records or the tone of their campaigns would put Goldwater, R-Ariz., Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., Marlow W. Cook, R-Ky., Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., and James B. Allen, D-Ala., in the conservative camp.

Presumed new liberal or moderate votes would come from Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., and Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa.

The two other newcomers, question marks in the liberal-conservative spectrum, are Robert Packwood, R-Ore., and William Saxbe, R-Ohio.

Apart from the guessing game, it was notable that of the nine Senate seats that changed parties, only two — Arizona and Oklahoma — passed from men with liberal or moderate voting records into the hands of declared or demonstrated conservatives.

Difficult decisions in business, school and family life face us all at some time.

How do we know the right thing to do... how do we apply our highest values without penalty?

800 Scouts, 1,000 Super Bags Drafted for War Against Litter

More than 800 Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts tomorrow morning will be engaged in doing a "good turn" for their respective communities that promises to tidy up several problem areas.

Working by Scout troop and Cub pack, the boys will carry out a massive clean-up project centered along the North Western Railway tracks, Salt and Weller creeks, school gounds and major roadways.

The three-hour program called "Operation Filth," is sponsored by the Sauk Woods District of the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council and is headed by assistant district chairmen Thomas F. Clauter, 304 N. Dale, Mount Prospect, and Stewart M. Grant, 415 W. Fairview, Arlington Heights.

ASSISTING them are Explorer Scouts from six posts in the district under the direction of George Dwyer, district Explorer Council president.

The Scouts will be equipped with a thousand plastic bags with a capacity of a quarter barrel. They will cover their assigned route in a walking pick-up, retrieving paper, cans, bottles and other debris, starting at 9 a.m.

The younger Cubs will confine their pick-up activities to their school yards and parks.

Collection points will be located in each village. Headquarters for the project will be the collection point at the east end of the parking lot across from Bowen Hardware in downtown Arlington Heights.

"WE FEEL that the Scouting movement should lead the way in keeping America beautiful," said Clauter, "and that we should start it right at home. It's also our way of saying thanks to these communities for their support."

Clauter emphasized that "Operation Filth" is not a door-to-door canvass for junk and is not intended to supplant regular village scavenger services.

SCOUT LEADER STEWART Grant points out to Scouts Bill Britts, Dave Grashorn and Tom Britts some of the debris they will be picking up Saturday morning in "Operation Filth." Grant, Arlington Heights finance director, is one of the organizers of "community good turn" for Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows.

Dutch Elm Disease—

DETROIT UPI — Two years of experiments by a florist and an allergy specialist may have paid off in a cure for Dutch elm disease, a killer of shade trees.

Floyd Gasdick, an electrical engineer and Detroit florist, and Dr. B. J. Szappanyos, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., have been experimenting with a liquid decongestant made from a secret formula.

If it works as well as they hope, it could neutralize an affliction which has plagued the eastern portion of the nation for years.

THEIR EXPERIMENTS have been conducted on 200 diseased elms on the campus of a Bloomfield Hills school.

"They were deathly sick, but we hope to save at least half of them," Gasdick said.

The decongestant is fed into the tree through a hole in the trunk. The experimenters say it clears the tree of the disease fungus within six weeks and will not harm healthy trees.

The only treatment for the disease to date has been killing beetles which spread it.

Ask Fast School-Year Study

A quick, thorough and probably expensive study of year-round school benefits has been called for by High School Dist. 214's Citizens Committee.

The study recommendation, approved by a narrow majority at a Tuesday evening Citizens Committee meeting in the new John Hersey High School, will be passed on to the school board on Dec. 9.

The committee said the study should pinpoint financial and educational implications of both extending the school year and lengthening the school day.

THEY AGREED that the study should be made by outside consultants and completed by June, 1969.

Supt. Edward H. Gilbert says hiring outside experts to do the study could cost Dist. 214 some $25,000.

He speculated that possibly the state office of public instruction might be persuaded to help with financing.

Location of Rolling Meadows as the site for the district's seventh high school was passed unanimously by the 500 some persons attending the Citizens Committee meeting.

The school will be needed by September, 1971, and an eighth high school should be planned for opening in the fall of 1973, Citizens Committee members agreed. They recommended that the eighth school be built in Buffalo Grove.

Although many persons at the meeting sniped at the recommendation that the Rolling Meadows school be built to accommodate 3,000 pupils instead of today's 2,500-pupil standard, when time for voting came at close to 11 p.m., no one attempted to make a change.

THE YEAR-round school study recommendation came at the end of a scheduling subcommittee report that drew considerable skeptical comment from the audience.

Dr. Conrad Mazeski of Mount Prospect, subgroup chairman, was told by Mrs. W. J. Marier of Arlington Heights, "I realize you've attributed every virtue to this in order to attract our interest. But some of these broad variables would not stand up five minutes."

Further pressed on possible savings, subgroup member Lee Canfield of Arlington Heights exxplained that his committee was unable to pin down financial benefits but felt children's educational opportunities might be increased with either the longer school day or school year.

"It seems that the educational merits outweigh economies, I for one feel that if the educational merits are the only merits, I think it's a losing battle. I don't think you'll be able to sell it to the voters in terms they can understand," commented B. K. Minn of Rolling Meadows.

SHIFT TO year-round schools could be made by the school board without a referendum, noted Dr. Ian Taylor of Wheeling.

"Yes, but we might have another board of education the next time around," Canfield countered.

School calendar changes that might be possible, Mazeski's report said, include:

—Going to a four-quarter system, with a different group of students on vacation each quarter.

—Keeping a summer vacation but extending the school year from 180 to 210 days so that more material can be covered.

—The "12-4" plan, where a group of students attends school 12 weeks and then goes on vacation while another group comes in to take their place.

VERTICAL shifts in the school day could include schools open 10 to 12 hours and dividing the school day into "mods," modular units, so that laboratory classes could be held for longer periods than courses like English.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25's junior high schools have had a type of "mod" schedule in use two years.

The Citizens Committee action Tuesday does not complete its work.

Curriculum and school-community relations subgroup reports have not been completed.

McMinn said Tuesday his facilities subcommittee will meet again to discuss whether a swimming pool should be included in the new high school.

THE CITIZENS Committee also has not acted on recommendations of its finance subgroup, which has recommended that Dist. 214 call a tax referendum to raise its educational tax rate ceiling 21 cents per $100 and its building maintenance rate 12½ cents.

The finance report, given Tuesday, reported that "states which levy an income tax can and do spend more for education."

Subgroup chairman John Rado added, however, that "a state income tax will probably cost Dist. 214 more than it would benefit."

Patch Loophole On Apartments in County

The Cook County Board of Commissioners has latched the loopholes that allowed apartments to steal into business districts.

An amendment to the county zoning ordinance has switched apartments from a permitted use to a special use under business zoning. Approved this week, the amendment is to insure commercial use of a building's ground floor in business districts.

As a special use, apartments as a single use of a building will be prohibited in commercial areas and joint business-apartment use of a building will have to be reviewed by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

IN EFFECT, the amended zoning ordinance will require public review of multiple family development in commercial areas which developers were able to avoid in the past.

Density of apartments approved as a special use permit would remain as currently regulated. Density under business zoning is the same as allowed under county R-5 and R-6 multiple-family classifications.

Under B-1 or B-2 business zoning, this density is one dwelling unit per 2,500 square feet of lot area and under B-3, B-4 and B-1 business zoning, density is one dwelling unit per 1,500 square feet of lot area.

THE CHANGES to the zoning ordinance were first suggested at hearings before the Zoning Board of Appeals Nov. 16, 1967, and June 21.

In a written recommendation for county board adoption of the ordinance amendments, the Zoning Board of Appeals stated apartment buildings in areas intended for business destroys business zoning and offsets land allocation for apartments.

Moving the ordinance be amended, Commissioner Lloyd Fulle of Des Plaines said Tuesday he was glad to see the changes, a long time in coming.

In the past, apartments as a permitted use in business zoning classifications enticed developers to misrepresent development intentions in re-zoning hearings. Developers also skirted the ordinance's intent of providing some apartments above ground-floor businesses. Previous language read apartments are not allowed below a second floor, so builders designed apartment buildings on stilts and ground floor parking lots.

AT THE first hearing on the ordinance amendment, the zoning board considered eliminating all apartments from business areas. With argument that some apartments might be desirable in commercial areas, the zoning board recommended that apartments be made a special, not permitted use.

All use zoning must be publicly reviewed and considered on the merits of individual cases.

39 Property Transfers

Cook County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen in the latest monthly Elk Grove Township real estate transfer report listed 13 property sales in Mount Prospect, seven in Des Plaines, two in Arlington Heights and 17 in Elk Grove Village and the rest of the township.

His listing shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by state revenue stamps ($1 in stamps for each $1,000 in market value) on the document.

The transfers are:

Arlington Heights: 1332 S. Evergreen, Edward Wendel to Earl J. Dolan; 1530 S. Belmont, Wilburn O. Bennett to Dominic Lucide.

Des Plaines: 665 W. Elizabeth, Richard F. Newton to Andrew J. Goszczycki; 554 Florian Dr., Gerald Smith to Nicholas P. Kostopoulos; 204 Norman Ct., Vincent Cutala to Gary J. Mikos; 660 Jill Ct., Julius Cohen to John J. Del Vecchio; 756 W. Lincoln, Thomas E. Hagan to Thomas T. Green; 243 W. Walnut, Clarence C. Schnell to Harry C. Swiatek; 1106 Arnold Ct., Allan L. Robinson to Clyde B. Anderson.

Ask Fast School-Year Study

A quick, thorough and probably expensive study of year-round school benefits has been called for by High School Dist. 214's Citizens Committee.

The study recommendation, approved by a narrow majority at a Tuesday evening Citizens Committee meeting in the new John Hersey High School, will be passed on to the school board on Dec. 9.

The committee said the study should pinpoint financial and educational implications of both extending the school year and lengthening the school day.

THEY AGREED that the study should be made by outside consultants and completed by June, 1969.

Supt. Edward H. Gilbert says hiring outside experts to do the study could cost Dist. 214 some $25,000.

He speculated that possibly the state office of public instruction might be persuaded to help with financing.

Location of Rolling Meadows as the site for the district's seventh high school was passed unanimously by the 500 some persons attending the Citizens Committee meeting.

The school will be needed by September, 1971, and an eighth high school should be planned for opening in the fall of 1973, Citizens Committee members agreed. They recommended that the eighth school be built in Buffalo Grove.

Although many persons at the meeting sniped at the recommendation that the Rolling Meadows school be built to accommodate 3,000 pupils instead of today's 2,500-pupil standard, when time for voting came at close to 11 p.m., no one attempted to make a change.

THE YEAR-round school study recommendation came at the end of a scheduling subcommittee report that drew considerable skeptical comment from the audience.

Dr. Conrad Mazeski of Mount Prospect, subgroup chairman, was told by Mrs. W. J. Marier of Arlington Heights, "I realize you've attributed every virtue to this in order to attract our interest. But some of these broad variables would not stand up five minutes."

Further pressed on possible savings, subgroup member Lee Canfield of Arlington Heights exxplained that his committee was unable to pin down financial benefits but felt children's educational opportunities might be increased with either the longer school day or school year.

"It seems that the educational merits outweigh economies, I for one feel that if the educational merits are the only merits, I think it's a losing battle. I don't think you'll be able to sell it to the voters in terms they can understand," commented B. K. Minn of Rolling Meadows.

SHIFT TO year-round schools could be made by the school board without a referendum, noted Dr. Ian Taylor of Wheeling.

"Yes, but we might have another board of education the next time around," Canfield countered.

School calendar changes that might be possible, Mazeski's report said, include:

—Going to a four-quarter system, with a different group of students on vacation each quarter.

—Keeping a summer vacation but extending the school year from 180 to 210 days so that more material can be covered.

—The "12-4" plan, where a group of students attends school 12 weeks and then goes on vacation while another group comes in to take their place.

VERTICAL shifts in the school day could include schools open 10 to 12 hours and dividing the school day into "mods," modular units, so that laboratory classes could be held for longer periods than courses like English.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25's junior high schools have had a type of "mod" schedule in use two years.

The Citizens Committee action Tuesday does not complete its work.

Curriculum and school-community relations subgroup reports have not been completed.

McMinn said Tuesday his facilities subcommittee will meet again to discuss whether a swimming pool should be included in the new high school.

THE CITIZENS Committee also has not acted on recommendations of its finance subgroup, which has recommended that Dist. 214 call a tax referendum to raise its educational tax rate ceiling 21 cents per $100 and its building maintenance rate 12½ cents.

The finance report, given Tuesday, reported that "states which levy an income tax can and do spend more for education."

Subgroup chairman John Rado added, however, that "a state income tax will probably cost Dist. 214 more than it would benefit."

Patch Loophole On Apartments in County

The Cook County Board of Commissioners has latched the loopholes that allowed apartments to steal into business districts.

An amendment to the county zoning ordinance has switched apartments from a permitted use to a special use under business zoning. Approved this week, the amendment is to insure commercial use of a building's ground floor in business districts.

As a special use, apartments as a single use of a building will be prohibited in commercial areas and joint business-apartment use of a building will have to be reviewed by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

IN EFFECT, the amended zoning ordinance will require public review of multiple family development in commercial areas which developers were able to avoid in the past.

Density of apartments approved as a special use permit would remain as currently regulated. Density under business zoning is the same as allowed under county R-5 and R-6 multiple-family classifications.

Under B-1 or B-2 business zoning, this density is one dwelling unit per 2,500 square feet of lot area and under B-3, B-4 and B-1 business zoning, density is one dwelling unit per 1,500 square feet of lot area.

THE CHANGES to the zoning ordinance were first suggested at hearings before the Zoning Board of Appeals Nov. 16, 1967, and June 21.

In a written recommendation for county board adoption of the ordinance amendments, the Zoning Board of Appeals stated apartment buildings in areas intended for business destroys business zoning and offsets land allocation for apartments.

Moving the ordinance be amended, Commissioner Lloyd Fulle of Des Plaines said Tuesday he was glad to see the changes, a long time in coming.

In the past, apartments as a permitted use in business zoning classifications enticed developers to misrepresent development intentions in re-zoning hearings. Developers also skirted the ordinance's intent of providing some apartments above ground-floor businesses. Previous language read apartments are not allowed below a second floor, so builders designed apartment buildings on stilts and ground floor parking lots.

AT THE first hearing on the ordinance amendment, the zoning board considered eliminating all apartments from business areas. With argument that some apartments might be desirable in commercial areas, the zoning board recommended that apartments be made a special, not permitted use.

All use zoning must be publicly reviewed and considered on the merits of individual cases.

Challange Is Big And On The Way, COG Told

The challenge of an effective council of governments may come after the council is formed, not during its establishment, members of the Council of Governments of Cook County (COG) were told Wednesday.

Acceptable solutions to regional problems may, in fact, lead to inactivity, a noted authority on intergovernmental cooperation said.

Kent Mathewson, director of the Detroit, Mich., Metropolitan Fund, warned some 50 Cook County government officials of problems to expect as COG moves from a planning to an implementation stage of growth.

COG'S first annual meeting was held in Lyons Township High School, Western Springs. Drawing from his own background in establishing voluntary governmental associations, Mathewson as keynote speaker listed three pitfalls to avoid:

—Fear of moving ahead with meaningful activity once a council is established.

—Inadequate citizen involvement, losing public interest and support.

—Restricting concentration on physical problems and losing sight of human considerations.

"CREATION of a council of governments is no guarantee action will take place," Mathewson cautioned on COG's first birthday.

Inaction could be deliberate, Mathewson said. But whether delay or indecision is deliberate or whether problems defy tactics of solutions, inactivity will not retain interest or participation, he warned.

Public support is important to councils of government because they are voluntary in membership, Mathewson said.

"Councils depend on persuasion and persuasion depends on knowledge and trust."

He suggested expanding public interest in COG by electing or appointing regional citizens as lay members or advisory committees. COG should seek position briefs from formal societies, solicit comment through publications and hold conferences and hearings, he advised.

PUBLIC officials are used to considering the local electorate, he said. They should continue to regionally as council members, Mathewson went on.

"Slums are not the exclusive problem of the center city. They affect everyone despite civic authority."

He traced full circle a distressed core school system, producing inferior students which leads to high unemployment rates, crime and eventually, higher taxes for all.

"Racial discrimination in the suburban communities produces ghettos, rejection of law and order, riots and civil disobedience."

Councils of government can either maintain the status quo, fail to be responsive or create some changes, Mathewson told his audience.

"YOU HAVE the opportunity to confront regional problems with a new institution," he challenged. "To fail to make an attempt is to lose without trying.

"Problems won't cure themselves, and they may get worse. It could lead to losing the right to govern ourselves."

He said change is inevitable but there is a choice in how change will occur.

"Someone must shape the change in this region," he said. "Shaping must be done now and now is when your Council of Governments is ready to embark on its venture."

You Say You Don't Care? Get On This Bandwagon!

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —What this nation needs in the presidential cabinet is a secretary of apathy.

In this high place in government he would speak for the estimated 48 million Americans who did not vote in the recent presidential election. That's around 40 per cent of the eligibles.

The apathetics need, in addition, an organization. Call it the National Apathetic party (NAP). Call the members Napocrats.

Whether they like it or not, these males and females ought to have their needs considered at lawmaking time.

EVEN THOUGH they sit on their hands most of the time while all about them are in a crunch, Napocrats contribute some things to the nation's interest.

Consider what they do when they utter their battle cry: "Ho-hum." They help keep America quiet and this reduces damage from noise pollution.

They also cooperate when police are worried about crowds getting out of hand. They stay home.

It's not fair to say the Napocrats never get aroused.

When they don't like the size of tax deductions from their paychecks or when they consider social security payments too small, they usually say:

"WHY DOESN'T someone do something about this."

The apathetic Napocrat at such a time is told to write his or her congressman or senator.

The Napocrat might, but he doesn't know which congressman or senator represents him. Not having voted, the Napocrat can't identify with a legislator.

Napocrats also have been heard to say:

"I DON'T know what this country is coming to. A person can watch someone getting mugged or killed and not call the police.

"The children are disrespectful and don't obey laws. There is graft in high places. Things are in a terrible mess and no one cares."

Once organized, the Napocrats could be counted on to care about some things. Take the proposal to put more three-day weekends in the holiday calendar nationally.

Members of NAP might get out of their rockers and demonstrate support for such legislation. It would be a sit-in, of course. Older members might want to make it a sleep-in.

IF THE apathetic Napocrats think they don't have something to gain by uniting, they ought to consider that voting as a block they might even get their man into the White House.

Political pundits probably would call it a sleeper. The candidate's name most likely would be Rip Van Winkle something-or-other.

QUANG TRI, South Vietnam UPI — The U. S. Army has always stressed the "buddy system" in which one soldier helps the other in time of need.

A 38-man platoon of the U. S. 5th Infantry Division may have stretched the point recently.

The unit was moved into a new operational zone on short notice and the men did not have time to pack their personal gear.

'May I Have The Envelope?' 'Oh, No! New Rules Again?'

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD UPI — The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences is good for almost as many laughs as the Hollywood Foreign Press Assn.

Both have awards to hand out, but the rules are changed every year.

The foreigners can plead ignorance. After all, they are staggering around in a foreign country.

THE EMMY people have no excuse, save perhaps a dingaling membership.

One year they gave out close to a hundred Emmys. Another year there were only a dozen or so winners. This year they've changed the rules again.

From now on, according to the academy, no performer or show will be able to repeat as an Emmy winner for doing the same thing for two seasons in a row.

That is, if Lucille Ball wins the Emmy this year for being the best comedienne on the air, she cannot win it next year even if she continues to be the best.

IT'S LIKE the Big Ten refusing to send the same football team to the Rose Bowl two years running. They want to give some of the losers a chance.

Evidently the Emmy scientists feel the same way.

Seymour Berns, president of the academy, says the new rules assure "that every Emmy award will honor new and innovative achievements thereby answering the criticism that all too often the same people and shows were bestowed with Emmy honors."

The most ridiculous of the new rules is that performers and shows will not be eligible for an Emmy after the second season on the air.

LAST YEAR Milburn Stone won the award for best supporting actor in a drama — Gunsmoke — after the show had been on the air for a dozen years. No one deserved it more than Stone. Under the new rules his performances are automatically eliminated.

Make sense? No. But then the nuts and bolts in the academy seldom do.

Happiness is a warm garage.

If your car has fits instead of starts on cold winter mornings—you need a gas garage heater.

New gas garage heaters can be set to keep your engine just above the freezing point—so you'll never have to sit there like an ice cube, listening to your battery run down. And the cost is so low, you'll wonder why you ever thought a heated garage was luxury.

Or, of course, you can set the heat higher and turn your garage into a pleasant spot for building model airplanes or full-sized sailboats.

The new heaters are a snap to install. You don't even need a chimney. Only a little hole in the wall for venting.

Phone Northern Illinois Gas or your local heating contractor, and make your garage more than just a cold parking lot this winter.

"Racial discrimination in the suburban communities produces ghettos, rejection of law and order, riots and civil disobedience."

Councils of government can either maintain the status quo, fail to be responsive or create some changes, Mathewson told his audience.

"YOU HAVE the opportunity to confront regional problems with a new institution," he challenged. "To fail to make an attempt is to lose without trying.

"Problems won't cure themselves, and they may get worse. It could lead to losing the right to govern ourselves."

He said change is inevitable but there is a choice in how change will occur.

"Someone must shape the change in this region," he said. "Shaping must be done now and now is when your Council of Governments is ready to embark on its venture."

You Say You Don't Care? Get On This Bandwagon!

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —What this nation needs in the presidential cabinet is a secretary of apathy.

In this high place in government he would speak for the estimated 48 million Americans who did not vote in the recent presidential election. That's around 40 per cent of the eligibles.

The apathetics need, in addition, an organization. Call it the National Apathetic party (NAP). Call the members Napocrats.

Whether they like it or not, these males and females ought to have their needs considered at lawmaking time.

EVEN THOUGH they sit on their hands most of the time while all about them are in a crunch, Napocrats contribute some things to the nation's interest.

Consider what they do when they utter their battle cry: "Hohum." They help keep America quiet and this reduces damage from noise pollution.

They also cooperate when police are worried about crowds getting out of hand. They stay home.

It's not fair to say the Napocrats never get aroused.

When they don't like the size of tax deductions from their paychecks or when they consider social security payments too small, they usually say:

"WHY DOESN'T someone do something about this."

The apathetic Napocrat at such a time is told to write his or her congressman or senator.

The Napocrat might, but he doesn't know which congressman or senator represents him. Not having voted, the Napocrat can't identify with a legislator.

Napocrats also have been heard to say:

"I DON'T know what this country is coming to. A person can watch someone getting mugged or killed and not call the police.

"The children are disrespectful and don't obey laws. There is graft in high places. Things are in a terrible mess and no one cares."

Once organized, the Napocrats could be counted on to care about some things. Take the proposal to put more three-day weekends in the holiday calendar nationally.

Members of NAP might get out of their rockers and demonstrate support for such legislation. It would be a sit-in, of course. Older members might want to make it a sleep-in.

IF THE apathetic Napocrats think they don't have something to gain by uniting, they ought to consider that voting as a block they might even get their man into the White House.

Political pundits probably would call it a sleeper. The candidate's name most likely would be Rip Van Winkle something-or-other.

Must Have Been 'The Spoiler'

QUANG TRI, South Vietnam UPI — The U. S. Army has always stressed the "buddy system" in which one soldier helps the other in time of need.

A 38-man platoon of the U. S. 5th Infantry Division may have stretched the point recently.

The unit was moved into a new operational zone on short notice and the men did not have time to pack their personal gear.

When shaving time came the next morning, all 38 men got rid of their whiskers — using the same razor blade.

'May I Have The Envelope?' 'Oh, No! New Rules Again?'

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD UPI — The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences is good for almost as many laughs as the Hollywood Foreign Press Assn.

Both have awards to hand out, but the rules are changed every year.

The foreigners can plead ignorance. After all, they are staggering around in a foreign country.

THE EMMY people have no excuse, save perhaps a dingaling membership.

One year they gave out close to a hundred Emmys. Another year there were only a dozen or so winners. This year they've changed the rules again.

From now on, according to the academy, no performer or show will be able to repeat as an Emmy winner for doing the same thing for two seasons in a row.

That is, if Lucille Ball wins the Emmy this year for being the best comedienne on the air, she cannot win it next year even if she continues to be the best.

IT'S LIKE the Big Ten refusing to send the same football team to the Rose Bowl two years running. They want to give some of the losers a chance.

Evidently the Emmy scientists feel the same way.

Seymour Berns, president of the academy, says the new rules assure "that every Emmy award will honor new and innovative achievements thereby answering the criticism that all too often the same people and shows were bestowed with Emmy honors."

The most ridiculous of the new rules is that performers and shows will not be eligible for an Emmy after the second season on the air.

LAST YEAR Milburn Stone won the award for best supporting actor in a drama — Gunsmoke — after the show had been on the air for a dozen years. No one deserved it more than Stone. Under the new rules his performances are automatically eliminated.

Make sense? No. But then the nuts and bolts in the academy seldom do.

Happiness is a warm garage.

If your car has fits instead of starts on cold winter mornings—you need a gas garage heater.

New gas garage heaters can be set to keep your engine just above the freezing point—so you'll never have to sit there like an ice cube, listening to your battery run down. And the cost is so low, you'll wonder why you ever thought a heated garage was luxury.

Or, of course, you can set the heat higher and turn your garage into a pleasant spot for building model airplanes or full-sized sailboats.

The new heaters are a snap to install. You don't even need a chimney. Only a little hole in the wall for venting.

Phone Northern Illinois Gas or your local heating contractor, and make your garage more than just a cold parking lot this winter.

Church in the Suburbs: Change Brews

By MARY DRESSER

The face of the church in the suburbs is apparently what it was 10 years ago, but beneath the surface forces are gathering to radically change the "old time religion."

Church buildings, products of the religious revival of the 50's, are still well-kept and generally filled, but few new churches are being built.

In the seminaries, the ministers and priests of the future are preparing themselves for a crusade against suburban white middle class morality.

"They are resolved not to play the role the white culture wants to give them," says Rev. Martin Marty, seminary teacher, associate editor of Christian Century magazine, and the former pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit in Elk Grove Village.

In the past, the young seminarians have chosen to serve in the ghetto. Today, Black Power has forced them to re-think their call to serve the black man.

THEY ARE admitting to themselves the black ghetto must be renewed by black Christians.

So the target of the dedicated young seminary students has switched to the suburbs.

"They bought the Kerner report," says Marty. "If the evil is white racism, they intend to fight it. They are going to go to the suburbs where the action is, and get at the source of racism."

Marty predicts that clashes between the conservative clergy and the new breed will increase.

"No one in the seminaries wants to sanction the views of middle class America," Marty says.

THE CONCEPT of religion in the suburbs is changing. The devotion to institutions and rules is fading as people grasp for meaning in modern life.

Some suburban churches, "play it cool," and continue to offer shelter religion which is structured, slightly repressive and institutional. Others attempt to serve as interpreters of religion, and explore overlooked facets of their own tradition.

"The hippies talk a lot about Jesus," Marty notes.

Young people, today, don't "turn on" to the Western tradition of religion, he observes. The Eastern religions are creating the present ferment in ideals. The Eastern religious influence can be heard in the songs of Joan Baez, the Beatles, Bob Dylan, and Simon and Garfunkle.

Older people in the suburbs are also abandoning the traditional forms. They may attend their churches, as usual, but many of their religious experiences are outside the accepted religious pattern.

YOGA, THE books of Edgar Cayce, reincarnation, spiritualism, and astrology are becoming increasingly popular. Religious energies are also vented in patriotic ceremonies, invocations during political meetings, and the sports liturgy, such as the traditional half time observances at football games.

"In the suburbs you see rapidation . . . a quick sequence of ideas. New heroes rise and fall in a short time," Marty observes.

Religious institutions were stronger 10 years ago, as the Catholics emerged as a result of Vatican II, the Protestants had a membership boom and the Jews came into the area for the first time.

TODAY, ALTHOUGH 44 per cent of all Americans attend church regularly as compared to 45 per cent 10 years ago, church building has declined, Catholic religious vocations are dropping, and the people are either fighting innovations or agitating for change.

The old sermons on Heaven and Hell are disappearing from the Protestant and Catholic repertoire. Churchmen are being asked to preach on the purpose of life and the problem of evil.

Existentialism — judging actions in the light of changing events — is the philosophy now being applied to moral decisions.

This "new morality" is not always popular with the people of the suburbs. They look back with nostalgia to the day of the rigid laws and "crabby pastors," when clear answers were churned out for every problem.

PEOPLE ARE being forced ot make their own decisions. Lay leaders, who identify with the new, applaud this, but the pillars of the church, the bill payers and the social leaders, dig in their heels in protest.

Protestant students are intensely interested in social action and the disillusioned drop outs from politics are looking for answers in religion, according to Marty.

In colleges, the chapels that were filled in the 50's are now empty. However, the colleges are experiencing a religious curriculum boom. In one state university, religion courses jumped from five to 27 in one year.

Students are reaading books on personal ethics containing material by Deitrich Bonhoeffer, Father Bernard Haring, Immanuel Kant, Martin Luther King Jr. and Pope John XXIII.

HIGH SCHOOL students can now study a book called "Discovery," containing the lyrics of popular songs such as "Sounds of Silence" and "Eleanor Rigby."

Adult Protestants are faced with a suggestion made recently by Robert C. Dodds, director of ecumenical affairs for the National Council of Churches.

"The day has arrived to declare the exxistence of a general church membership," says Dodds.

Dodds suggests that some people will prefer to stay with a single tradition, but others may decide to expose themselves to many traditions at the same time. He envisions simultaneous participation in a Lutheran Bible study, a Methodist prayer group, a Roman Catholic Mass, a United Church of Christ service project, an Episcopal education program.

ON THE Roman Catholic side, the suburban church has hit bad weather.

The crisis of authority, sparked by Paul VI's recent condemnation of artificial birth control, has forced individual Catholics into a painful analysis of their religion.

Catholic leaders today are unable to predict with certainty where their church will be in the next few years.

Marty believes the Catholic Church will need a Vatican III to resolve the authority problem Paul has provoked.

He does not believe Paul's encyclical will cause an exodus from the Catholic Church. He sees a "drift" from the Catholic Church, but believes Catholics will either "wait out" the decision of Paul or rely on private conscience.

"IT IS NOT natural for a Catholic to go church shopping," says Marty.

J. John Palen a demographer and a former member of the sociology department of the University of Wisconsin, disagrees with Marty.

In a recent issue of Christian Century, Palen points to a drive-them - out - of - the church attitude on the part of conservatives such as Brent Bozell, William Buckley's brother-in-law.

If the American Catholic Church ignores the demands of the encyclical, liberals will probably stay within the fold, Palen predicts. "If on the other hand, pressures are intensified for conformity and obedience, it is likely that increasing numbers of those who dissent for reasons of conscience will take Mr. Bozell's advice and opt out of the establishment.

PALEN SEES some of these Catholics turning to the Episcopal Church. Others will follow the example of England's noted Catholic theologian, Rev. Charles Davis, and reject organized religion completely.

Prof. Bruno Switalski of the philosophy department of De Paul University, a Roman Catholic priest whose specialty is the Thomistic natural law, has been a long-time critic of the anti-birth control position. Swatalski believes the majority of Catholics will stay.

"A number may leave, but the fact that theologians are attacking the Pope's position may make people stay and wait," he says.

Switalski agrees with Marty that a Vatican III will be needed. The Pope and the Bishops are not the church, Switalski insists, and the common opinions and practices of the people cannot be disregarded.

The intense opposition from respected theologians and the people will force a re-evaluation of birth control in the future, he believes.

MEANWHILE, as Catholics puzzle the problem of birth control, the traditional parochial school system is threatened with being phased out.

Parochial schools are floundering economically, and the ecumenical movement has removed the need to protect and defend Catholic children from other religions.

Part-time non-celibate priests, and masses in private homes are being suggested in liberal Catholic circles.

Some Catholics who oppose the present position of the church, but intend to hang on to their religion, are joining underground church movements. They meet on their own and avoid contact with the hierarchy.

What about the 56 per cent who do not attend the churches?

In a recent survey, 97 per cent of the Americans questioned said they believed in God and 80 per cent had a favorable reaction to orthodox religion.

"THEY MUST feel something special happens in church," says Marty.

Some of these non-churchgoers are the most dedicated to the ideas they profess, he notes. They protest the institutional church because they believe it fails to live up to its teachings.

Christianity IS changing, insists Marty. And the battlefield will be the suburbs.

"The church was born to serve the poor, the prostitutes, the sinners, the syndicate people, and those from the wrong side of the tracks. We still read the story of the good Samaritan in our churches. Maybe we try to gloss over it, but the truth is there. The Samaritan could have been a black militant or a hippie."

The church in the suburbs will not have a revival, he predicts. It will have a "relocation." It will mean something different than it has meant before.

All the old supports will not be removed, but they will be seen as supports, not rigid institutions.

"Perhaps the relocation will come and go and we won't even notice it," he speculates.

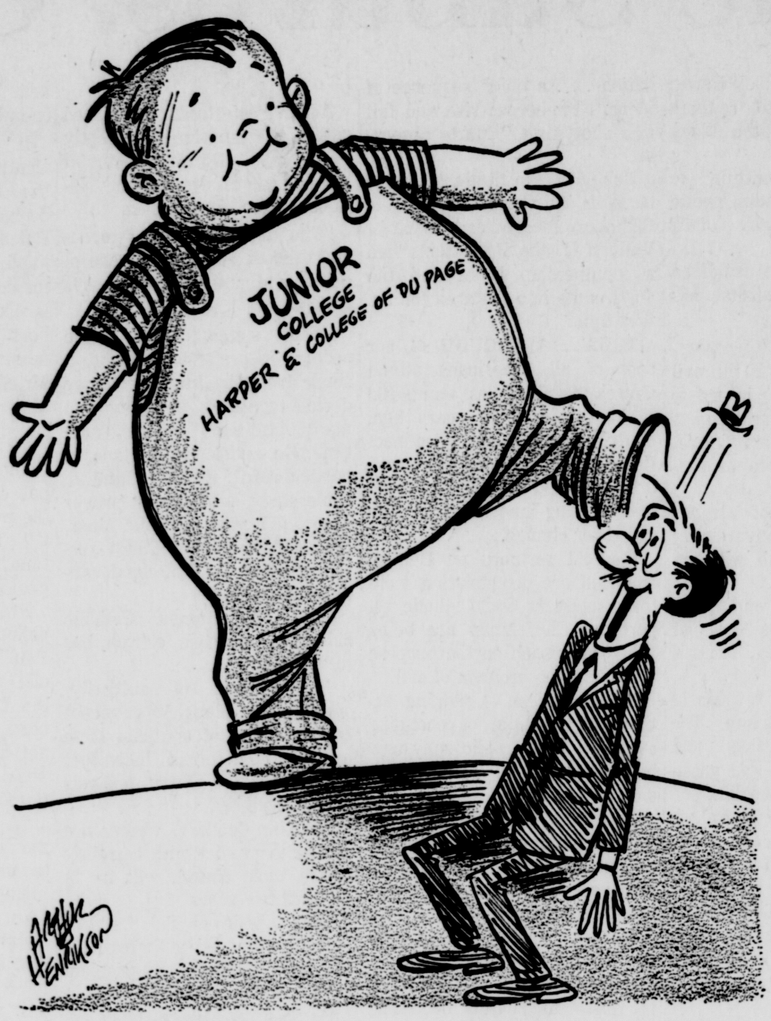
How Junior's Grown!



The Way We See It

Junior Colleges Service Grows

Wisdom of the Legislature in creating the new junior college system has been evidenced by the success of these institutions in serving the needs of Northwest suburbia.

The Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage have experienced rapid growth in the few years since voters brought them into existence. This growth has not been merely in numbers of students, though that is an indication of service, but also in the variety of needs they meet.

In the College of DuPage, enrollment this fall reached 4,067 compared with 2,679 a year ago. Harper, serving Northwest Cook County, opened this fall with an enrollment of 3,735 compared with only 1,564 in 1967.

Harper's 1968 enrollment is composed of 1,859 full-time students and 1,876 who are attending on a part-time basis. The DuPage junior college has 2,420 full-time students and 1,647 part-timers.

Professional studies made at various points in the planning of the junior colleges indicated they would experience large enrollments. Harper has already confounded the experts by enrolling more full-time students than were forecast by 1970 and almost as many part-timers as expected by 1975.

Both colleges have a ratio of approximately two men to every woman in their student body. At DuPage, the age range is from a 15-year-old girl studying Russian to a 67-year-old nun learning how to type.

"The differences in background," a spokesman pointed out, "vary from high school dropouts who have returned to get the education they now realize they need to men with doctorates seeking additional knowledge."

Such diversity in age and background is both a challenge and an opportunity.

Traditionally most students attending junior colleges plan to transfer to degree-granting institutions, and while this role may be rather thankless for a junior college seeking to demonstrate accomplishments and build a school spirit, it is an essential role, undoubtedly the primary reason voters authorized the junior colleges.

Yet to serve the whole community junior colleges must also reach those not going on to a professional career as well as those in the community who simply want to better themselves by increasing their knowledge. Thus vocational and part-time students are an important element.

At Harper this fall, 51 per cent of the students plan to transfer to a four-year college, substantially lower than typical junior college experience. Another 22 per cent plan to attend Harper for two years, presumably for terminal career programs, and 11 per cent plan to attend less than two years.

Old Friendship Smashed by War

by STEVE NOVICK

There is a photograph kept under glass on the dresser in my bedroom. It is basically a plain room. There are not many ornamental items there and I like it that way.

The photo is kept on display, however, up and above the hundreds of other pictures I have from my life experiences. The other pictures are kept in a drawer and are pulled out during nostalgic moments and when friends with whom I shared the time pictured are visiting me.

NOVICK

But the picture that is kept under glass on the dresser in my room is a special one. It shows three dear buddies and me standing in front of the dormitory at the military academy we all attended during our high school years.

OUR ARMS ARE all up around each others shoulders, and we are standing there happy because, for all the academy offered, nothing meant more than the fellowship we shared there.

I can remember how much that fellowship meant. I can easily recall the feeling I had when the picture was being taken.

I thought at that time that the photograph would be a keepsake to show to friends with whom I would become close to later in life.

And, I have always done just that. "These are my good buddies from military school," I have always announced warmly whenever the occasion afforded itself.

"THERE IS ARNY to my right," I'll say. "He is doing OK for himself, working for IBM and going places fast." I talked to him just yesterday and am going to see him tomorrow night.

"And that is George to the right of Arny," I'd point out. "He was married this summer to a wonderful girl. I was an usher at his wedding and it was a real joy for me. George is in law school now, and he too, is doing well for himself."

And, on Georges' right stands Johnny who George and Arny and I have always remembered as being "the coolest guy in the world."

George and Arny and I see each other frequently. We all live in Chicago, and although we are all busy pursuing our nitch in life, we can still find time to be together.

BUT AFTER OUR military school days we had few opportunities to see John, and none of us have been in touch with him for about four years.

The grapevine has always kept us informed about John, and we have always liked to talk about him concerning the times we had together, and what he was doing with himself last time we heard about him.

We remember a clean looking fella, as handsome as any one could imagine, bopping into the room I shared with George.

John sort of strutted when he walked, and his every facial expression and gesture was expressive of the self confidence we felt he possessed.

We remember John as being a bright kid who would read Shakespeare for kicks and study advanced chemistry. He grasped things easily, and although his goals in life were not concrete at the time, we knew that he could succeed at whatever he did decide to pursue.

AND HE WAS AN athlete, who lettered in three sports that I can remember and he put wheat germ on everything he ate. John was constantly doing toning exercises for his body, a body that was as strong as his mind.

John, we remember, was a leader and an individual too, all of which added up to a greatly respected young man.

The grapevine tells us that John went to a top Big Ten university after graduation from high school, and he earned high grades.

After the first year, for personal reasons, he went to another college, and after his second year he enlisted in the Army and joined the Special Forces.

MOST RECENTLY I heard that John went to Viet Nam last summer and did not last a month before he was killed.

The setting at which I heard the news was eerie. I was at a party during what was sort of a reunion for me and my close friends from college.

We had just arrived after seeing Bill Cosby in concert. Cosby had had us laughing to tears with a routine about two brothers, their antic after going to bed for the night and their father's dealings with the noise and jumping around that was going on.

One thing I closely associated with the routine was the after taps clowning that John, I and the others would frequently enjoy and how we would disturb our faculty adviser in the dorm at the military school.

I RECALLED HOW John would often be the one to step forward and smoothly talk us out of trouble.

And, then, to the party that followed Cosby's performance and during all the gaiety of friends being together again, in came a couple of fellas with whom I had gone through both high school and college.

The word on John came bluntly as if it were something I already knew. Yet my sadness is irrelevant compared to the questions I ask myself now about my other friends.

None of us certain that we will never experience John's fate.

Though the others I've mentioned play minor rolls compared to the sketch of John I've tried to portray, any of them has the potential to be as much a credit to society as I know John would have been.

AND, THERE ARE thousands of young men toward whom I do not have a first hand faith concerning their worth to the world. They are the others who have died in Viet Nam. John is the first friend I have lost to that war. And, there are others who will die before the war is over, boys perhaps, who you will know.

The Political Beat

New Taxes Coming

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

What's ahead for state and local governments as fiscal concerns take No. 1 spot in budget planning? New sources of revenue and more revenue are major challenges at all levels of government as elective bodies prepare their spending to meet the demands for more services in this urban society.

The eyes of all are on the taxpayer who having performed his chores on election day is now chosen to fulfill the promises made by the winning candidates during election campaigns. The fact is the taxpayer is the personality of the hour because taxpayers in the aggregate are the only safeguard for government solvency and an orderly society as against social chaos and anarchy.

HUFNAGEL

This thought perhaps was unconsciously expressed with the record-breaking split ballot voting on Nov. 5 not only in the west Cook County suburbs and DuPage County but throughout Illinois and the nation. These voters, though they may have voted differently, were for the most part voting for stability and personal security. This can be taken as the temper of the times and a rejection of politics as usual.

THERE IS NO doubt about it the public is demanding responsibile fiscal management in every area of government. The split ballot voters were asking who can be trusted to do the job that must be done rather than is he a good Democrat or Republican?

Illinois ranks fourth in wealth among the 50 states but 47th in aid to education. Many people are wondering why this is so and other are wondering how it can be changed. The split ballot voters are for the most part interested in this kind of issue.

Of course aid to education will cost money and it is estimated that local schools are being supported mainly from a tax on real estate amounting to from 70 per cent to 85 per cent out of every tax dollar collected locally. Both candidates for governor outdid themselves promising further state aid per pupil if elected.

But at this point the state government is operating in the red, and the deficit is expected to reach $160 million by next summer, the end of this biennium. Clearly there is now a need for millions of dollars in more tax revenue and a desperate search is on to uncover new springs of tax yield.

The voters gave the Republicans the responsibility for performing this service and gave them unchallenged control of both houses of the Legislature where revenue bills must be passed but also named a Republican governor to make sure that the job would be carried out with dispatch.

So far as can be ascertained there are three methods of raising needed additional revenue and one or more of these can be expected to be adopted.

AN OCCUPATIONAL tax on the professions looms big in this thinking. A one per cent tax will bring an estimated tax yield of $23.4 million.

A corporate franchise tax is eyed as a further source of future revenue. True such a tax is now being levied but it is so puny that the yield is estimated at only $16 million. California's corporate franchise tax yields close to $200 million it is reported.

A third source of additional revenue is a flat rate income tax. Some legal authorities hold that it is constitutional without amendment. A flat rate income tax of one per cent on individuals and corporations would bring in an estimated $220 million in revenue.

Unless new sources of revenue are tapped further increases in sales tax, motor fuel tax and on homes appear inevitable.

Column 'Lacking in Logic'

I wish to object to the "Critic's Corner" of Nov. 11, titled, "Special Treatment for Negro Deprives Others of Rights," on two counts.

First, I believe the placement of the article on the page leads to confusion of editorial intention. It appeared to me that the article might be taken as an editorial, and, as such, a statement of editorial policy. If, as a staff writer, Mr. Mlynczak is not speaking for the Herald, the reader should know that such is the case.

Second, Mr. Mlynczak has exposed himself as a representative sample of a type of person who is much too prevalent in our country for my peace of mind. There does not seem to be an original idea in the entire article. He is merely mouthing what have been become the platitudes of a very insecure group of people whose only claim to individual distinction is the color of their skin.

MR. MLYNCZAK has, of course, the right to his opinion concerning racial matters. However, he should follow the basic rules of logic if he wishes to prove a point.

Concerning riots, Mr. Mlynczak does not seem to realize that the great majority of Negroes are no more desirous of riots than he is himself. They, too, hope for other means of progress. But, anyone, who has any knowledge of the misuse of human resources and dignity prevalent in a ghetto, whether Negro, "white" Appalachian, or other, must feel a profound sense of frustration when he considers how slowly things change and how many people are lost from productive, happy lives while waiting for things to change. The Negro, especially, may look back over more than a hundred years and realize that the only way his people have ever gotten what the Constitution promises is by forcing white men to give it to them.

Mr. Mlynczak would not have to study history very hard to realize that his prized Caucasians have rioted many times. The Boston Massacre was a group of rioters demanding their rights. Not so awfully long ago the "inferior" Irish of Chicago rioted in protest of the repressive tactics of a German establishment.

CONCERNING his evaluation of civil rights laws, Mr. Mlynczak seems to consider himself a judge. Laws are interpreted in courts rather than by sports writers. It does not seem to me that the law which he quoted means that a white man must sell his home to a Negro. It seems to me to say that a Negro has the right to buy a home. He may not be denied this right solely because he is a Negro. Mr. Mlynczak would certainly be indignant if he were denied the right to buy a home because his name seems to indicate that his ancestry is something other than Anglo-Saxon.

The restaurant owner who gets so much sympathy from Mr. Mlynczak has not been told by the government how to think. He has been told that, if he runs a public institution, it must, indeed, be public. Again, Mr. Mlynczak would certainly be indignant if he were denied a public service because his name is very difficult to pronounce in English.

Conerning the taxpayers who must support the freeloaders who receive welfare checks, Mr. Mlynczakis apparently too short-sighted to realize that the person who voluntarily chooses to be at the mercy of welfare agencies is very rare. I have known, as a Chicago teacher and principal, many welfare recipients. Almost without exception, one of two factors is the cause. Either the person is without requisite knowledge and skill because the public schools have failed to provide them or there is a closed society defying his requests to be allowed to work at the same job with the same skills and motives as a white man. Public education cannot divorce itself from the need to be involved in attitudes, motives, and concepts of productive life.

Concerning Afro-American courses in Chicago schools: Mr. Mlynczak is absolutely wrong when he says that minority-oriented courses are limited to Negroes. In actual fact, largely as a result of Negro urging, special attention is now, at long last, being given in the textbook to the contributions of all minority groups. Traditionally, American history has been taught as if the Anglo-Saxon heritage was the only thing of significance in our country. Minority groups were passed over as statistics, relevant only to waves of "poor" people, immigrants, from Europe.

The Afro-American course, as such is offered as a senior year elective. It exists as a response to the fact that a man can hardly be expected to think much of himself when the entire white society has conspired for more than 300 years to make him believe that he is inferior. A strong antidote is required to overcome 300 years of poisoning. One ingredient of the antidote is the revelation of many, many contributions made by Negores.

ALSO, THERE has been and is an Afro-American culture which has rarely been given recognition. The Negro is no longer willing to admit that his culture is bad or inferior solely because it is different. Just as many groups of people of European origin strive to maintain some identity with their origins through festivals in old-country costumes, annual parades, traditional ceremonies, churches, and communities, the Negro must be allowed to maintain an identity with his culture. It is certainly within the realm of public education to utilize whatever will contribute to the education and orientation of an American citizen who will be willing and able to practice the American ideals, while retaining an individuality which need not be at odds with those ideals.

Other 'Moments'

Remember the column "Second Thoughts" that appeared in last Monday's, (Nov. 18), Herald?

There is little purpose except perhaps to make feeble excuses for using the weed. The readers, at this time, are smokers, non-smokers and smokers who are trying to quit.

MRS. DRESSER wants her cigarette.

Nowadays it is sometimes fashionable to attempt to save lives. The only people with anything good to say about smoking are those who are too weak willed to quit or too short-sighted to see its dangers.

Cigarette smoking is expensive, unattractive and probably dangerous to health.

The "cancer sticks" have become symbols of self-destruction for good reason.

I REMEMBER THE tears in a man's eyes after having a puff of smoke irritate them.

I remember the thankfulness in a woman's face when she finally kicked the habit.

I remember the sight of men pulling the smoke in deep and then writhing in spasms of fitful coughing.

I REMEMBER seeing people thoughtfully dump an ashtray full of dead butts and cigarette wrappers out of their car window.

Most American doctors are aware of the evidence of hazardous health effects that are tied to cigarettes. The cigarette isn't a joke; it's a death trap.

One has to wonder about people who realize that smoking is expensive and useless, and then proceed to clog up their lungs.

But I remember the people that took that last puff before falling asleep in bed only to wake up and find their house in flames.

CIGARETTE smoking is expensive, unattractive, and probably hazardous to health. But so is driving a car off of a cliff.

Frankly, I don't think I'd enjoy engaging in either activity when I know possible results.

Former Liberal

I read Larry Mlynczak's article in "Critic's Corner."

For a long time I thought I was considered a liberal, for I felt that all human beings should be privileged with equal rights — including the Negro — but I must admit, in the last year or so, the continued demands by the Negro race has had a tendency to divert me over to the strong conservative type of individual.

They are the ones who created this mental attitude, for I, like you, agree that the Negro is no longer deprived of equal rights; he now has special privileged rights — and the thought of it is alarming.

Your article laid all the facts plainly on the table, and I want you to know that I, for one, respect and appreciate the courage you showed by outwardly stating your views.

Fast Village Action

I would like to publicly thank the members of the Palatine Village Board for the courteous fast action on installing crossing lanes and "Pedestrian Crossing" signs in Winston Park. Five concerned mothers approached the board one Monday evening, and the next week the lanes were painted on the streets and the poles installed. Two days ago, the yellow signs "Pedestrian Crossing" were put up.

In actual fact, largely as a result of Negro urging, special attention is now, at long last, being given in the textbook to the contributions of all minority groups. Traditionally, American history has been taught as if the Anglo-Saxon heritage was the only thing of significance in our country. Minority groups were passed over as statistics, relevant only to waves of "poor" people, immigrants, from Europe.

The Afro-American course, as such is offered as a senior year elective. It exists as a response to the fact that a man can hardly be expected to think much of himself when the entire white society has conspired for more than 300 years to make him believe that he is inferior. A strong antidote is required to overcome 300 years of poisoning. One ingredient of the antidote is the revelation of many, many contributions made by Negores.

ALSO, THERE has been and is an Afro-American culture which has rarely been given recognition. The Negro is no longer willing to admit that his culture is bad or inferior solely because it is different. Just as many groups of people of European origin strive to maintain some identity with their origins through festivals in old-country costumes, annual parades, traditional ceremonies, churches, and communities, the Negro must be allowed to maintain an identity with his culture. It is certainly within the realm of public education to utilize whatever will contribute to the education and orientation of an American citizen who will be willing and able to practice the American ideals, while retaining an individuality which need not be at odds with those ideals.

Other 'Moments'

Remember the column "Second Thoughts" that appeared in last Monday's, (Nov. 18), Herald?

There is little purpose except perhaps to make feeble excuses for using the weed. The readers, at this time, are smokers, non-smokers and smokers who are trying to quit.

MRS. DRESSER wants her cigarette.

Nowadays it is sometimes fashionable to attempt to save lives. The only people with anything good to say about smoking are those who are too weak willed to quit or too short-sighted to see its dangers.

Cigarette smoking is expensive, unattractive and probably dangerous to health.

The "cancer sticks" have become symbols of self-destruction for good reason.

I REMEMBER THE tears in a man's eyes after having a puff of smoke irritate them.

I remember the thankfulness in a woman's face when she finally kicked the habit.

I remember the sight of men pulling the smoke in deep and then writhing in spasms of fitful coughing.

I REMEMBER seeing people thoughtfully dump an ashtray full of dead butts and cigarette wrappers out of their car window.

Most American doctors are aware of the evidence of hazardous health effects that are tied to cigarettes. The cigarette isn't a joke; it's a death trap.

One has to wonder about people who realize that smoking is expensive and useless, and then proceed to clog up their lungs.

But I remember the people that took that last puff before falling asleep in bed only to wake up and find their house in flames.

CIGARETTE smoking is expensive, unattractive, and probably hazardous to health. But so is driving a car off of a cliff.

Frankly, I don't think I'd enjoy engaging in either activity when I know possible results.

I read Larry Mlynczak's article in "Critic's Corner."

For a long time I thought I was considered a liberal, for I felt that all human beings should be privileged with equal rights — including the Negro — but I must admit, in the last year or so, the continued demands by the Negro race has had a tendency to divert me over to the strong conservative type of individual.

They are the ones who created this mental attitude, for I, like you, agree that the Negro is no longer deprived of equal rights; he now has special privileged rights — and the thought of it is alarming.

Your article laid all the facts plainly on the table, and I want you to know that I, for one, respect and appreciate the courage you showed by outwardly stating your views.

Fast Village Action

I would like to publicly thank the members of the Palatine Village Board for the courteous fast action on installing crossing lanes and "Pedestrian Crossing" signs in Winston Park. Five concerned mothers approached the board one Monday evening, and the next week the lanes were painted on the streets and the poles installed. Two days ago, the yellow signs "Pedestrian Crossing" were put up.

To Help Understand Others, Try Using The 'Proud Whip'

The "proud whip" was one of several techniques discussed to help bring better understanding between peoples at Tuesday night's Growth Workshop in Human Relations at Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows.

By asking each person to state "that which he is most proud of in his life" a depth discussion on values and our relations to other people evolved.

The group was led by Fred Miller of the Elk Grove Training and Development Center and Jim Sheehan an instructor at Arlington High School. Teachers and students from the area discovered that though accomplishments in their lives made them happy, existing values would not allow them to "brag" about an accomplishment of which they could say they were particularly proud.

RELATED to other people and other and other types of peoples "the proud whip" can lead to the realization that "if we as individuals have no one thing of whirh we can say we are particularly proud we can than better understand the short comings of others," Miller said.

Among other ideas discussed at the workshop, sponsored by the Instructional Resource Center of Elk Grove, was exploring ways students can get involved with the existing establishment in schools and in the community to help improve human relation studies.

"DIST. 214 will listen, not just to proposals for new sources but to improve old ones too," one participant said.

"How do you take racism out of literature courses," was suggested as a question for exploration by students.

Students were told to solicit the aid of teachers toward such exploration.

Also proposed was developing a bibliography of human relations materials and the continuance of discussion group at the neighborhood level and among persons with special area interest on the human relations subject.

THE PROGRAM attended by over 100 persons was one of six sessions taking place through Dec. 5. The next meeting is tonight. Student power will be discussed by Dr. Fred Erickson of the University of Illinois during the meeting being held at Sacred Heart High School from 7 until 9:30 p.m.

Humphrey's 'Home' To Consider Future

WASHINGTON UPI — Hubert H. Humphrey is back in the nation's capital and intends to "stay right here" for the time being.

THE VICE president returned to Washington Tuesday, telling reporters he had gained eight pounds on his Caribbean vacation and was faced with a "problem of abundant opportunities" for the future.

The defeated presidential candidate drove with his wife Muriel directly to their Harbor Square apartment in Washington.

Says Industries Lag In Pollution Battle

CHICAGO UPI — Neither the automobile nor petroleum industries are doing enough about pollution, Ford Motor Co. Board Chairman Henry Ford II said in a speech delivered for him Tuesday.

The public is generally disappointed with the purification efforts that have been made, he said.

The speech to the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute here was read for Ford by Theodore H. Mecke Jr., a Ford Motor Co. vice president. The board chairman was ill and unable to attend.

"OUR JOINT problems are bigger and more urgent than ever," Ford said of two of the largest American industries. Both industries, he said, are going to have to be far more sensitive to public needs.

Pollution is not the only problem, the chairman said.

"The major cities of the world are the major markets for motor vehicles and in virtually every one of these cities, the public is increasingly impatient with the difficulties of driving and parking," Ford said in charting other problems his industry faced.

He also listed traffic accidents, overtaxed facilities for vehicle service and repair and the disruption of cities by highway construction projects as elements in the urban picture that were causing public frustration with the automobile companies and related industries.

FORD SAID efforts at ending pollution have not been concerted enough and that "it is increasingly apparent that our efforts are lagging behind public expectations.

"Both as citizens and customers, the public is becoming more and more impatient with the frustrations associated with growing reliance on your products and ours to meet transportation needs," Ford told the petroleum producers.

The cumulative effect of public impatience with automobile related problems, Ford said, is "increasing support for public policies to encourage rail transportation."

Kellerman New Health Unit VP

Lawrence Kellerman, engineering co-ordinator for Symons Manufacturing Co., Des Plaines, was elected vice president of the Northwest Mental Health Assn., 1711 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, this week.

Kellerman has been active in association work for the past year as a member of the board of directors, chairman of the long-range planning committee, and member of the housing and other committees.

The Northwest Mental Health Assn. was formed six years ago by citizens of Elk Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg and Wheeling townships for the advancement of mental health. Through its Arlington Heights facility, the Northwest Mental Health Clinic, offers out patient psychiatric services to residents of the four townships.

LAWRENCE KELLERMAN

THE CLINIC recently undertook, jointly with Clearbrook Center for the Retarded and St. Alexius Hospital, an extensive survey of all services for the mentally ill and the retarded in the four-township area, as a preface to the establishment of comprehensive community mental health services.

As chairman of the long-range planning committee, Kellerman was active in the discussion leading to the signing of the survey contract.

Kellerman lives with his wife and two children in Rolling Meadows.

3 Churchmen In Pastoral Ed Program

Three Northwest suburban churchmen, Jurgen Bartholdi, Prince of Peace Lutheran, Hoffman Estates; Keith H. Eilers, Trinity Lutheran Roselle; and Fred Meyer, Grace Lutheran, Prospect Heights, are participating in a pastoral education program.

The educational program is offered by Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, through its department of pastoral care.

Twenty-one students spending their third year of seminary full-time in area congregations are enrolled in the program.

CHAPLAIN Willard Wagner is co-ordinating the program. It is designed to give the students a better understanding of the role of the pastor, to improve the skills of the ministry and to develop greater self awareness.

The students meet at the hospital each Tuesday for lectures, group discussions and observations.

$500 Grants Offered By Hospital

Two $500 scholarships are being offered to area high school seniors planning a career in the health field. The scholarships are being presented by the Service League of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

This is the third year the Service League is offering these scholarships.

"Our area as well as our entire nation faces a critical shortage of skilled personnel in the health field. This is one step the Service League is taking to help meet this shortage," said Mrs. Martin Bengtsen, Service League president.

Information on the awards will be available through high school guidance departments or from the Service League office at Lutheran General Hospital.

'Something Which Invites Violence'

5 Years Later, Family Reflects

by DAVID HASKELL

HFANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — "Sometimes I wonder there is something about my family which invites violence."

This thought by Mrs. Rose Kennedy probably is on the minds of the rest of her family as they reflect on the tragedy in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963 — five years ago today — when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated.

Each member of the Kennedy family will, in his or her own way, honor the memory of JFK on the grim anniversary.

Though they may be miles apart, the Kennedys will be bound together by the fabled Kennedy spirit and family strength. There will be fleeting thoughts of what might have been but — more characteristically — more of what will be.

ROSE, THE mother of the brood that has known immense personal suffering down through the years, will attend a concelebrated requiem low Mass in memory of JFK at 7:30 p.m. at St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church in Hyannis. The father, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, has been confined to a wheelchair since 1961. He will remain at home.

Edward M. Kennedy, the young Massachusetts senator on whose shoulders now rests the weight of the Kennedy burden and glory, was undecided about his plans. He may remain in Washington and pay respect to his brother's memory in his own personal way, or he may join his mother in Hyannis Port.

It was not known whether he or any other member of the Kennedy family planned to visit the late President's gravesite at Arlington National Cemetery.

THE PRESIDENT'S widow Jacqueline, now Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, arrived back in New York this week but her plans for today were not immediately known. A spokesman said she would probably attend a memorial Mass in New York with her two children, John Jr., 7, and Caroline, 10.

This morning, Rose Kennedy is to appear on a taped segment of the "Today" television show in New York to announce the designation of the day as National Flame of Hope Day because, she said, her son's life "has been a flame of hope to so many millions of people."

Flame of Hope is a project for the mentally retarded which designs products that can be manufactured by and sold for them.

Much has happened to the family since those sad days five years ago, recalled most vividly by a photo of John Jr., saluting as the casket bearing his father passed by. The Kennedy spirit and courage have been repeatedly tested.

THE FAMILY knew deep grief before the President was slain as he rode in an open car under sunny skies in Dallas. Eldest son Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., was killed in World War II, followed shortly by the death of a daughter in a plane crash.

Edward survived a brush with death four years ago in a plane crash. Then, this June 5, Senator Robert Kennedy fell victim to the same fate as JFK, murdered by an assassin's bullet.

When the President was slain, Robert became the leader of the vast following the Kennedys had amassed. He had picked up the standard of his fallen brother and, this year, decided to enter the presidential race.

ON THE NIGHT of his victory in the California primary, Robert was murdered. The tragedy that seems to haunt the Kennedys continued.

What Robert had tried to do was passed on to Edward. Many urged Edward to seek the presidency this year. He declined, a move his mother said was the "right decision," but she also said "he should go on in politics."

Edward, 36, said after Robert's death, "There is no safety in hiding." He said he must pick up the "fallen standard of his brothers."

ALREADY A move is under way to get the presidential nomination for Edward in 1972. A New York group called HOPE (Help Organize People Early) is sending out buttons bearing "EMK-1972." EMK are Edward's initials.

Jacqueline Lee Bouvier Kennedy became a symbol of strength to the nation and the world by her example of dignity and courage after seeing her husband assassinated before her eyes.

During these five years, her life was marred by only one controversy until her marriage last month to Onassis, that with author William Manchester in 1966 when she tried to stop publication of his book, "Death of a President," which she alleged was in part "both tasteless and distorted." She later withdrew her action after certain passages had been deleted.

For her, a new life began when, on Oct. 20 she married Aristotle Onassis, multi-millionaire Greek shipping magnate. But the memory of Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963, can never be erased.

Draft Director: Go Easier Taking Graduate Students

WASHINGTON UPI — Draft director Lewis B. Hershey has advised local boards to allow drafted graduate students to finish their school terms before they are required to report for induction, selective service headquarters says.

The new policy was adopted Tuesday to ease the impact of the draft on the students and the nation's graduate schools.

Feb. 15, on the advice of the National Security Council, Hershey ordered an end to academic defferments for graduate students other than those in medicine.

MANY FIRST-YEAR graduate students declined to enroll because their 1-A status could have made them eligible for the draft at any time.

Hershey's new policy was intended to ensure that the students' investment of time and funds for tuition, housing and books would not be lost by the arrival of a draft notice in the middle of a term, a spokesman said.

But affected students will have to report for induction when their semester, quarter or trimester ends.

Hershey's advice, in the form of an advisory message to state draft directors, is not binding, but usually is followed by local and state boards.

PRECEPT; a command respecting moral conduct. "He was better versed in precepts than in practice."

TV to Aid Hospital Staff and Patients

Closed-circuit television soon will be an active part in patient and staff activities at St. Alexius Hospital, Elk Grove Village.

Hospital spokesmen announced that the installation will permit patients unable to leave their rooms to tune in services from the hospital chapel, and hospital personnel will use the new equipment for in-service instruction.

The system will also use pretaped lectures on various topics of medical interests.

PLANS INCLUDE facilities for broadcasts to originate or be received in areas of the hospital, including the emergency room, nursery, labor and delivery rooms, surgery, Stritch Hall and the front lobby.

Patient rooms all have television sets, which can be used for both commercial and hospital broadcasts.

ON THE NIGHT of his victory in the California primary, Robert was murdered. The tragedy that seems to haunt the Kennedys continued.

What Robert had tried to do was passed on to Edward. Many urged Edward to seek the presidency this year. He declined, a move his mother said was the "right decision," but she also said "he should go on in politics."

Edward, 36, said after Robert's death, "There is no safety in hiding." He said he must pick up the "fallen standard of his brothers."

ALREADY A move is under way to get the presidential nomination for Edward in 1972. A New York group called HOPE (Help Organize People Early) is sending out buttons bearing "EMK-1972." EMK are Edward's initials.

Jacqueline Lee Bouvier Kennedy became a symbol of strength to the nation and the world by her example of dignity and courage after seeing her husband assassinated before her eyes.

During these five years, her life was marred by only one controversy until her marriage last month to Onassis, that with author William Manchester in 1966 when she tried to stop publication of his book, "Death of a President," which she alleged was in part "both tasteless and distorted." She later withdrew her action after certain passages had been deleted.

For her, a new life began when, on Oct. 20 she married Aristotle Onassis, multi-millionaire Greek shipping magnate. But the memory of Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963, can never be erased.

Draft Director: Go Easier Taking Graduate Students

WASHINGTON UPI — Draft director Lewis B. Hershey has advised local boards to allow drafted graduate students to finish their school terms before they are required to report for induction, selective service headquarters says.

The new policy was adopted Tuesday to ease the impact of the draft on the students and the nation's graduate schools.

Feb. 15, on the advice of the National Security Council, Hershey ordered an end to academic defferments for graduate students other than those in medicine.

MANY FIRST-YEAR graduate students declined to enroll because their 1-A status could have made them eligible for the draft at any time.

Hershey's new policy was intended to ensure that the students' investment of time and funds for tuition, housing and books would not be lost by the arrival of a draft notice in the middle of a term, a spokesman said.

But affected students will have to report for induction when their semester, quarter or trimester ends.

Hershey's advice, in the form of an advisory message to state draft directors, is not binding, but usually is followed by local and state boards.

PRECEPT; a command respecting moral conduct. "He was better versed in precepts than in practice."

TV to Aid Hospital Staff and Patients

Closed-circuit television soon will be an active part in patient and staff activities at St. Alexius Hospital, Elk Grove Village.

Hospital spokesmen announced that the installation will permit patients unable to leave their rooms to tune in services from the hospital chapel, and hospital personnel will use the new equipment for in-service instruction.

The system will also use pretaped lectures on various topics of medical interests.

PLANS INCLUDE facilities for broadcasts to originate or be received in areas of the hospital, including the emergency room, nursery, labor and delivery rooms, surgery, Stritch Hall and the front lobby.

Patient rooms all have television sets, which can be used for both commercial and hospital broadcasts.

REAL CONVERSATION starter is this old medicine chest hanging on the brick fireplace wall that divides living and dining rooms. Antiqued in soft green, the cabinet displays diminutive treasures on its three shelves. Pulls on the four tiny drawers are of crude wire.

TASTEFUL SELECTION is more important than cost in creating a charming setting. Inexpensive fishbowl filled with fall flowers sits next a French antique lamp reproduced in Bristol blue glass and a Danish china figurine atop a copy of a Pennsylvania Dutch chest in the entry of the Charles Look townhouse. Italian cut crystal sconce and oval antique mirror complete the setting.

How Suburbia Lives

The Decorator's Touch

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

If you appreciate home decorating that's individual and elegant, you'd find it a treat just to step into the entry of the Arlington Heights townhouse of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Look.

LaVerne Look formerly owned and operated the Chandelier Shop in Arlington where she sold antiques and home furnishings and provided custom decorating service. She firmly endorses "eclectic" decorating. Straight decorating, she thinks, can produce a "furniture store look."

"It's the individual touches that make a home!" she asserts.

A chandelier is the first thing to catch the eye as one enters the Looks' townhouse. Purchased in Old Town, the fixture, originally an old gas jet, has open flower shades of opaline glass and is fashioned of ornate antique iron finished to resemble gold leaf.

LUSH WOOL velvet pile carpeting and champagne-colored walls provide the background for entrance and formal living and dining areas of this compact residence.

A silk, hand-painted Japanese screen impels immediate attention as one enters the living room. An artist's floral fantasy, the four-paneled screen is in colors of gold, white, gray, charcoal and burnt orange. It's displayed on a white wall behind a loose-cushioned, over-sized couch covered in almond cotton velvet.

Two modified wingback chairs, slipcovered in imported English fabric of blue and almond print, flank the sofa. The chairs are upholstered in a windowpane plaid of pinks and reds and, with change of wall hangings and sofa cushions, are used during the winter that way, Mrs. Look explained.

"FOR A SMALL expenditure you can give any room a seasonal change and a tremendous facial lift with slipcovers," stated LaVerne.

Charles Look, a sales engineer, is proud of his wife's abilities in judging antiques and in home decorating, but "he once lost confidence in me," LaVerne confided. Their restored secretary from the Lincoln era was "in terrible condition" when she bought it for $75, "a real steal," said LaVerne. Charles thought she had lost her talent to evaluate antiques. But ultimately she was offered $400 for the restored pine piece, fashioned with wooden pegs.

Displayed on the desk are a family heirloom china shaving mug, inscribed "Charles Look" and embellished with hand-painted birds and flowers; a dark green Tole lamp with white shade and an antique black iron "eagle" inkwell.

OTHER antique furniture in the living room includes a cherrywood record cabinet with cane-paneled doors and hand-painted china knobs and a walnut commode containing three drawers with carved fruit pulls, the latter purchased at a Schaumburg horse farm.

To blend with her antiques, the hazel-eyed decorator has chosen Country French occasional tables in dark, distressed fruitwood. Bunching tables with black slate surfaces and hand-carved side designs are set in front of the couch with a drum table placed at one end. A rectangular matching table sits beside one wingback chair. Assorted antique objets d'art adorn each table.

LaVerne Look has selected lamps of Far East beauty to light her living room. White, pleated, hand-sewn silk shades top an antique, brushed brass urn-shaped lamp from China and a hand-carved, Oriental god figurine from Thailand.

"I'm on an Oriental Kick," she admitted.

A PROFUSION of waxed lemon leaves fill a copper and brass, antique coal shuttle to brighten another corner of the room. Mrs. Look also uses lots of greenery for liveliness, favoring ferns, which are scattered liberally throughout the townhouse.

Window treatment suggests airiness with white, stationary sheers coupled with walnut stained shutters at the front windows and an hour-glass sheer covering a side window. Floor-length sheers in the dining room have side drapes and valances added for cold weather.

A latticed side window in this sunken room is bare for enjoyment of natural scenery, which includes a lake.

LaVerne Look believes she may possess a talent for prescience in home fashion trends. Citing the Tiffany shade in the dining room as an example,

LAVERNE LOOK has put her decorator's sense to work creating a distinctive and elegant townhouse home for herself and her husband, Charles, in Arlington Heights' Regency Park. The family circle also includes Nick, the dog. This handpainted silk Japanese screen is just one of the decorator touches described in today's "How Suburbia Lives."

LaVERNE LOOK'S love of antiques is apparent throughout the home. In the bedroom a more contemporary woven basket chest combines with several old pieces and an old-fashioned floral print wallpaper to create this appealing corner.

COUNTRY FRENCH furnishings in the dining room are complemented by bright blue and green decor. Tulip-shaped Tiffany shade in variegated greens trimmed in brass blends with pure Thailand silk handwoven stole in blues, greens and champagne, used as a table runner, and the watercolors displayed on two walls.

And an automatic meat probe that cooks meat to an exact doneness, then switches the oven to a keep-warm temperature.

Then there's the Thermo-Set® burner-with-a-brain that adjusts automatically. Eliminates boil-over.

Not to mention all the other features that have made gas ranges the kind nine out of ten Chicagoland chefs won't stir without—like precision-controlled top-of-stove cooking and instant-on, instant-off burners.

Take a self-cleaning oven away from a Caloric gas range, and what have you got?

The finest cooking machine going:

A gas range.

A gas range with an Ultra-Ray® infrared broiler to cook meat quickly. (With the same eye-appealing browning you get doing it the slower way.)

And an automatic meat probe that cooks meat to an exact doneness, then switches the oven to a keep-warm temperature.

Then there's the Thermo-Set® burner-with-a-brain that adjusts automatically. Eliminates boil-over.

Not to mention all the other features that have made gas ranges the kind nine out of ten Chicagoland chefs won't stir without—like precision-controlled top-of-stove cooking and instant-on, instant-off burners.

Visit your Northern Illinois Gas office or appliance dealer and find out all the other reasons why the most important thing about a new self-cleaning oven is the package it comes in—a modern gas range.

Channel 11 To Air War Toys Question

WTTW/Channel 11 will investigate the charge that war toys lead children to a passive acceptance of violence on "Your Dollar's Worth" Wednesday, Nov. 27, at 8 p.m. (repeated on Channel 20 at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2).

Psychiatrist Dr. Fredric Wertham feels that because of such toys, children are not able to distinguish between make-believe and real violence and that a mass conditioning toward violence results.

Representatives from the toy industry, who point out that the toy gun business has not declined despite the recent outcry against violence, refute the psychiatrist's opinion by saying that children only emulate the best part of society.

Viewers will also see a psychologist's interpretation of a child's response to toy commercials.

THE TOPIC of toy advertising will be discussed by Henry Orenstein, president of De Luxe Toppe, one of the largest advertisers, and Frank Stanton, president of Cragston Toys, a company that does not advertise. They will debate the pros and cons of advertising, how much it affects the quality and cost of the product and the snob appeal which it adds to many expensive products.

The true worth of educational toys, which the program claims are primarily designed to appeal to parents, will be discussed by representatives from F.A.O. Schwartz, New York's celebrated toy store, and from the education department at Queen's College. Visits also will be made to a planning conference at the Mattel Company in California, the world's largest toy company and manufacturers of the "Barbie" doll.

"Your Dollar's Worth — Toys" is a production of National Educational Television. Harry McCarthy is the executive producer.

by LORRAINE L. BLAIR

Question: Which is the better investment today — bonds or stocks?

Mrs. T. Y.

Answer: Generally speaking, in an inflationary period, stocks are the better investment. Of course, it depends upon your personal financial situation and objectives.

Question: What are the three outstanding characteristics of mutual funds?

Mr. E. R.

Answer: a. Diversification. b. Co-mingling. c. Professional money management.

Question: How old do you have to be to make a will?

Mr. W. A.

Answer: You must be at least 18 years of age.

Question: If I start a charge account at a department store, how do they go about checking my credit rating?

Mrs. C. B.

Answer: They can check with the Retail Credit Bureau and other similar organizations. Also the places and persons you have given as references or other places where you have a charge account.

Question: I planted some flowering shrubs around my house this spring. Can I treat this landscaping cost as a capital investment for tax purposes?

Mr. I. T.

Answer: Yes, expenditures for landscaping can be added to the cost of your property. However, this would not include normal maintenance and care of the shrubs and lawn.

Questions regarding personal money management or finance may be sent directly to Lorraine L. Blair, Finance Forum, 30 N. LaSalle, Chicago, 60602.

Pork, Beef Okayed For Thanksgiving

A turkey dinner is the traditional feast of Thanksgiving. But now the president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board suggests homemakers needn't feel tradition-bound if they prefer to serve a roast beef or roast pork on the coming holiday.

David H. Stroud says there is some historical evidence that pork and beef graced the Pilgrims' tables on that first Thanksgiving Day.

He quotes one historic source that states the women spent many days preparing for the feast and that "children were kept busy turning roasts on spits or rods in front of open fires."

THESE ROASTS, according to Stroud, could have been venison brought by friendly Indians but they also could have been beef or pork as the Pilgrims brought cattle and hogs with them on the Mayflower.

"It is true that in order to build future meat supplies, the Pilgrims made an effort to live off wild animals rather than slaughter the few animals they had brought with them," said Stroud. "However, since this was a very special occasion for rejoicing and feasting, it's possible the ban on slaughtering livestock was lifted as part of the Thanksgiving observance."

So, homemakers, the choice is yours. Defy tradition — if you dare!

Storkfeathers

Couple Races Stork, Twins to Hospital

It usually takes half an hour for George R. Graham to drive home from work, but on Nov. 13 he made it in a flat 15 minutes.

The big rush was the result of a call from Mrs. Graham, who thought it would be convenient to meet the stork at the hospital — especially since twins were suspected. The Grahams arrived at Northwest Community Hospital with no time to spare before Donna Jane and David John arrived just minutes apart.

Now home at 2302 Park St., Rolling Meadows, the 5 pound 14 ounce little girl and the 6 pound 10 ounce little boy are receiving more than their share of attention from their two brothers, Raymond, 8½, and Jerry, 1½, and their two sisters, Cheryl, 7, and Theresa, 4½.

"All of the children are a great help," reports Mrs. Graham," and all are very excited over the double birth, even young Jerry."

Storkfeathers

Couple Races Stork, Twins to Hospital

It usually takes half an hour for George R. Graham to drive home from work, but on Nov. 13 he made it in a flat 15 minutes.

TINY TURKEY GOBBLERS

by MARILYN HALLMAN

Let these tiny Tom Turkeys gobble at your Thanksgiving table!

A snap clothespin and some construction paper are all you need to make one. Cut three half circles of different colored construction paper —all the same size. (Draw around the bottom of a tin can for your cutting line.) Fringe the curved edges with scissors. Snap the straight edges together with the clothespin.

Cut a turkey body and head. Glue them to the clothespin. Draw on the turkey's face. Gently separate the tail feathers so that all the colors show. Use these little turkeys as table favors.

Ask Arlington Juniorettes To Assist at Sesqui Fete

Arlington "Juniorettes" will take part in the Arlington Heights celebration of the Illinois Sesquicentennial Year on Sunday. A letter read at their first meeting, Nov. 16, invited the club to send six girls to help serve refreshments from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Evangelical Free Church where dedication of the Historical Society Museum will take place.

Carol Jernberg, Joan Almdale, Susan Sowa, Laura Behrens, Nancy Marier and Maureen Michalski will do the serving. Alternates are Marcia Tindall and Sally Erbach.

THE INITIAL service project of the club, which is sponsored by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club, is to provide guides for the Historical Society on a continuing basis each Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Duties will consist of admitting and greeting visitors and answering questions about the articles on exhibit.

A temporary chairman, Jan Leird, and temporary secretary, Maureen Michalski, were named, and a committee was chosen to study by-laws of other Juniorette clubs in Canton, Ohio, and Whiting, Ind.

MARCIA TINDALL is chairman of a committee offering volunteer help in homes for the aged. She is assisted by Nancy Spethman and Vicki Dellacecca. Carol Jernberg is writing a serviceman in Viet Nam to give assistance in restoring a bombed orphanage there.

Peggy Wright is temporary publicity chairman, assisted by representatives from area high schools: Maureen Michalski, Prospect; Susan Sowa, Forest View; Joan Hitzemann, Sacred Heart of Mary; and Kathy Hruby, an Arlington student who will see that publicity reaches Hersey High School.

MONEY TO establish a club treasury will be raised at the Dec. 7 meeting in a "Christmas Swap." The girls will bring white elephant gifts, attractively wrapped, and bid on them without knowing the contents.

The meeting place is Pioneer Park Fieldhouse at 2 p.m. Joan Almsdale heads the refreshment committee.

Cover Wall Cracks With Wood Paneling

Older homes are frequently an excellent buy for the young, growing family, but almost always they require extensive redecorating.

Old plastered walls that are cracked, bulging or out of plumb are a special problem. Many interior designers recommend simply covering them up with an entirely new wall surface of lumber paneling.

The job is relatively simple. For vertical paneling, three furring strips, usually 1x2-inch pieces, are mounted over the existing wall, one at the top, one centered, and one just above the base shoe. The furring strips are screwed through the plaster and into the wall studs behind.

TONGUE-and-groove boards are blind-nailed to the furring strips, with the nail set through the board's tongue. Each board is plumbed separately, using the tongue-and-groove for adjustment.

Cornice moldings and base shoes are removed before the paneling is installed, then are replaced.

Panel board patterns and finishes can be chosen to suit any style of room interior. A full-color booklet of ideas is available for just 10 cents in coin. Write to "Paneling," Dept. 504-P, Western Wood Products Assn., Yeon Bldg., Portland, Ore. 97204.

It's Different

A truly different wall covering can be created with 1x1-inch strips of lumber applied vertically with edges butted together. It's great for the back of a room divider or as an accent for a tiny entryway. The surface will be slightly uneven, but that accents the pattern.

Carol Jernberg, Joan Almdale, Susan Sowa, Laura Behrens, Nancy Marier and Maureen Michalski will do the serving. Alternates are Marcia Tindall and Sally Erbach.

THE INITIAL service project of the club, which is sponsored by Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club, is to provide guides for the Historical Society on a continuing basis each Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Duties will consist of admitting and greeting visitors and answering questions about the articles on exhibit.

A temporary chairman, Jan Leird, and temporary secretary, Maureen Michalski, were named, and a committee was chosen to study by-laws of other Juniorette clubs in Canton, Ohio, and Whiting, Ind.

MARCIA TINDALL is chairman of a committee offering volunteer help in homes for the aged. She is assisted by Nancy Spethman and Vicki Dellacecca. Carol Jernberg is writing a serviceman in Viet Nam to give assistance in restoring a bombed orphanage there.

Peggy Wright is temporary publicity chairman, assisted by representatives from area high schools: Maureen Michalski, Prospect; Susan Sowa, Forest View; Joan Hitzemann, Sacred Heart of Mary; and Kathy Hruby, an Arlington student who will see that publicity reaches Hersey High School.

MONEY TO establish a club treasury will be raised at the Dec. 7 meeting in a "Christmas Swap." The girls will bring white elephant gifts, attractively wrapped, and bid on them without knowing the contents.

The meeting place is Pioneer Park Fieldhouse at 2 p.m. Joan Almsdale heads the refreshment committee.

Cover Wall Cracks With Wood Paneling

Older homes are frequently an excellent buy for the young, growing family, but almost always they require extensive redecorating.

Old plastered walls that are cracked, bulging or out of plumb are a special problem. Many interior designers recommend simply covering them up with an entirely new wall surface of lumber paneling.

The job is relatively simple. For vertical paneling, three furring strips, usually 1x2-inch pieces, are mounted over the existing wall, one at the top, one centered, and one just above the base shoe. The furring strips are screwed through the plaster and into the wall studs behind.

TONGUE-and-groove boards are blind-nailed to the furring strips, with the nail set through the board's tongue. Each board is plumbed separately, using the tongue-and-groove for adjustment.

Cornice moldings and base shoes are removed before the paneling is installed, then are replaced.

Panel board patterns and finishes can be chosen to suit any style of room interior. A full-color booklet of ideas is available for just 10 cents in coin. Write to "Paneling," Dept. 504-P, Western Wood Products Assn., Yeon Bldg., Portland, Ore. 97204.

It's Different

A truly different wall covering can be created with 1x1-inch strips of lumber applied vertically with edges butted together. It's great for the back of a room divider or as an accent for a tiny entryway. The surface will be slightly uneven, but that accents the pattern.

THIS SIGNMAKR may not win a spelling bee, but members of Arlington Heights Team of the Chicago Maternity Center are planning to win the support of their friends for their 16th annual cocktail and dinner dance. Mrs. Roger Stinson, Mrs. John W. Glueckert and Mrs. Jack Whisler demonstrate the theme of the benefit, "Happiness Is. . .Babies." A top social event of the winter season, the affair will be held Feb. 15 at Itasca Country Club. Invitations will be in the mail after New Year's.

Viet Nam Group Seeks Community's Support

Service flags are now available to local families with members serving in the Armed Forces. A donation from the Mount Prospect State Bank to the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club's Viet Nam and Veterans Department has made this possible. Mrs. Byrd Pollard, department chairman, asks interested parties to phone her at 392-9288 for further information.

The department is asking the community to supply names and addresses of servicemen and women to receive the packages sent in a continuous mailing project. Also requested are items to be included in the mailings, such as: fruit cakes, non-chocolate candy, gum, dried fruit, playing cards, toothbrushes, dark colored terry wash cloths, nail clippers, paperback books, lighter flints, "Wash 'n' Dri," plastic soap and cigarette cases, plastic bags (sandwich size), sunglasses, small puzzles or games, harmonicas, small canned hams, canned fish, writing paper, self-seal envelopes, magnetic chess or checker sets, money clips and cookies baked without butter.

ARRANGEMENTS for pick-up of the above can be made with Mrs. Pollard. Cash donations to be used for postage are appreciated.

Christmas packages have been sent to the following, Pvt. Michael Clark; S. Sgt. James Kamaryt; Sp.4 Lester N. Shoener and Wally Biela; Cpl. Robert W. Lyons; Lance Cpt. Gideon Haynes; and to four hospitals in Viet Nam.

Members of the department are planning to visit a ward at Great Lakes Naval Hospital Saturday, Nov. 23. They also plan to send a gift of 25 Barbie Dolls and 25 Matt Helm dolls to Downey Hospital in Downey, Ill. These were donated to the department and will be used by the patients as Christmas gifts to their children.

THE VIET NAM and Veterans Department is new this year. The above mentioned activities were previously considered part of the Home Life Department; however, it became evident that there were activities enough in this regard to warrant the formation of a seperate division.

Women interested in involving themselves with keeping servicemen aware that those at home do care, are urged to consider Junior Club membership through this department. For membership information, readers may contact Mrs. Monte Banister — 392-5740.

IN OBSERVANCE of Children's Book Week, the Literature, Drama and Fine Arts department of the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club participated with the Public Library in presenting a program of information Wednesday evening.

The program, held at the library, consisted of a film, "The Pleasure is Mutual," which deals with the selection and reading of books to young children, and a panel discussion. The panel was headed by Mrs. Gladys Ackley, children's librarian; members included Mrs. Roy Dahlke, Mrs. Dennis Noakes and Mrs. Walter Siekierski.

Designers Like Pants

by JOAN SWEENEY

LOS ANGELES: UPI—It's the year of the pants in women's fashions. And California sportswear designers heartily endorsed the trend in their spring line shown this week at the 18th annual California Fashion Creators' Press Week.

While the emphasis was on pants, there was no one look although legs were wider, particularly at the bottom, which may or may not be cuffed. Some were fit and flare legs while others were straight, reminiscent of the full-pleated slack of the early 1940s, except the fullness was achieved by darts rather than pleats at the waist.

JUMP SUITS were much in evidence. Sometimes the pants were paired with minidresses that could be worn alone, long tunics, jerkins, vests or blazers. The longer top that reached to below the hip was "in."

Charm of Hollywood added a new twist to the "see through" look with sheer voile pants worn under minidresses or long tunics and dubbed "see legs."

For instance, a lime print minidress with huge capelet collar was worn over lilac "see leg" pants.

CHARM'S version of the jump suit was a pink shadow plaid royal with wide, triple-tiered legs. Voile and ruffles also were found in the firm's dresses such as the iced pink skimmer with triple-tiered ruffle sleeves.

Alex Coleman matched his fit and flare pants with jerkin, voile shirt, blazer and even a tunic shirt with flared sleeves repeating the flare of the pant legs.

HE LIKED bold, red, white and blue stripes for his Americana look in pants and tops.

He showed a number of pant shifts. He also played up the shirtmaker's look in his shifts. He confined the bare look to his waffle pique tennis dress which had a peekaboo midriff.

Treat the Family To Eating Out

by DR. LAURENCE M. HURSH

A fast growing market for food in the United States is "away from home" eating. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the food service industry — accounting for an estimated $28 billion is a major outlet for the food produced by our nation's farms.

Restaurants and other food service organizations also are a major employer of labor. Nearly 3.3 million persons (including part-time workers) are employed in the food service industry during an average week.

Well, you say, shall we eat out tonight? And in doing so you join an over-expanding group of customers who frequent our public eating places, large or small, famous or only known in your neighborhood.

How can you be sure of eating nourishing meals that are at the same time not overnourishing? By practicing the same judgment that you do when you eat at home, perhaps a little more discipline. Things can, after all, taste so very good when you are eating out.

But the only real difference between eating at home or out, is that you are selecting your food ready cooked instead of raw at the supermarket. The same principles of nutrition apply. You can, and should, get the servings you need from the four food groups just as you do at home — meats, fish, and poultry, or cheese, or eggs; the dairy group of milk and its products; the vegetable and fruits group; and the enriched or whole wheat bread and cereals group.

At a restaurant, a much wider variety of choices is available to you than you could ever have at home. Also, each member of your family can order what he wishes, instead of having to share the same menu with the others. And then there are no dishes to wash.

It's a good family practice to find a restaurant you can afford, and one whose food pleases you. It should also be near enough home so that it can be a family treat that you indulge in with some frequency. It's nice both for you and your children to know the personnel and enjoy being their customer. This can be part of your children's upbringing, a very important part.

But try other restaurants, too, for variety and the excitement of discovery of a place new to you. Menus in the same restaurant often are quite the same, week in week out. Chefs, just like home cooks, tend to cook along the same lines. So seek variety, too.

Eating out will remind you of all the varieties of food preparation that exist. This in itself may make you inclined to come up with more interesting meals at home as well.

A Plane! My Kingdom For a Plane!

by PHIL NEWSOM

The Sahara sun boiled down on a gaily decked tent from which the president of Mali, Modibo Keita, spoke above the loud complaints of camels tethered alongside a new macadam airstrip.

This was Mali in the first flush of independence from France. Already, the desert sand was beginning to drift over the new runway.

And this was Timbuctu, "where the camel meets the canoe,' linked now by a new Malinese airline with Bamako, the capital, 400 miles away.

As visiting diplomats and other guests stewed in their own perspiration, Keita told them that this new airline would overcome desert barriers and act as a symbol of Mali's independence, unity and new prosperity.

DESPITE ITS size, twice that of Texas, Mali wasn't much of a country then and it isn't now. Literally, it had a peanut economy. Its chief export is peanuts.

And, like many another newly independent black African nation, it wanted to fly before it could walk or run. It needed an expensive national airline like Eskimos needed iceboxes.

Keita, more than six feet tall, imposing in his white robes, tough under a gracious exterior and a socialist in the African manner, became Mali's first president after a short-lived federation with Senegal in which he served as premier.

BUT KEITA, after receiving aid from both East and West, including the United States, was swinging close to the Red Chinese. A slogan in Bamako declared: "All the peoples of the world ardently love Chairman Mao."

With the Malinese economy slipping badly, it was too much for young officers in the Malinese army. This week, Keita fell to a bloodless coup.

Career Programs Booming at Harper

Two-year-old Harper Junior College hasn't been able to meet the demand for some of its new vocational career courses.

The community college had applications for twice as many potential nursing and dental hygiene students as it had room for.

FORTY STUDENTS are enrolled in first-year classes for both nursing and dental hygiene, the latter started this year.

Some 35 students are in their second year in the nursing course, which will qualify them for R.N. licenses.

Other career programs at Harper are also booming.

Some 300 students are taking data processing courses this fall and another 100 are signed up for law enforcement classes.

Electronics and mechanical design both have drawn triple the number of students they did in 1967-68, the year the college opened.

Film Aids Musical Teaching for Youth

Duties as a Harper Junior College division head haven't kept Dr. George Makas from thinking of music opportunities for younger students.

Makas has just put together a film strip series explaining music concepts to junior high and high school students.

A cartoon character, named "Music," is featured in the set.

PUBLISHERS OF the "Hello, I'm Music!" series is published by the EMC Corp. of St. Paul Minn.

At Harper, Makas directs the college chorus and choir and is in charge of scheduling this year's pioneer series of Harper concerts.

He also serves as chairman of the division of the humanities and fine arts for the two-year-old community college.

A Plane! My Kingdom For a Plane!

by PHIL NEWSOM

The Sahara sun boiled down on a gaily decked tent from which the president of Mali, Modibo Keita, spoke above the loud complaints of camels tethered alongside a new macadam airstrip.

This was Mali in the first flush of independence from France. Already, the desert sand was beginning to drift over the new runway.

And this was Timbuctu, "where the camel meets the canoe,' linked now by a new Malinese airline with Bamako, the capital, 400 miles away.

As visiting diplomats and other guests stewed in their own perspiration, Keita told them that this new airline would overcome desert barriers and act as a symbol of Mali's independence, unity and new prosperity.

DESPITE ITS size, twice that of Texas, Mali wasn't much of a country then and it isn't now. Literally, it had a peanut economy. Its chief export is peanuts.

And, like many another newly independent black African nation, it wanted to fly before it could walk or run. It needed an expensive national airline like Eskimos needed iceboxes.

Keita, more than six feet tall, imposing in his white robes, tough under a gracious exterior and a socialist in the African manner, became Mali's first president after a short-lived federation with Senegal in which he served as premier.

BUT KEITA, after receiving aid from both East and West, including the United States, was swinging close to the Red Chinese. A slogan in Bamako declared: "All the peoples of the world ardently love Chairman Mao."

With the Malinese economy slipping badly, it was too much for young officers in the Malinese army. This week, Keita fell to a bloodless coup.

Career Programs Booming at Harper

Two-year-old Harper Junior College hasn't been able to meet the demand for some of its new vocational career courses.

The community college had applications for twice as many potential nursing and dental hygiene students as it had room for.

FORTY STUDENTS are enrolled in first-year classes for both nursing and dental hygiene, the latter started this year.

Some 35 students are in their second year in the nursing course, which will qualify them for R.N. licenses.

Other career programs at Harper are also booming.

Some 300 students are taking data processing courses this fall and another 100 are signed up for law enforcement classes.

Electronics and mechanical design both have drawn triple the number of students they did in 1967-68, the year the college opened.

Film Aids Musical Teaching for Youth

Duties as a Harper Junior College division head haven't kept Dr. George Makas from thinking of music opportunities for younger students.

Makas has just put together a film strip series explaining music concepts to junior high and high school students.

A cartoon character, named "Music," is featured in the set.

PUBLISHERS OF the "Hello, I'm Music!" series is published by the EMC Corp. of St. Paul Minn.

At Harper, Makas directs the college chorus and choir and is in charge of scheduling this year's pioneer series of Harper concerts.

He also serves as chairman of the division of the humanities and fine arts for the two-year-old community college.

Kickin' It Around

By BOB FRISK

Things You Wonder About...

There are some things you wonder about.

You wonder why Northwestern doesn't go to 6-6 receiver Bruce Hubbard more.

The Wildcats don't have a ground attack and Hubbard, the big Arlington High product, catches practically everything thrown his way in the passing game. Unfortunately, they don't look his way as often as they should.

And Northwestern can't afford to ignore any way of moving that football.

You wonder how the National Collegiate Athletic Association can justify the following:

The University of Illinois basketball team is ineligible for NCAA championship play this season because of the slush fund scandal of two winters ago. But two "guilty" members in that episode — Rich Jones now at Memphis State and Steve Kuberski at Bradley — could play in the NCAA tourney if their schools qualify.

Figure that one out. There's not a member on this current Illinois basketball team who was implicated, including the coach, but Jones and Kuberski, who transferred, are eligible because their schools are eligible.

"Guilty" athletes are permitted to compete at other schools while innocent athletes are penalized at Illinois. That entire slush fund mess, and the handling of it by the Big Ten and NCAA, is still open for much debate today.

You wonder when the announcers who handle the American Football League games on Sundays are going to stop talking about New York Jets' quarterback Joe Namath as if he's the greatest quarterback to ever play the game. He's good, but not that good. It appears that the announcers must be instructed by the "upper echelon" to keep building up Namath.

You wonder how there can be any justification for keeping the dramatic collision between Michigan and Ohio State from appearing on television this Saturday. You'd like to hear one sound argument in favor of keeping fans from watching the live action on television. A sound argument.

You wonder if any team is going to catch the small but quick and experienced Wheeling Wildcats in the Mid-Suburban League basketball chase this winter.

You wonder why the high school basketball season has to start so early. Some games were played last weekend. What's the rush?

You wonder how a woman — as one did the other day in an area bowling league — can start with a game in the 90s, rocket to a booming 232, and then skid back down to around 100 again. What happened in that middle game?

You wonder if Steve Blass (Steve Blass?) of the Pittsburgh Pirates was the most underrated pitcher in baseball last summer. He was 18-6 with a 2.13 earned run average, but who ever heard anything about him — anywhere.

You wonder about the logic behind the rule that says the receiving team in pro football has the option of a free placement kick after a fair catch. Most rules in sport have a logical reason for being, but this one is baffling. The Bears may have won agame with it this fall, but it's still a puzzling rule.

You wonder when a College All-Star football coaching staff has ever been blessed with more available offensive talent. Look what they can choose from in this 1969 crop for the game next summer in Chicago:

If they're interested in moving the football, and who isn't, they have such talent to pick from as quarterback Terry Hanratty of Notre Dame, running backs O. J. Simpson of USC, Leroy Keyes of Purdue, Ron Johnson of Michigan, Larry Smith of Florida, and Chris Gilbert of Texas and receivers like Jim Seymour of Notre Dame, Ted Kwalick of Penn State, Ron Sellers of Florida State, and Jerry Levias of SMU.

They should be able to put together quite a package of offensive firepower to throw at the professional champion next August in Soldier Field. But they'll lose anyway.

And you wonder about some more things.

You wonder when an all-conference team has stirred up more controversy than the one put out by the Mid-Suburban League for 1968. And you wonder why the problems had to arise in the first place and why there has to be so much redtape involved even in picking an all-star team. Only the boys suffer.

You wonder if the fans miss — as you do — the "Sleigh Bells" basketball attraction between Palatine and Arlington that always used to pack 'em in on Thanksgiving Eve.

You wonder how many more high schools will be adding lights to their fields now that Prospect and Wheeling have experienced such success with night football. Who said it couldn't be done? Where are the cynics now who said you were asking for trouble by pushing night football?

You wonder what the Rose Bowl game would have been this time without the incredible O. J. It would have been a crime not to have the talents of this superb athlete showcased in the post-season classic in his final collegiate game.

You wonder if Arlington's 1968 football powerhouse was stronger overall than the 1966 machine, and then you stop wondering. It was. There wasn't the explosive passing attack that featured the '66 club, but there was more strength throughout, more balance, more power up front. It would be quite a game. Steve Allen's aerial artistry against the relentless ground assault directed by Todd Somers.

You wonder if you've ever seen a more boring college football exhibition than the one staged between Illinois and Northwestern last Saturday. You know what kind of game it was when the only things that brought the fans to their feet were the kickoffs, national anthem, sideline antics, including some dazzling head-stands, of one father who obviously had one martini too many. He almost was worth the price of admission. But the game itself? Forget it.

And you wonder why sportswriters have to wonder about so many things.

Ten Years Ago This Week...

Palatine split on its opening basketball weekend . . . Harvey Foster fired in 12 baskets and two free throws in pacing the Pirates to a 58-41 victory over Wauconda, but Notre Dame belted the locals 65-42 . . . Arlington rallied in the final period but still lost to Evanston 42-38 . . . Ed Whitelaw's 12 points and the rebounding of Don Gerken highlighted the Cardinal effort.

He Could Run, Too

Otto Graham, better known as a passer, holds the all-time Northwestern record for longest punt return with a 93-yarder against Kansas State in 1941. The longest kickoff returns ever were 98 yards by Wilbur Hightower in 1913 and Pug Rentner in 1930.

Fremd Battles Fenton Tonight

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

What other way is there to try and predict how well Fremd's basketball season is going to turn out except with a question mark?

"On paper," said Fremd coach Leon Kasuboske, "it looks like we might have a good basketball team. But on the floor I just don't know."

The Vikings will get their first test of the 1968-69 season on Fenton High School's basketball floor tonight. The junior varsity contest is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. and the varsity game for 8 p.m.

Fremd could produce a basketball team which could be a contender for the Mid-Suburban League championship:

IF Gerry Grybash, All-Conference as a junior, recovers fully from a broken ankle.

IF Randy Hague can live up to his potential in this his sophomore year and in the meantime overcome an ailing back.

IF Rick Gaare can overcome an injury jinx that has been plaguing him.

IF Gary Davis, at 6-4, can clear the boards well enough for Fremd to start its fast break.

IF Bill Mazanet, 6-5 center, will be able to play with ailments he picked up during the football season.

IF Ken Stinson, at 5-8, will not be a liability on defense because of his lack of size.

AND IF the Vikings do not lose too many games before Grybash, Gaare, Mazanet and Hague recover and are eliminated from the championship in the early going.

FENTON HAS very little varsity experience coming back this year but there is plenty of size. Center Chuck Zempel stands 6-6, forward Bruce Kassel is 6-4 and Vic Sage is 6-3.

Fremd's staring guards will be Ken Stinson, 5-8, and Mike Kolze, 5-11. Stinson averaged about 10 points a game for the junior varsity team last year. Kolze attended Fremd as a freshman, moved to Indiana last year and will be playing his junior year back with the Vikings.

Gary Davis, who averaged 15 points a game until he sprained an ankle playing jayvee ball last year, is being counted on heavily by Kasuboske. "He's going to have to clear the boards for us," says the Viking mentor.

KASUBOSKE is uncertain who will start at the two forward positions. He indicated that either 6-1 Mel Link, 6-1 Charles Daugherty or 5-11 Mike Norman will be the starters. Daugherty had a splendid season on the junior varsity team last year.

With a number of players on the injury list, Kasuboske will have to rely on Jeff Funk, a 6-0 senior in his first year of basketball and Bill Miner, a 5-11 senior forward for depth.

Kasuboske's team posted an 11-11 record overall last year and a 9-5 record against Mid-Suburban League competition.

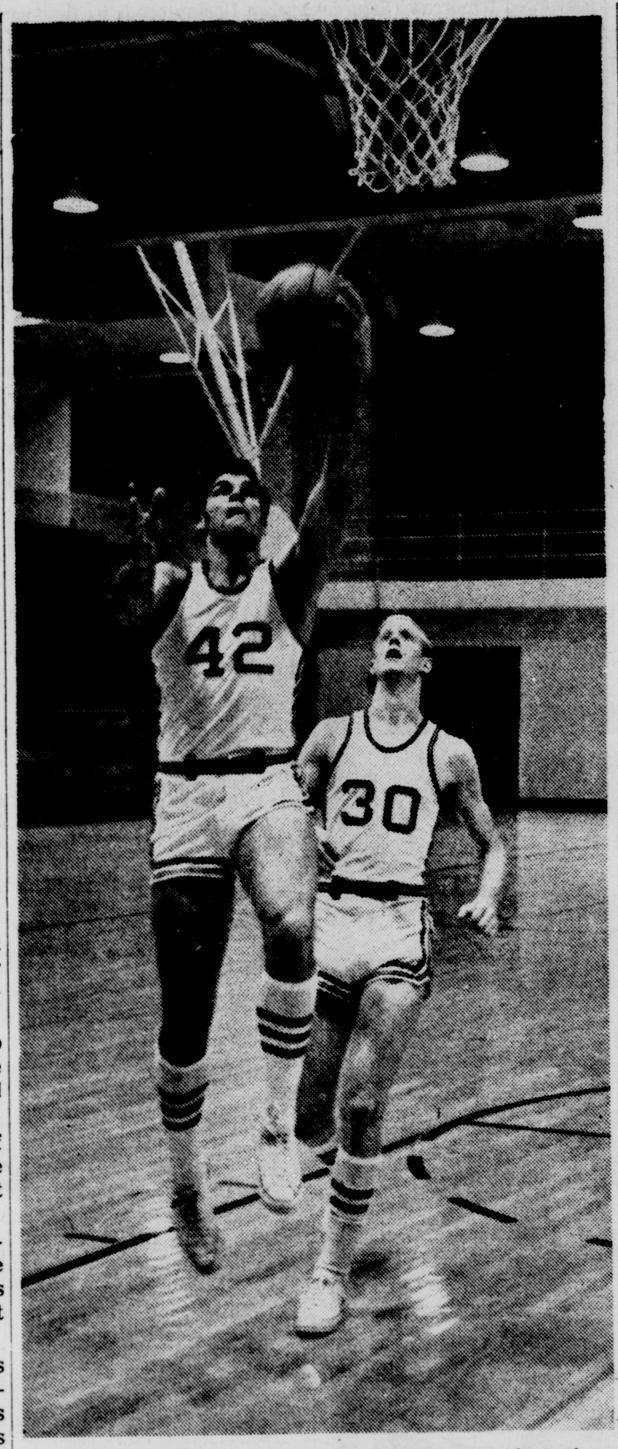
The Viking coach likes to have his team, "Put pressure on the ball. We'll use the full court press if necessary.

"We'll use the fast break if we have the opportunity but we used a disciplined offense most of the time."

In other words, Fremd's Vikings will be trying to make the opponent make the mistakes and keep their own mistakes at a minimum.

Kasuboske rates Wheelnig as the Mid-Suburban League's preseason favorite, but he warns not to overlook Arlington. Of his own team he feels that it should be right in the middle of the pack and if things go well the Vikings, he feels, should make a real run for the title.

But going into tonight's game with Fenton — ?



A CHANGING OF the centers will occur today (Friday) when Harper College takes on Wright Junior College on the Rams' home court at 2:30 p.m. Dave Willy (45) twisted his knee in the Triton game and so Bill Keehan (30) will take over. Keehan came into his own last Saturday night against Triton canning 22 points to lead the Hawks in scoring.

Knights Visit State Champs

by CHUCK WILLOUR

Don Arseneau will probably have to solve quite a few unique coaching problems in this, his first year as head coach at Prospect High School, problems that other coaches rarely have to face.

New coaches can always anticipate adjustment problems — the players learning the new coach's methods and strategy, and the coach adjusting his methods to his personnel, and so on.

But at least the personable Knight mentor won't have to face the one problem that most often confronts other new coaches. At least Arseneau and his young charges won't have to step into a new season as strangers, for virtually all of the varsity Knight contingent played under Arseneau last year on the Jayvee squad.

SO THAT'S one big problem out of the way.

But, of course, there are others, as Arseneau and his Knights prepare for their 1968-69 basketball season lidlifter tonight (Friday) at Evanston. The Knights, Mid-Suburban League co-champs last year, are faced with such problems as no great height, no varsity experience, and a schedule that starts out with four of the suburban area's toughest cage squads.

So it's no wonder that Arseneau says, "We're sure going to find out in these first four games what we can do. We'd like to run to make up for our lack of height, but if we can't then I don't know what we'll do."

"LAST YEAR, though," he adds, "we had the same schedule. We came out of the first week with a 1-3 record, but I think we were a much better team for it."

Prospect's schedule starts off with Evanston tonight — and the Wildkits are defending state champs — then moves to Libertyville Saturday night for the home opener, Maine South next Wednesday night, and then New Trier East a week from tonight.

If Arseneau's cagers can indeed come out of those four toughies a better team, then they should rank right in the middle of the MSL title battle again this year, even though they're not tall or experienced.

POTENTIALLY, the Knights could be tough. Though only two boast varsity experience, nine others come off Arseneau's MSL Jayvee championship squad. And then there's one sophomore who shows great promise.

Bruce Timko (6-0) and Dave Somers (6-0) are the two cagers to whom the rest of the Knights will look for leadership. Timko played a few games at the varsity level last season, and Somers was an excellent sixth man, scoring 118 points for a six point average.

Coming up from the Jayvees and also getting the starting nod from Arseneau are Scott Crawford (5-10) and Rob Bachhuber (6-3). Possible fifth men are Ron Dolejs (6-4), Steve Schmidt (6-2) or sophomore Dave Lundstedt (6-2), younger brother of Tom Lundstedt, all-time Prospect cage ace.

Also ranking as top prospects are Steve Grant (5-11), Dave Kallman (5-9), Gary Bach (6-1), Dan Willis (6-2) and Mike Neddleman (6-0).

ARSENEAU plans on going with a 1-3-1 offensive lineup that will, he hopes, give him more rebounding against the bigger teams. Instead of placing both guards back, which is normal, the Prospect mentor will move one forward, thereby giving him an extra man under the boards.

It also fits his personnel's abilities, he says. "We're average-to-fair shooters, but I think with the 1-3-1 we'll have each man shooting from his best part of the court.

"Crawford," he explains, "is our best outside shooter, so'll we'll have him at the point. Somers and Timko shoot well at the medium ranges, and Rob Bachhuber does a good job inside."

BUT EVEN though offense is of a primary concern to Arseneau, these days it's taking a back seat to defense. Despite the fact that the Knights plan on running a lot on offense, Arseneau feels his team's best chance at a good season is playing solid defense.

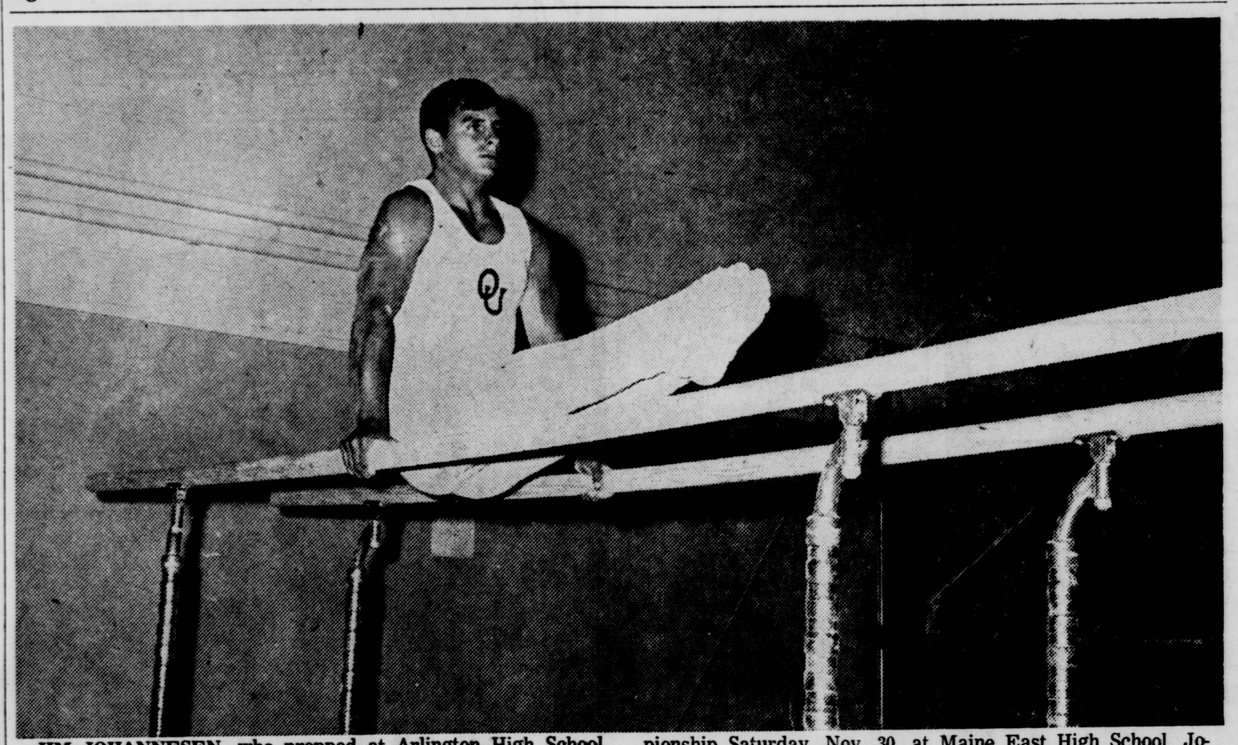
"Last year we did a good job on defense, and this year it will have to be one of our strong points again. We hope we'll win by taking advantage of the other team's mistakes. We'll have to — we're not tall enough to consistently work the ball inside or control the boards on rebounds," Arseneau says.

And as far as varsity experience is concerned, he hopes this won't be as big a factor as most people believe it to be. "Sure, I would have liked to have all these kids with varsity experience," he says. "But they all got game experience by playing on the Jayvees. It should be of aid this year."

BESIDES, HE added, his charges should be able to make up for their inexperience by the time the Christmas break ends. With games at the tough Pontiac Tourney, plus the opening four, and two rugged conference tests, the Knights will have plenty of chance to get used to rough cage action.

Tonight will come their first test at the Evanston High School gymnasium. The Wildkits, who opened their season last weekend with a loss, aren't the same team that so convincingly won the state title last year.

Last year the Knights pushed Evanston to the limit before falling, 56-48. But the Knights aren't the same team either.



JIM JOHANNESEN, who prepped at Arlington High School and now performs for the University of Oklahoma, will be one of the featured performers in the Midwest Gymnastics Championship Saturday, Nov. 30, at Maine East High School. Johannesen finished third in the Big Eight on the parallel bars and fifth in the all-around competition.

Gym Feature Set Nov. 30

Olympic gymnasts . . .

The nation's finest performers . . .

Former area standouts . . .

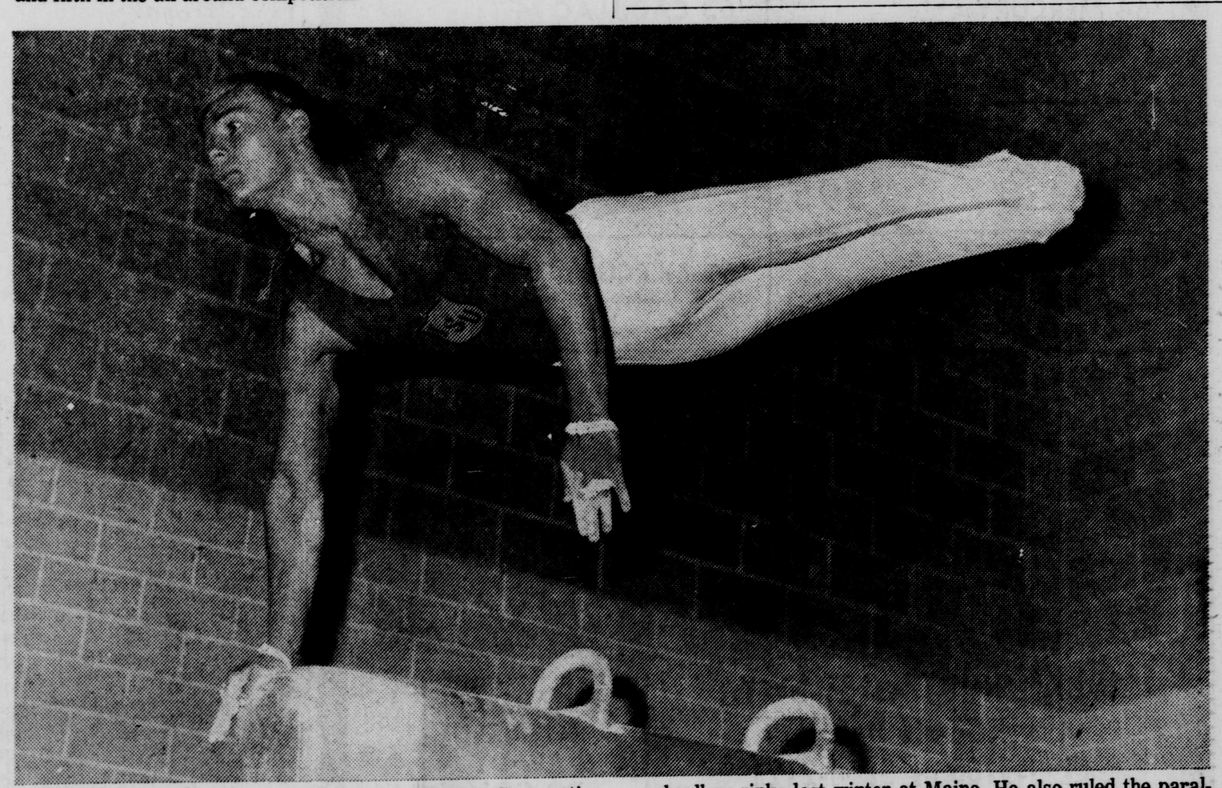
Gymnastics fans will be treated to a spectacular show Saturday, Nov. 30, when the Midwest Gymnastics Championships unfold at Maine East High School in Park Ridge.

Representatives from approximately 40 colleges and universities will perform in two sessions with the qualifying at 10:30 a.m. and the finals at 7:30 p.m.

The competition will include the Trampoline and all Olympic gym events and Dave Thorr of Michigan State, an Olympic performer, will vie for honors.

Several area products will be involved in the competition, including Arlington grads Tom Reising on the trampoline and Jim Johannesen in the all-around and Wheeling grad Rick Orna on the rings among others.

The public is invited and urged to arrive early. Tickets may be obtained at the door and will be $1 for the qualifying sessions and $2 for the finals.



DENNIS MAZUR returns home for the Midwest Gymnastics Championship at Maine East. Mazur, now a freshman at Iowa State University, was the all-around champion in Illinois schoolboy rinks last winter at Maine. He also ruled the parallel bar and horizontal bar in the state finals.

Don Arseneau will probably have to solve quite a few unique coaching problems in this, his first year as head coach at Prospect High School, problems that other coaches rarely have to face.

New coaches can always anticipate adjustment problems — the players learning the new coach's methods and strategy, and the coach adjusting his methods to his personnel, and so on.

But at least the personable Knight mentor won't have to face the one problem that most often confronts other new coaches. At least Arseneau and his young charges won't have to step into a new season as strangers, for virtually all of the varsity Knight contingent played under Arseneau last year on the Jayvee squad.

SO THAT'S one big problem out of the way.

But, of course, there are others, as Arseneau and his Knights prepare for their 1968-69 basketball season lidlifter tonight (Friday) at Evanston. The Knights, Mid-Suburban League co-champs last year, are faced with such problems as no great height, no varsity experience, and a schedule that starts out with four of the suburban area's toughest cage squads.

So it's no wonder that Arseneau says, "We're sure going to find out in these first four games what we can do. We'd like to run to make up for our lack of height, but if we can't then I don't know what we'll do."

"LAST YEAR, though," he adds, "we had the same schedule. We came out of the first week with a 1-3 record, but I think we were a much better team for it."

Prospect's schedule starts off with Evanston tonight — and the Wildkits are defending state champs — then moves to Libertyville Saturday night for the home opener, Maine South next Wednesday night, and then New Trier East a week from tonight.

If Arseneau's cagers can indeed come out of those four toughies a better team, then they should rank right in the middle of the MSL title battle again this year, even though they're not tall or experienced.

POTENTIALLY, the Knights could be tough. Though only two boast varsity experience, nine others come off Arseneau's MSL Jayvee championship squad. And then there's one sophomore who shows great promise.

Bruce Timko (6-0) and Dave Somers (6-0) are the two cagers to whom the rest of the Knights will look for leadership. Timko played a few games at the varsity level last season, and Somers was an excellent sixth man, scoring 118 points for a six point average.

Coming up from the Jayvees and also getting the starting nod from Arseneau are Scott Crawford (5-10) and Rob Bachhuber (6-3). Possible fifth men are Ron Dolejs (6-4), Steve Schmidt (6-2) or sophomore Dave Lundstedt (6-2), younger brother of Tom Lundstedt, all-time Prospect cage ace.

Also ranking as top prospects are Steve Grant (5-11), Dave Kallman (5-9), Gary Bach (6-1), Dan Willis (6-2) and Mike Neddleman (6-0).

ARSENEAU plans on going with a 1-3-1 offensive lineup that will, he hopes, give him more rebounding against the bigger teams. Instead of placing both guards back, which is normal, the Prospect mentor will move one forward, thereby giving him an extra man under the boards.

It also fits his personnel's abilities, he says. "We're average-to-fair shooters, but I think with the 1-3-1 we'll have each man shooting from his best part of the court.

"Crawford," he explains, "is our best outside shooter, so'll we'll have him at the point. Somers and Timko shoot well at the medium ranges, and Rob Bachhuber does a good job inside."

BUT EVEN though offense is of a primary concern to Arseneau, these days it's taking a back seat to defense. Despite the fact that the Knights plan on running a lot on offense, Arseneau feels his team's best chance at a good season is playing solid defense.

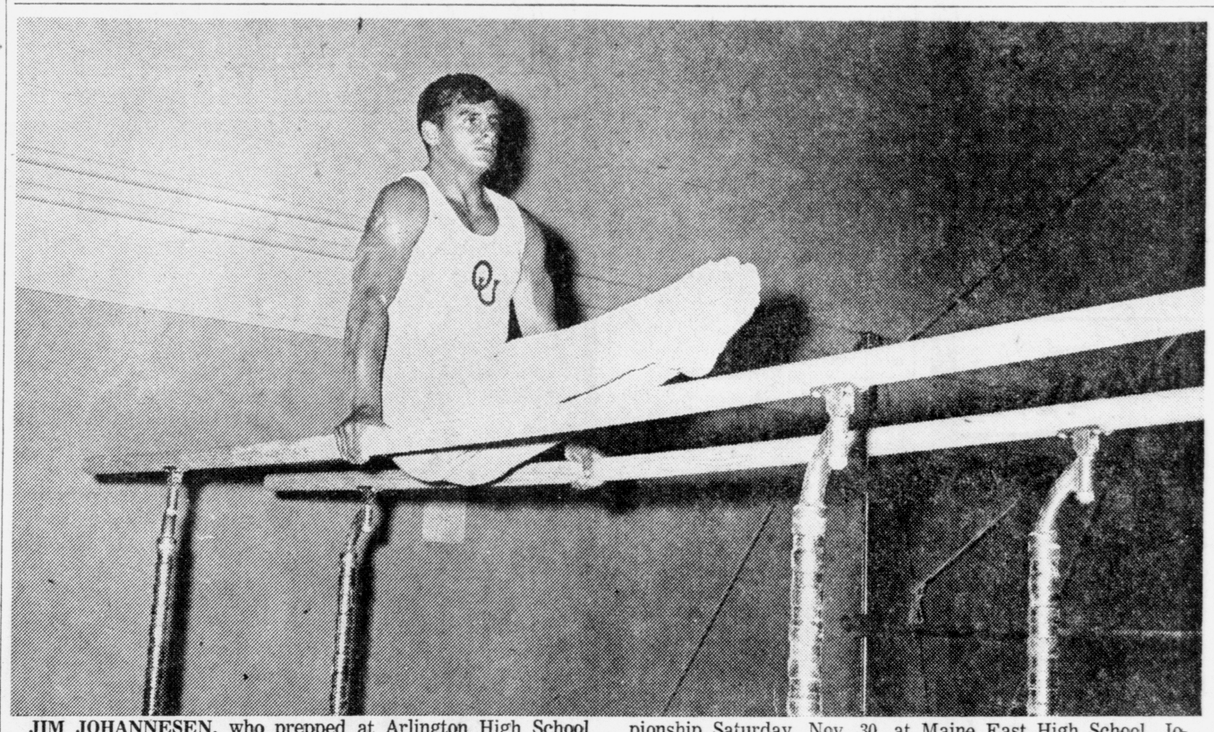
"Last year we did a good job on defense, and this year it will have to be one of our strong points again. We hope we'll win by taking advantage of the other team's mistakes. We'll have to — we're not tall enough to consistently work the ball inside or control the boards on rebounds," Arseneau says.

And as far as varsity experience is concerned, he hopes this won't be as big a factor as most people believe it to be. "Sure, I would have liked to have all these kids with varsity experience," he says. "But they all got game experience by playing on the Jayvees. It should be of aid this year."

BESIDES, HE added, his charges should be able to make up for their inexperience by the time the Christmas break ends. With games at the tough Pontiac Tourney, plus the opening four, and two rugged conference tests, the Knights will have plenty of chance to get used to rough cage action.

Tonight will come their first test at the Evanston High School gymnasium. The Wildkits, who opened their season last weekend with a loss, aren't the same team that so convincingly won the state title last year.

Last year the Knights pushed Evanston to the limit before falling, 56-48. But the Knights aren't the same team either.



JIM JOHANNESEN, who prepped at Arlington High School and now performs for the University of Oklahoma, will be one of the featured performers in the Midwest Gymnastics Championship Saturday, Nov. 30, at Maine East High School. Johannesen finished third in the Big Eight on the parallel bars and fifth in the all-around competition.

Gym Feature Set Nov. 30

Olympic gymnasts . . .

The nation's finest performers . . .

Former area standouts . . .

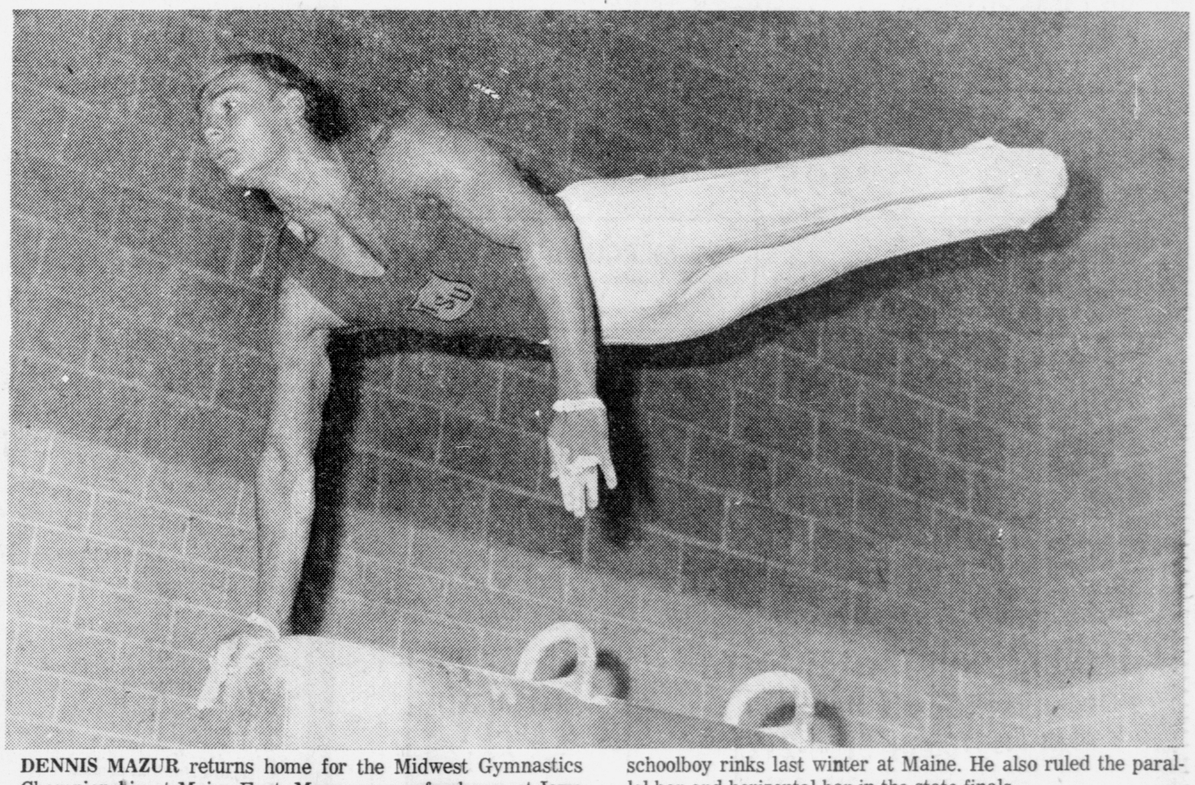
Gymnastics fans will be treated to a spectacular show Saturday, Nov. 30, when the Midwest Gymnastics Championships unfold at Maine East High School in Park Ridge.

Representatives from approximately 40 colleges and universities will perform in two sessions with the qualifying at 10:30 a.m. and the finals at 7:30 p.m.

The competition will include the Trampoline and all Olympic gym events and Dave Thorr of Michigan State, an Olympic performer, will vie for honors.

Several area products will be involved in the competition, including Arlington grads Tom Reising on the trampoline and Jim Johannesen in the all-around and Wheeling grad Rick Orna on the rings among others.

The public is invited and urged to arrive early. Tickets may be obtained at the door and will be $1 for the qualifying sessions and $2 for the finals.



DENNIS MAZUR returns home for the Midwest Gymnastics Championship at Maine East. Mazur, now a freshman at Iowa State University, was the all-around champion in Illinois schoolboy rinks last winter at Maine. He also ruled the parallel bar and horizontal bar in the state finals.

Steingraber Guides Huskies

Hersey Awaits Cage Debut

by KEITH REINHARD

Basketball is going to the dogs.

To be more specific, basketball is about to go to the Huskies of Hersey High School.

Just how well this canine species takes to the game can be previewed tomorrow (Saturday) when Hersey opens its first varsity cage campaign by hosting a strong Holy Cross outfit. Huskie coach Roger Steingraber hopes the transition will be a smooth one, if nothing else.

THE CAGE season at Hersey picks up where this brand new school's fall sports programs left off: Full of optimism and spirit but with some dilemmas not very familiar to established institutions.

With these problems and several of a more common nature in mind, Steingraber is faced with more than his share of woes. "We have some size here and I'm pleased with the progress we've been making and with the attitude of the players. Still it's been somewhat of a struggle preparing for this season," he said.

Part of the Hersey conflict has been the race to ready the school's indoor athletic facilities for the winter sports campaigns.

IT IS A race about to be won just in the nick of time Saturday as the finishing touches are applied to the gymnasium this week. In the interim period, however, just as their gridiron predecessors had to make concessions, so the cage hopefuls have had to make do with less than ideal practice conditions.

Complicating this of course is the very fact that in dealing with an entirely new and relatively inexperienced group of prospects, the Hersey helmsman probably needs even more time than the average coach to prepare his group for the gruelling schedule ahead.

For good measure, Steingraber has an added problem: A thinning of the ranks. "The way things have been going of late, we may be lucky to have five starters by Saturday," he sighed.

THE LATEST quandry came into being when a youngster earmarked for the one starting guard slot in his 1-2-2 offense tore up his ankle. "This week another couple of our starters have been knocked down by flu, leaving us with two of our original starting five."

Mark Jacoby, the cager with the injured ankle, will be sidelined for six weeks. Steingraber is hoping Scott Feige and Bruce Frase may be over their illnesses and ready to suit up by Saturday but has no way of knowing how effective they will be.

Despite this gloomy pre-inaugural picture, the basketball situation at Hersey is far from a poor one overall. The original turnout was good and the 24 players the coaches have shaved this to for their varsity and jayvee units, boasts a good sampling of size, speed and talent.

JACOBY, a 5-7 junior dynamo who played lower level basketball at Arlington prior to this year, is being replaced in the back court for the time being by Frase. Frase is also a former Cardinal cager, and while just a sophomore, has already exhibited varsity caliber talent on the Hersey football field this past fall.

Another gridder figuring heavily in Steingraber's plans is Dick Powell, a 5-10 transfer student from Taylorville who quarterbacked the Huskie football entry. Powell will team up outside with junior John Durso, also 5-10 and also a transfer student, from Marist High.

Labeled for front line duty in the lanes are Mark Lindstrom and Steve Toneff. Both are juniors and former Wheeling cagers with Lindstrom standing 6-5 and Toneff 6-1.

ALSO FIGURING to see plenty of action under the boards this season is 6-5 Don Spry, up until this year a Prospect student, who started at end on Hersey's first football team.

And if Feige is ready, this quick 5-11 football standout originally from Wheeling will also see his share of play Saturday.

Steingraber and company have picked a fairly formidable foe to launch their campaign with while officially opening their new gymnasium. The Crusaders were 16-7 overall last season and finished in a tie for third in the Suburban Catholic loop with a 10-3 slate.

BACK FROM this 1967-68 group are Ernie Losch, a 6-6 senior who will start at center and John Ptaszynski, a 6-2 senior going at one of the forward slots. The other probably Holy Cross starters, all seniors with some experience are 6-1 forward Jim Willert, 5-11 guard Bob Rubinelli and 5-9 guard Gary Blank.

Two other Crusaders figuring in coach John Wilhelm's battle plans are 6-4 sophomore Dan Pawlik and 6-1 junior Rick Sievers.

Holy Cross opens tonight at Lutheran North before traveling to Hersey tomorrow. Wilhelm figures his squad to be starting slowly this fall with several of his key players fresh out for basketball from the football squad. Still, he promises Steingraber and company "a good ballgame."

As for the Huskies, "We'll play to the best of our ability," Steingraber offered, adding, "I don't expect us to burn up the conference this year but if we can stay healthy we may surprise a few teams."

Grenadiers Open With Road Battle

King-Sized Cowboy Main Elk Grove Problem

by PAUL LOGAN

There will be a lot of new faces in the green and gold uniforms of Elk Grove this Saturday night when they take the floor at New Trier West for their season opener at 8:15.

And for 10 of these Grenadiers the opposition won't look familiar. Not so for returnees Frank Schultz, Joe Kalisz, and Gary Pleickhardt. They remember the Cowboys and their premier center only too well.

How could anyone forget a giant that blocked their shots, stuffed in 25 points himself, and led his team to an easy 79-48 victory over the Grove in last year's lidlifter — the worst loss the Grenadiers absorbed in their 23-game season.

AND THIS TIME around he's an inch taller. Tom Mustoe stands in at a lofty 6-foot-8, 210 pounds and plans to use these physical features to bid for all-state honors in this his third year as a New Trier starter.

"We're going to have to try and stop him (Mustoe) from getting more than one shot and hope not to foul very much while trying to keep him off the boards," said Bob Rees, head Grenadier mentor.

Rees will place the hopes of the Grove on the shoulders of center Bob Bachus (6-3), forwards Eugene Pinder (6-2) and Kalisz (6-3), and guard Jim Devitt (5-10) and Schultz (5-10).

The Grove's front line will have to do a fine job of blocking out against the much taller Cowboys who will have 6-4 and 6-3 fowards in Fred Szymanski and Howard Leach, respectively.

"LAST YEAR I think we had more height overall," said Head Coach Mel Sheets. "However, I think this team should be better than last year's."

The situation — height-wise — is just about the same for the Grenadiers although Rees reports that his boys have a little more overall speed than last year's crew. Even though none of the 13 go above 6-3, Rees said this of their ability to hit the boards, "I think we'll rebound for our size."

Assisting the three returning lettermen will be a good group of ex-jayvee players who recorded a fine 12-6 mark last year. Of the youngsters who are not starting this game Rees said, "There are boys on the bench that very definitely could be in the starting lineup before the year is out."

THESE EIGHT reserves are: Bob Flesch (6-1½), John Flesch (6-0), Jim Camphouse (6-2½), Dick Nichels (6-3), Mike Losch (6-0), Dave Ristau (6-9), Ron Fink (5-8), and Pleickhardt (5-5).

"I think we'll be a fairly decent shooting team. If we're not we're in trouble," Rees pointed out.

Last year in the New Trier game the Grenadiers were in trouble from the outset.

"We had a real bad first quarter hitting only three of 19 shots from the field. That meant we had to change up the way we were playing and had to hawk more. We had to foul more than we'd have liked to," Rees recalled.

THE COWBOYS got off to an 18-6 lead in the opening quarter and coasted until the fourth period when they outscored the Grove 27-12. They also made good on their opportunities at the charity line canning 25 of 35 chances. The Grenadiers had only nine tries making seven.

If the Gernadiers succeed in sagging in on Mustoe, get their share of rebounds, and stay out of foul trouble, Coach Rees' youngsters will bring home a real big opening win.

Veeck Offers Cures to Help 'Dull Baseball'

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

"During the past 25 years," Bill Veeck told a large audience at the Elmhurst Memorial Hospital benefit dinner, "nearly every sport has been progressive except baseball.

"Basketball has eliminated the center jump after a basket, football has made any number of changes but baseball has made very few changes," said the former owner of the Cleveland Indiana, St. Louis Browns, and Chicago White Sox.

"Oh, now baseball players can't throw their gloves on the field, and they allow them to wear white shoes and they've taken collars off the uniforms, but baseball has not changed to make it more enjoyable for the spectator.

"Take a relief pitcher, for instance. He warms up in the bullpen for four innings and when he is called in to pitch, what does he do? He warms up some more. Just think how dull it would be if Johnny Unitas warmed up every time he came on the field.

"Now in order to intentionally walk a batter," Veeck went on, "you must throw four pitches around the plate in order to do it. Should the pitcher have to prove he can throw the ball four times and not get one over? Heck, no. Why don't they just tell the umpire they want to walk the guy and let him go down to first base? Why put the fan through the ordeal?"

BILL VEECK

Veeck added, and it seemed to pain him to say it, "Baseball has become dull."

Veeck pointed out that in the past 25 years baseball has added 30 minutes in playing time but since 1948 baseball teams are scoring 3,000 less runs per year.

"You know why football is growing so much?' Veeck asked. "It's because it's exciting, that's why. Football appeals to the spectator. But baseball. Baseball has become so dull that the New York Yankees have become summer afternoon fill-ins on CBS."

Veeck brought forth a few of his proposals.

"First," he said, "they should return the strike zone to where it used to be. (The old strike zone was from the top of the knee to the arm pits. Today the strike zone is from the bottom of the knee to the shoulders).

"The pitchers have too many advantages. The batter's strike zone is larger and this puts him at a disadvantage. And the batter provides most of the action.

"I think the fans like action. They like lots of scoring. But the pitchers have too much of an advantage."

For speeding up the game, Veeck said, "The count ought to be three balls and two strikes instead of four and three. I think that if the pitcher wants to intentionally walk a batter, they should just say that they are and not have to throw the pitches.

"They should put a time limit on the pitcher between pitches and for the batter to get set in the batter's box. They should also put a lower limit on warm-up pitches."

Veeck continued, "They don't have to start all this in the major leagues. I think that the little leagues, the pony league and colt leagues, ought to experiment with it.

"Yes, that would be a very good idea."

Last year in the New Trier game the Grenadiers were in trouble from the outset.

"We had a real bad first quarter hitting only three of 19 shots from the field. That meant we had to change up the way we were playing and had to hawk more. We had to foul more than we'd have liked to," Rees recalled.

THE COWBOYS got off to an 18-6 lead in the opening quarter and coasted until the fourth period when they outscored the Grove 27-12. They also made good on their opportunities at the charity line canning 25 of 35 chances. The Grenadiers had only nine tries making seven.

If the Gernadiers succeed in sagging in on Mustoe, get their share of rebounds, and stay out of foul trouble, Coach Rees' youngsters will bring home a real big opening win.

Veeck Offers Cures to Help 'Dull Baseball'

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

"During the past 25 years," Bill Veeck told a large audience at the Elmhurst Memorial Hospital benefit dinner, "nearly every sport has been progressive except baseball.

"Basketball has eliminated the center jump after a basket, football has made any number of changes but baseball has made very few changes," said the former owner of the Cleveland Indiana, St. Louis Browns, and Chicago White Sox.

"Oh, now baseball players can't throw their gloves on the field, and they allow them to wear white shoes and they've taken collars off the uniforms, but baseball has not changed to make it more enjoyable for the spectator.

"Take a relief pitcher, for instance. He warms up in the bullpen for four innings and when he is called in to pitch, what does he do? He warms up some more. Just think how dull it would be if Johnny Unitas warmed up every time he came on the field.

"Now in order to intentionally walk a batter," Veeck went on, "you must throw four pitches around the plate in order to do it. Should the pitcher have to prove he can throw the ball four times and not get one over? Heck, no. Why don't they just tell the umpire they want to walk the guy and let him go down to first base? Why put the fan through the ordeal?"

BILL VEECK

Veeck added, and it seemed to pain him to say it, "Baseball has become dull."

Veeck pointed out that in the past 25 years baseball has added 30 minutes in playing time but since 1948 baseball teams are scoring 3,000 less runs per year.

"You know why football is growing so much?' Veeck asked. "It's because it's exciting, that's why. Football appeals to the spectator. But baseball. Baseball has become so dull that the New York Yankees have become summer afternoon fill-ins on CBS."

Veeck brought forth a few of his proposals.

"First," he said, "they should return the strike zone to where it used to be. (The old strike zone was from the top of the knee to the arm pits. Today the strike zone is from the bottom of the knee to the shoulders).

"The pitchers have too many advantages. The batter's strike zone is larger and this puts him at a disadvantage. And the batter provides most of the action.

"I think the fans like action. They like lots of scoring. But the pitchers have too much of an advantage."

For speeding up the game, Veeck said, "The count ought to be three balls and two strikes instead of four and three. I think that if the pitcher wants to intentionally walk a batter, they should just say that they are and not have to throw the pitches.

"They should put a time limit on the pitcher between pitches and for the batter to get set in the batter's box. They should also put a lower limit on warm-up pitches."

Veeck continued, "They don't have to start all this in the major leagues. I think that the little leagues, the pony league and colt leagues, ought to experiment with it.

"Yes, that would be a very good idea."

Have New Coach

EG Wrestlers Open Season

Elk Grove's wrestlers open up their season this Saturday under the leadership of a new coach — Norm Lovelace. He will send his nine top boys out against Glenbrook South at the Titans' gym at 2 p.m.

Lovelace was an assistant wrestling coach at Indiana State University where the varsity finished the season with an excellent 15-1-1 mark. He also was a sophomore assistant coach in football.

The Grenadiers will have three lettermen back. They are Jim Pankow, Gary Harris, and Steve Jung.

Lovelace listed his probable starting line up as follows:

Conrad Martinez, senior, (112);
Jim Rankin, senior transfer from Indiana where he was a three-year letterman (120); Paul Morris, sophomore (127); Bob Marin, senior (133); Pankow (133 or 145); Jeff Froysland, junior (133 or 145); Jim Ernst, senior (154); Harris, senior (165); and Jung, senior (180).

"We don't have a heavyweight class boy and we'll probably never have one this year," Lovelace said.

Because of this the Grenadiers will go into each meet behind from the start since they'll have to lose the heavyweight level by forfeiture.

The rest of the Grenadiers' schedule is:

Standout Halfback

Wing Coach Jinxed?

Bill Gadsby, who was recently hired as coach of the Detroit Red Wings, never played on a Stanley Cup champion in his 20 seasons in the NHL. He was on only one regular-season title team, the 1964-65 Wings. In his first 16 years in the league, spent with the then-lowly Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers, his teams made the playoffs just four times.

Unbeaten Wright Next For Winless Harper

by PAUL LOGAN

Harper College will face one of its toughest tests of the season today (Friday) when its basketball team meets Wright Junior College at 2:30 p.m.

The Rams have waltzed past their first two opponents by a whopping 51-point margin — Kendall (96-45) and DuPage (97-46) being the victims.

The Hawks have dropped their first two encounters to Elgin (86-79) and Triton (105-81).

Missing from this afternoon's affair is Dave Willy. The burly 6-3 center twisted his knee in the Triton game and was on crutches all week. However, Willy will be back working out next week, according to Coach John Gelch.

Going at the pivot will be Bill Keehan (6-4) who popped in 22 points against Triton. The rest of the Hawk lineup will be Mike Durding (5-10) and Jim Mellen (5-8) at the guards and Tom Keorszturi (5-10), Scott Bischoff (6-0) or Bob Spore (6-4) at the forwards.

At Wright

HARPER			WRIGHT
6-0	Bischoff or Spore	F	Slaughter	6-1
5-10	Keroszturi	F	Brown	6-3
6-4	Keehan	C	Edwards	6-4
5-8	Mellen	G	Bryja	5-11
5-10	Durding	G	Fahey	5-8

The Ram lineup has a slight edge on heighth with Jim Edwards (6-4) at center, Eli Slaughter (6-1) and Nate Brown (6-3) at the forwards and Lou Bryja (5-11) and Dave Fahey (5-8) at the playmaker spots.

"We found out we had a lot of things to work on after the weekend ball games," Gelch pointed out.

Two of the prime areas for improvement were rebounding and less fouling.

"We are working on rebounding and are trying for a little more ball control on offense. Its definitely going to hurt us on the boards without Willy," Gelch said.

"It's also going to be difficult to fast break without Willy's rebounding."

During the last two games the Hawks have committed 65 fouls to only 43 by their opponents. In the Triton game the foul situation didn't prove to be one of the big factors for the loss, but against Elgin it cost the Hawks a victory.

"Most of our problem was reaching in and committing ourselves after the play was made. They tried to sneak the ball away from them (opponents) but they just can't do this.

"We'll be trying to play defense with the feet instead of reaching in," Gelch said.

The Hawks will try to put a lot of pressure on the Rams' guards at half court, according to Gelch. This tactic was very effective against Elgin causing numerous turnovers.

"We found out we had a lot of things to work on after the weekend ball games," Gelch pointed out.

Two of the prime areas for improvement were rebounding and less fouling.

"We are working on rebounding and are trying for a little more ball control on offense. Its definitely going to hurt us on the boards without Willy," Gelch said.

"It's also going to be difficult to fast break without Willy's rebounding."

During the last two games the Hawks have committed 65 fouls to only 43 by their opponents. In the Triton game the foul situation didn't prove to be one of the big factors for the loss, but against Elgin it cost the Hawks a victory.

"Most of our problem was reaching in and committing ourselves after the play was made. They tried to sneak the ball away from them (opponents) but they just can't do this.

"We'll be trying to play defense with the feet instead of reaching in," Gelch said.

The Hawks will try to put a lot of pressure on the Rams' guards at half court, according to Gelch. This tactic was very effective against Elgin causing numerous turnovers.

In Paddock Classic

Runnersup Plan Coup of Leaders

Langlo's Refinishing and Aloha-Duchess will continue their struggle to overcome the leads of Striking Lanes and Girard-Bruns, respectively, as the Paddock Classic Traveling League resumes action this Saturday.

The men will be competing at Hoffman Lanes in Hoffman Estates, while the ladies will do their kegling at Elk Grove Bowl in Elk Grove Village. Action at both establishments will get underway at 6:30 p.m.

Last Saturday Langlo's made it a sweep to climb within just six points of league leading Striking. The men of Langlo's will be trying to match that performance when they take on Buick in Evanston.

Striking will be attempting to put some distance between itself and the rest of the field when it meets Morton Pontiac. In other action Des Plaines Bowl will take on Maitre d' Restaurant and Gaare Oil will do battle with Elk Grove V&S Hardware.

The big matches for the women will happen on adjacent lanes — 27-28 and 29-30. On the former alleys Aloha-Duchess will be hoping for a sweep to pull even with Girard should the leaders, on the latter hardwoods, fall by a whitewash. Aloha faces Sims Bowl and Girard meets Morton Pontiac.

In other action Bank of Elk Grove will face off with Des Plaines Lanes and Lattof Chevrolet will duel with Doyle's-Striking Lanes.

"Not Once Did They Let Up"

'Not Satisfied But Pleased' Says Coach of Viking Season

by LARRY MILYNCZAK

A football coach, unless his name is John McKay, Woodz Hayes or Bob Walther, is hardly ever satisfied.

Fremd High School's football team has just completed its most successful season in history. And what does head coach Dick Gavigan have to say? "I'm not satisfied with our season."

But Gavigan is quick to add, "But we had a much better football team than people gave us credit for."

Fremd's Vikings won four games, three more than they have ever won before, and lost five contests.

The defensive unit was impressive in three of the wins and in the squad's first victory it was the offense which pulled out the triumph.

FREMD'S INITIAL win came at the expense of Elk Grove 33-21 and the others were over Glenbard North 38-7, Adlai Stevenson 21-0 and Forest View 6-0.

When the Vikings lost, the defense took a battering. Rockford Boylan scored 34 points, Arlington 60, Prospect 21, Conant 32 and Palatine 24. The offense was usually faced with the problem of having to score, score and outscore the opposition.

Quarterback Tommy Bruns directed the Fremd attack throughout the season and he became better as the season progressed. In the last five games of the season he completed 34 passes and eight went for touchdowns.

BRUNS' FAVORITE receivers wre halfback Bob Moloznik, halfback Bob Gill and end Bill Mazanet.

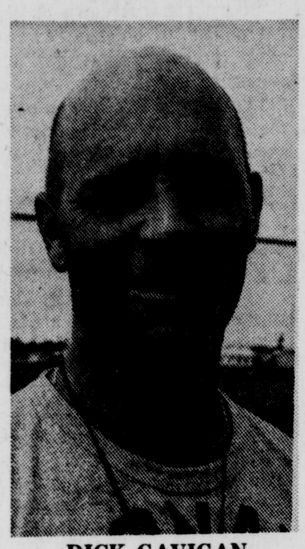
Moloznik was the team's leading pass catcher with 18 receptions for 392 yards and seven touchdowns. He led the team in scoring with 60 points and was third in rushing with 290 yards. Bruns and Moloznik will be returning next year.

Though he was hurt most of the season, Larry Hanks, junior backup quarterback, will be used often next fall. Gavigan wanted to use a test this year with Hanks at quarterback and Bruns as a halfback but with Hanks out this trial had to be scrapped until next year.

GILL LED THE Vikings in rushing with 77 rushes in 334 yards though having assorted injuries throughout the campaign. He was voted to the All-League team.

Fullback Bill McGuinn was Fremd's second leading ball carrier with 295 yards and it was he who netted many first downs for the Vikings on third down situations.

Mazanet was the leading receive among the ends with 10 catches (all in the last five games). Mike Mennick caught three passes as did Scott Murphy and they both blocked well.



DICK GAVIGAN

Bob Dolatowski, Glenn Wilson, Chuck Kellogg, Steve Hein and Steve Devereaux handled the offensive tackle positions most of the season. Unless injured, the guards were Kent Jensen and Steve Kuh, who were a fine pair. Filling in at guards were Chuck Goodman, Dan Carney and Tim Gleason.

TOM KAISER was Fremd's center at the beginning of the season and Larry Anderson took over the chores at mid-season.

Defensively, Fremd had its problems but most stemmed from a lack of pass defense. Opponents completed 55.3 per cent of their passes against the Viking defense but it should be noted that mos tof the opponents' success through the air came early in the season.

The defensive backfield, which improved along with the rest of the team as the season went on, was composed of Jeff Bruce, Chuck McGuinn, Mike Gleason, Larry MacPhee, Jeff Creek and Pete Clark.

OTHERS WHO played creditably for the Fremd grid squad were John Lowery, who scored one touchdown on a fumble recovery against Boylan, Don Drabrant, Bill Miner, Don Dixon, Bob Braun and Steve Smith.

"I'm not satisfied with our season," said Gavigan. "But a coach is never satisfied. I am pleased with our season, though.

"I'm real proud of the boys. They gave everything they had in every game. Not once did they let up.

"I think that the most important thing that happened this year," he went on, "is that we pulled ourselves off the bottom. We gained respectability and we finished right in the middle of the pack."

And that is a step in the right direction.

'Still A Way To Go...'

'Came A Long Way'

by KEITH REINHARD

Hersey's football team came up with a new recipe this fall.

It's called a "chagrinburger" and it's made by sandwiching a string of seven devastating triumphs between a pair of losses totaling a meager four points.

Another coach might have looked at the 7-2 mark compiled by the Huskies in their inaugural season another way. Len Burt could only feel disappointment however.

THE HERSEY mentor probably would have swapped all seven victories for wins in his opening and closing games of the campaign.

"There's no doubt we came a long way this season in developing fundamentally and refining our knowledge of the technical aspects of the game," Burt observed.

"We still have a way to go though," he continued, "before we reach physical and mental maturity."

Burt defined his disappointment by saying, "I remarked early in the year that I would be let down if we didn't win all the rest of our games. I still feel we had the better team out on Arlington's field the last day of the season but the Cards wanted the ballgame more than we did and that's what counts the most.

"THIS IS ALL part of that mental thing that has to come of age yet if we want to field a winning club next year," he added. "We can be a real strong unit next season and this season of growth has helped us immeasurably, but we still have our work cut out for us."

Burt feels he is getting a head start toward achieving some of his goals for next season. "We're encouraging all our football players to participate in sports programs all year long. Most of the kids will be playing three sports while others will be getting into a weight program we intend to set up very shortly."

"We had a lot of good, lean kids who we're hoping will fill out between now and next football season."

MENTALLY, Burt's hoping the continued athletic competition will be helpful too. "I want the players to really absorb this desire to win. Attitude is so important for a successful athletic program, from the coaches on down to the fans. We want to start the school off fresh with this desire in hopes it will become firmly implanted."

How well it is already implanted might be indicated by Hersey's just completed football campaign. Although the two defeats absorbed by the Huskies — to Glenbard North 7-6 and Arlington 23-20 — were significant, their seven topheavy triumphs cannot be overlooked.

During that time Hersey outpointed the rest of the jayvee competition in the circuit (except the Cardinals) 257-31 and accumuloted an awesome 2598 total yards while limiting the foe to just 396.

THE HUSKIES opened their season by playing the also-new Panthers in their only varsity encounter on the schedule. "It would have been a nice game to win and I think we could have given Glenbard a little rougher go later in the season, but at least we learned something from the defeat. Our kids were a little less inexperincd when we came away from this one."

After their opener, The Huskie scorebook reads like a Civil War document of Sherman's march through Georgia: Conant fell 26-6; Prospect succumbed 33-6; Forest View was vanquished 41-0; Fremd was crushed 25-0; Wheeling toppled 37-13; Palatine was flattened 46-0; Elk Grove crumbled 49-6.

And then came Arlington. It proved to be Hersey's Waterloo. After taking a 20-7 bulge into the dressing room at halftime, the Huskies faded beneath the unflagging spirit of the hosts and dropped their finale by a three-point margin.

WHAT LIES ahead for Burt, his assistants Steve Chernicky and Rick Fulk, and Hersey's football prospects remains to be seen. On the positive side, the Huskies will return next fall intact, and with the return of their hard-running halfback Skip Peterson to the lineup, could become one of the contenders for the crown.

"If we can cut down on the number of mistakes we've made, profit from our past experiences and restore some of the confidence that leaked away the last game of the season, we should hold our own in 1969," Burt projected.

And if Arlington is going to be a perpetual thorn in Hersey's aspirations, the Hersey gang has one barrier next season already defensed perfectly: The Huskies and Cardinals are not scheduled to play each other in next fall's campaign.

Wolverine Offense Solid

ANN ARBOR, Mich. UPI — Michigan's offense has been solid all season and Bump Elliott figures it should be good enough for the Big Ten championship game with Ohio State this Saturday.

"If it doesn't work, then we'll try someething else, I guess," Elliott said Wednesday as the Wolverines went through a nearly two-hour practice to prepare for the game which also will decide the Big Ten's representative to the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

"We hope our regular plays work," was Elliott's understatement regarding the game that will pit the Wolverines 8-1 against the Buckeyes 8-0.

Those regular plays are built around record-breaking halfback Ron Johnson who gained an incredible 347 yards and scored five touchdowns against Wisconsin last Saturday. This set an NCAA single-game rushing record, broke three Big Ten marks and a bevy of Michigan records, including one built by Tom Harmon when he was at Michigan.

The 205-pound senior from Detroit now is Michigan's all-time rusher with 2,349 yards, replacing Harmon who had 2,-134.

With Johnson leading the Michigan offense, one of Elliott's problems is going to be the Ohio State defense which he praised highly.

Of Buckeye roving linebacker Jack Tatum, Elliott said: "If I knew how we would play him, I probably wouldn't say anyway."

"It should be a good-hitting game," he added.

Don't Forget That Card

With the Illinois hunting season now hard upon us, a reminder: all Illinois hunters must carry the new firearm owners' identification card while in the field, along with the 1968 state hunting license. You can buy the hunting license without the card, but that's all. To hunt, to buy or sell guns and ammunition, you must have the card. The last of the seasons to open — the shotgun deer season — runs Nov. 22-24 and Dec. 6-8.

Hunter! Spare That Hen!

"Take it easy on the hens," is advice being given wholesale this fall to duck hunters. It comes now from state conservation director William T. Lodge, noting that hunters have been seeing an abundance of mallard drakes on the autumn flights. So spare the hens is the plea, with an obvious look ahead to next year's nesting.

If At First You Don't...

The first murmur has been heard toward reviving the billion dollar resources development referendum shot down in the Nov. 5 election. Metropolitan Sanitary District engineer Gerald Marks, one of the men behind the referendum, is pushing to have it put back on the ballot next year when voters consider delegates to the state constitutional convention.

Beall Woods, the eminent stand of virgin timber in southeast Illinois, is finally getting known. So far this year, the woods — boasting some of the biggest hardwoods in the state and the nation — has had 18,400 visitors from 38 states and nine countries strolling its paths. That's a record.

Hersey Opens Mat Season Tonight With Elmwood Park

by KEITH REINHARD

Wrestling becomes the third Hersey sport — the second of varsity variety — making its appearance on the prep athletic scene when Huskie matmen pair off against Elmwood Park in a non-conference fray tonight (Friday).

The Hersey grapplers will have at least one distinction: They are probably the youngest collection of wrestlers competing on the varsity level in the entire state this winter.

According to head mentor Tom Porter it's an enthusiastic group of nearly 100 preparing for the 1968-69 campaign at all four levels at Hersey. Porter himself is perhaps the most zealous, however, and surprisingly, his chief concern is not the lack of experience possessed by this youthful band.

"LACK OF space and equipment have caused our biggest headaches," Porter offered. "Because the gym complex still isn't finished we haven't had the proper facilities for practice sessions and we probably won't have everything ready to host this first match either."

While work continues on the gym area, Huskie wrestlers have been forced to shove desks and other equipment out of classrooms in order to set up practice areas. And with their inaugural with the Tigers scant days a way earlier this week, Hersey was still without bleachers and shy of a complete set of mats for the meeting.

Undaunted, Porter is still looking forward to a good year. "We're not expecting to start fast, but we think we'll get stronger as the kids gain experience, and we hope by the time the district meet comes along to be moving along in high gear."

AT ANY RATE this year could be the launching of an era for the coach and his charges.

With Hersey being just a three-year high school Porter figures to have everyone back again next winter. Even better on a long range basis, a possible eight of his 12 varsity starters should be around for two more seasons and perhaps a fourth of his first string team could be at hand for three more campaigns.

Of five juniors hoping to have varsity bouts with Elmwood Park, only four are certain starters. Mike Valentino figures to go in the 95-pound arena and Tom Campbell is listed at 103 with Tom Anderson at 165 and Craig Turpin at heavyweight.

TURPIN AND Valentino have had previous wrestling experience at Wheeling, Anderson is an Arlington veteran and Campbell is a transfer student from New Jersey.

Bruce Myers, another former Wheeling grappler and a junior, has the inside track at the 138-pound berth but is being pushed pretty hard by soph Dan McGuire and freshman Tom Noll.

Another strong battle for the number one position is being waged at 120 pounds where ex-Wildcat Jim Battagalia, a sophomore, is fending off frosh Brad Smith.

OTHER probably Huskie starters tonight include Paul Helbling, a sophomore with previous mat experience at Arlington, at 112; Jim Catanzaro, also a soph and a Card grappler last year, at 127, freshman Phil Fuller at 133, former Cardinals Red Allen and Dave Friebus, also sophs, at 154 and 145 pounds respectively; and sophomore Bob Knaack, who grappled at Wheeling as a freshman, listed at 180.

Porter figures the conference race to be between Arlington and Prospect this year with Forest View coming up fast. "We should be fairly strong ourselves in the lighter weights," he said.

After tonight's contest Hersey opens league play by hosting Glenbard North Dec. 6.

Still the Top Toe

Ageless George Blanda of the Oakland Raiders led the AFL in scoring last year with 116 points on 56 PAT's in 57 tries and 20 field goals in 30 attempts. He had easily the most extra points and only Stenerud of Kansas City, with 21, had more field goals.

Hersey Opens Mat Season Tonight With Elmwood Park

FRI., NOV. 22, 1968

the best in SPORTS
PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS

by KEITH REINHARD

Wrestling becomes the third Hersey sport — the second of varsity variety — making its appearance on the prep athletic scene when Huskie matmen pair off against Elmwood Park in a non-conference fray tonight (Friday).

The Hersey grapplers will have at least one distinction: They are probably the youngest collection of wrestlers competing on the varsity level in the entire state this winter.

According to head mentor Tom Porter it's an enthusiastic group of nearly 100 preparing for the 1968-69 campaign at all four levels at Hersey. Porter himself is perhaps the most zealous, however, and surprisingly, his chief concern is not the lack of experience possessed by this youthful band.

"LACK OF space and equipment have caused our biggest headaches," Porter offered. "Because the gym complex still isn't finished we haven't had the proper facilities for practice sessions and we probably won't have everything ready to host this first match either."

While work continues on the gym area, Huskie wrestlers have been forced to shove desks and other equipment out of classrooms in order to set up practice areas. And with their inaugural with the Tigers scant days a way earlier this week, Hersey was still without bleachers and shy of a complete set of mats for the meeting.

Undaunted, Porter is still looking forward to a good year. "We're not expecting to start fast, but we think we'll get stronger as the kids gain experience, and we hope by the time the district meet comes along to be moving along in high gear."

AT ANY RATE this year could be the launching of an era for the coach and his charges.

With Hersey being just a three-year high school Porter figures to have everyone back again next winter. Even better on a long range basis, a possible eight of his 12 varsity starters should be around for two more seasons and perhaps a fourth of his first string team could be at hand for three more campaigns.

Of five juniors hoping to have varsity bouts with Elmwood Park, only four are certain starters. Mike Valentino figures to go in the 95-pound arena and Tom Campbell is listed at 103 with Tom Anderson at 165 and Craig Turpin at heavyweight.

TURPIN AND Valentino have had previous wrestling experience at Wheeling, Anderson is an Arlington veteran and Campbell is a transfer student from New Jersey.

Bruce Myers, another former Wheeling grappler and a junior, has the inside track at the 138-pound berth but is being pushed pretty hard by soph Dan McGuire and freshman Tom Noll.

Another strong battle for the number one position is being waged at 120 pounds where ex-Wildcat Jim Battagalia, a sophomore, is fending off frosh Brad Smith.

OTHER probably Huskie starters tonight include Paul Helbling, a sophomore with previous mat experience at Arlington, at 112; Jim Catanzaro, also a soph and a Card grappler last year, at 127, freshman Phil Fuller at 133, former Cardinals Red Allen and Dave Friebus, also sophs, at 154 and 145 pounds respectively; and sophomore Bob Knaack, who grappled at Wheeling as a freshman, listed at 180.

Porter figures the conference race to be between Arlington and Prospect this year with Forest View coming up fast. "We should be fairly strong ourselves in the lighter weights," he said.

After tonight's contest Hersey opens league play by hosting Glenbard North Dec. 6.

Still the Top Toe

Ageless George Blanda of the Oakland Raiders led the AFL in scoring last year with 116 points on 56 PAT's in 57 tries and 20 field goals in 30 attempts. He had easily the most extra points and only Stenerud of Kansas City, with 21, had more field goals.

When A Rule Change Is Sought

Politics in Sports — The Six Steps That Lead to Nowhere

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

For a rule to be changed in the Mid-Suburban League, this is what must be done:

FIRST — At least six of the 10 coaches of a particular sport of the MSL must approve the change.

SECOND — The coaches must present their proposal to the MSL's athletic directors and six of the 10 athletic directors must approve the proposal.

THIRD — If the athletic directors approve the change, then they take the proposal to the principal of each of 10 schools in the Mid-Suburban League. At least six of the 10 principals must approve the proposal.

FOURTH — The principals of MSL schools, if they approve the change, must take the proposal to the Inter-Suburban Association's 42 athletic directors and a majority of the athletic directors must approve the proposal.

FIFTH — The athletic directors of the Inter-Suburban Association, if they approve the change, must bring the proposal before the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control which is made up of Superintendents of the school district which make up the Inter-Suburban Association. The Superintendents may then approve the change, but it must have two-thirds of the vote of 19 Superintendents.

SIXTH — If the rule change affects the state, then the Illinois High School Association must give its approval, provided that the rule ever got past the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control.

If the rule change is not voted down in any of these six steps, then the new rule will be in effect.

The Illinois High School Association lays down a set of rules and by-laws for the state but the Inter-Suburban Association, to which the Mid-Suburban League belongs, also has its own set of rules.

IF A LEAGUE wishes to make a change in Inter-Suburban Association ruling, then it must progress through the first five steps.

Of the 19 Superintendents on the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control, eight are superintendents from districts which have schools in the Suburban League. In other words, the balance of power of the Inter-Suburban Association is in the Suburban League.

Years ago the Inter-Suburban Association made a ruling which stated that only four coaches may be on the practice field the first four days of football practice. The athletic directors of the Inter-Suburban Association proposed many times to have this ruling done away with but each time that block of eight votes coming from the Suburban League killed the proposal.

ON OCTOBER 31, 1967, the Mid-Suburban League asked to add two contests for just the 1968-69 school year for the sports of wrestling, gymnastics, golf, tennis and baseball. The block vote of the Suburban League prevented its passage.

The Mid-Suburban League asked the Inter-Suburban Association for the permission to play nine games for the 1969 season as the league did in 1968, but the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control passed that only eight games are to be played in 1969.

In 1967, the Mid-Suburban League was composed of eight schools — ideal for scheduling in all sports.

But, behind the motions of the Inter-Suburban Association, Glenbard North became a member of the Mid-Suburban League with the start of the 1968 football season and Hersey will operate in the Mid-Suburban League with the start of the 1968-69 basketball season.

WITH THE situation of having 10 schools in the league, every school in the league will not play each other twice during the basketball season. And in football next year, each school will not play two other MSL schools.

For instance, Palatine and Fremd high schools, two schools which are establishing quite a rivalry in District 211, will not play next fall on the football field.

In basketball this winter, Conant plays Fremd, Prospect and Wheeling twice each, but Wheeling only plays Prospect once and Fremd once.

WITH TEN teams in the Mid-Suburban League in each sport, there is the possibility of having a three-way tie in almost every sport for the championship and in some cases a team could win a championship simply because it was given an advantageous schedule.

The Mid-Suburban League is faced with having 10 teams in its league for only a couple of years. The situation will get worse after that point since a number of new schools may be built in Districts 214 and 211 in the next few years. Thus the Mid-Suburban League at one time or another will have 11, 12, 13 and perhaps 14 schools in its conference.

Eventually, there will be a split in the conference. When the split does come, a number of schools in the Mid-Suburban League will be prevented from playing other schools with which rivalries had been established.

To many, this is not a pleasant situation. But, the Mid-Suburban League can do nothing about it. The Mid-Suburban League does not run the Mid-Suburban League. The Inter-Suburban Association runs the Mid-Suburban League. And when it gets right down to it, the Suburban League runs the Inter-Suburban Association and in effect runs the Mid-Suburban League.

The Inter-Suburban Association was established to aid new schools to get into conferences. But in helping a new school, it hurts the setup of the conference in which it is placed.

WORD HAS been circulated that the Mid-Suburban League should freeze — not allow any new members into the league. But in order to do this the Mid-Suburban League must get approval in the first five previously mentioned steps. Needless to say, this approval would never be given.

Word has been circulated that the Mid-Suburban League would like to change its policy of choosing All-Conference players. Again all the steps would have to be taken. It is unlikely that the Inter-Suburban Association would pass such a change in ruling.

Word has been circulated that the Mid-Suburban League should even withdraw from the Inter-Suburban Association. But even this move would have to have Inter-Suburban Association approval.

The Mid-Suburban League had an ideal setup with eight schools. It does not have as good a setup with 10 schools. With more schools, the situation would be even worse.

But the Mid-Suburban League cannot do a thing about it. And it sure is a shame that it can't.

by STEVE SMILANICH
UPI Sports Writer

The cupboard will be almost bare Saturday for college football teams looking for bowls but the oldest cup of them all, the Rose Bowl, will be there waiting to be picked up by either Ohio State or Michigan.

Southern California already has its hands on the Rose Bowl as the West Coast representative in the Pasadena classic and the co-owner will be established Saturday when Ohio State and Michigan clash in the Big Ten title game.

Should the contest end in a tie, Ohio State would represent the Midwest since Michigan visited Pasadena more recently than the Buckeyes.

The Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Sun Bowls signed four schools early this week and will complete the task of filling the remaining berths after Saturday's games.

Second-ranked Ohio State is favored by four points to make its first Rose Bowl trip since the 1957 club. The Buckeyes, seeking their first perfect record since 1954, have an 8-0 mark while Michigan State is 8-1.

Top-ranked USC, also 8-0, tangles with cross-city rival UCLA with the O. J. Simpson-led Trojans favored by 14.

When A Rule Change Is Sought

Politics in Sports — The Six Steps That Lead to Nowhere

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

For a rule to be changed in the Mid-Suburban League, this is what must be done:

FIRST — At least six of the 10 coaches of a particular sport of the MSL must approve the change.

SECOND — The coaches must present their proposal to the MSL's athletic directors and six of the 10 athletic directors must approve the proposal.

THIRD — If the athletic directors approve the change, then they take the proposal to the principal of each of 10 schools in the Mid-Suburban League. At least six of the 10 principals must approve the proposal.

FOURTH — The principals of MSL schools, if they approve the change, must take the proposal to the Inter-Suburban Association's 42 athletic directors and a majority of the athletic directors must approve the proposal.

FIFTH — The athletic directors of the Inter-Suburban Association, if they approve the change, must bring the proposal before the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control which is made up of Superintendents of the school district which make up the Inter-Suburban Association. The Superintendents may then approve the change, but it must have two-thirds of the vote of 19 Superintendents.

SIXTH — If the rule change affects the state, then the Illinois High School Association must give its approval, provided that the rule ever got past the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control.

If the rule change is not voted down in any of these six steps, then the new rule will be in effect.

The Illinois High School Association lays down a set of rules and by-laws for the state but the Inter-Suburban Association, to which the Mid-Suburban League belongs, also has its own set of rules.

IF A LEAGUE wishes to make a change in Inter-Suburban Association ruling, then it must progress through the first five steps.

Of the 19 Superintendents on the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control, eight are superintendents from districts which have schools in the Suburban League. In other words, the balance of power of the Inter-Suburban Association is in the Suburban League.

Years ago the Inter-Suburban Association made a ruling which stated that only four coaches may be on the practice field the first four days of football practice. The athletic directors of the Inter-Suburban Association proposed many times to have this ruling done away with but each time that block of eight votes coming from the Suburban League killed the proposal.

ON OCTOBER 31, 1967, the Mid-Suburban League asked to add two contests for just the 1968-69 school year for the sports of wrestling, gymnastics, golf, tennis and baseball. The block vote of the Suburban League prevented its passage.

The Mid-Suburban League asked the Inter-Suburban Association for the permission to play nine games for the 1969 season as the league did in 1968, but the Inter-Suburban Association Board of Control passed that only eight games are to be played in 1969.

In 1967, the Mid-Suburban League was composed of eight schools — ideal for scheduling in all sports.

But, behind the motions of the Inter-Suburban Association, Glenbard North became a member of the Mid-Suburban League with the start of the 1968 football season and Hersey will operate in the Mid-Suburban League with the start of the 1968-69 basketball season.

WITH THE situation of having 10 schools in the league, every school in the league will not play each other twice during the basketball season. And in football next year, each school will not play two other MSL schools.

For instance, Palatine and Fremd high schools, two schools which are establishing quite a rivalry in District 211, will not play next fall on the football field.

In basketball this winter, Conant plays Fremd, Prospect and Wheeling twice each, but Wheeling only plays Prospect once and Fremd once.

WITH TEN teams in the Mid-Suburban League in each sport, there is the possibility of having a three-way tie in almost every sport for the championship and in some cases a team could win a championship simply because it was given an advantageous schedule.

The Mid-Suburban League is faced with having 10 teams in its league for only a couple of years. The situation will get worse after that point since a number of new schools may be built in Districts 214 and 211 in the next few years. Thus the Mid-Suburban League at one time or another will have 11, 12, 13 and perhaps 14 schools in its conference.

Eventually, there will be a split in the conference. When the split does come, a number of schools in the Mid-Suburban League will be prevented from playing other schools with which rivalries had been established.

To many, this is not a pleasant situation. But, the Mid-Suburban League can do nothing about it. The Mid-Suburban League does not run the Mid-Suburban League. The Inter-Suburban Association runs the Mid-Suburban League. And when it gets right down to it, the Suburban League runs the Inter-Suburban Association and in effect runs the Mid-Suburban League.

The Inter-Suburban Association was established to aid new schools to get into conferences. But in helping a new school, it hurts the setup of the conference in which it is placed.

WORD HAS been circulated that the Mid-Suburban League should freeze — not allow any new members into the league. But in order to do this the Mid-Suburban League must get approval in the first five previously mentioned steps. Needless to say, this approval would never be given.

Word has been circulated that the Mid-Suburban League would like to change its policy of choosing All-Conference players. Again all the steps would have to be taken. It is unlikely that the Inter-Suburban Association would pass such a change in ruling.

Word has been circulated that the Mid-Suburban League should even withdraw from the Inter-Suburban Association. But even this move would have to have Inter-Suburban Association approval.

The Mid-Suburban League had an ideal setup with eight schools. It does not have as good a setup with 10 schools. With more schools, the situation would be even worse.

But the Mid-Suburban League cannot do a thing about it. And it sure is a shame that it can't.

Bowls Almost Filled But...

by STEVE SMILANICH
UPI Sports Writer

The cupboard will be almost bare Saturday for college football teams looking for bowls but the oldest cup of them all, the Rose Bowl, will be there waiting to be picked up by either Ohio State or Michigan.

Southern California already has its hands on the Rose Bowl as the West Coast representative in the Pasadena classic and the co-owner will be established Saturday when Ohio State and Michigan clash in the Big Ten title game.

Should the contest end in a tie, Ohio State would represent the Midwest since Michigan visited Pasadena more recently than the Buckeyes.

The Rose, Sugar, Cotton and Sun Bowls signed four schools early this week and will complete the task of filling the remaining berths after Saturday's games.

Second-ranked Ohio State is favored by four points to make its first Rose Bowl trip since the 1957 club. The Buckeyes, seeking their first perfect record since 1954, have an 8-0 mark while Michigan State is 8-1.

Top-ranked USC, also 8-0, tangles with cross-city rival UCLA with the O. J. Simpson-led Trojans favored by 14.

Colorful Mums— A Fall Favorite

by RICHARD DE LANO

Florists' potted chrysanthemums, always popular in fall, have gained special favor since professional growers now produce these colorful plants in many attractive, compact shapes and colors. People like potted mums because they serve the same decorative purpose as cut flowers and arrive arranged in their own red clay pots.

Clay-potted mums in yellow and rust shades make handsome worthwhile plants for pre-Christmas giving.

DeLANO

They are available in many forms including the new compacts as well as the long-stem oriental spoon type, and the large football mums which can serve double duty as a corsage whenever you like. Another point in favor of the potted mum is that you can plant some varieties in your garden next spring after frost danger is past. You will enjoy its blossoms again in fall and there will be repeat bloom for years to come.

House plant buyers are becoming increasingly aware of the future double duty value of plants they purchase as gifts. Both mums and the ever-favored Christmas poinsettias are plants with futures, but there are many others. Azaleas are a very new item for the Christmas trade.

ALWAYS A standby, we hardly need to be reminded of the colorful Christmas cherries and peppers of many kinds, usually with orange or red fruit.

African violets you buy as gift plants will not serve outdoors, but can go on for years and years indoors, producing many new plants from cuttings placed in water or soil and later when roots form.

The semperflorens or Christmas begonia is another old favorite now available in improved, compact forms like Pink and Red Pearl. Begonias will bloom without sun, if given strong light from the north window or from a flurescent tube a foot above their tops.

GREEN PLANTS, available in profusion in fall and winter, are long-lived house plants. Many are capable of surviving in subdued light for many months. You'll find rubber plants, self-heading philodendrons of many kinds, dracaena, dieffenbachia, and Boston ferns as well as smaller table ferns.

For details on growing and reblooming gift plants in your home, obtain our free leaflet on the topic. For your copy send a card to: University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, Main P.O. Bldg., Room 3, Des Plaines, Ill., 60016.

Think Of All Those Ornaments!

WASHINGTON UPI — Government officials in charge of the annual Christmas pageant of peace in the nation's capital ordered their tree early.

The 1968 Christmas tree — a 74-foot Englemann spruce from Utah — is headed east by rail and reported due here Nov. 26 or 27, a day or two before Thanksgiving.

THE TREE is erected annually as the central feature of the pageant of peace display on the grounds between the White House and the Washington Monument.

The 1968 tree is a 115-year-old specimen cut from the Uinta National Forest last week at a site in rugged Daniels Canyon near Heber City, Utah. The tree is 24 inches across at the stump and brances out to a diameter of 20 feet at its widest point.

Florists' potted chrysanthemums, always popular in fall, have gained special favor since professional growers now produce these colorful plants in many attractive, compact shapes and colors. People like potted mums because they serve the same decorative purpose as cut flowers and arrive arranged in their own red clay pots.

Clay-potted mums in yellow and rust shades make handsome worthwhile plants for pre-Christmas giving.

DeLANO

They are available in many forms including the new compacts as well as the long-stem oriental spoon type, and the large football mums which can serve double duty as a corsage whenever you like. Another point in favor of the potted mum is that you can plant some varieties in your garden next spring after frost danger is past. You will enjoy its blossoms again in fall and there will be repeat bloom for years to come.

House plant buyers are becoming increasingly aware of the future double duty value of plants they purchase as gifts. Both mums and the ever-favored Christmas poinsettias are plants with futures, but there are many others. Azaleas are a very new item for the Christmas trade.

ALWAYS A standby, we hardly need to be reminded of the colorful Christmas cherries and peppers of many kinds, usually with orange or red fruit.

African violets you buy as gift plants will not serve outdoors, but can go on for years and years indoors, producing many new plants from cuttings placed in water or soil and later when roots form.

The semperflorens or Christmas begonia is another old favorite now available in improved, compact forms like Pink and Red Pearl. Begonias will bloom without sun, if given strong light from the north window or from a flurescent tube a foot above their tops.

GREEN PLANTS, available in profusion in fall and winter, are long-lived house plants. Many are capable of surviving in subdued light for many months. You'll find rubber plants, self-heading philodendrons of many kinds, dracaena, dieffenbachia, and Boston ferns as well as smaller table ferns.

For details on growing and reblooming gift plants in your home, obtain our free leaflet on the topic. For your copy send a card to: University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, Main P.O. Bldg., Room 3, Des Plaines, Ill., 60016.

Think Of All Those Ornaments!

WASHINGTON UPI — Government officials in charge of the annual Christmas pageant of peace in the nation's capital ordered their tree early.

The 1968 Christmas tree — a 74-foot Englemann spruce from Utah — is headed east by rail and reported due here Nov. 25 or 27, a day or two before Thanksgiving.

THE TREE is erected annually as the central feature of the pageant of peace display on the grounds between the White House and the Washington Monument.

The 1968 tree is a 115-year-old specimen cut from the Uinta National Forest last week at a site in rugged Daniels Canyon near Heber City, Utah. The tree is 24 inches across at the stump and brances out to a diameter of 20 feet at its widest point.

Falcon Drive, Arlington Heights, promoted to Pfc., D Co.

At Canton

MY FATHER OWNS THE WORLD

A well-known Christian gentleman was taking his customary morning walk. His head was up, his shoulders back, and his step was lively. A friend stepped up to him and said:

"Sir, you look like you own the world."

Without slackening his pace, the Christian sharply replied:

"No, I don't — but my Father does!"

This blessed privilege of a Father-son relationship with God is possible and offered to all people. (2 Corinthians 6: 17, 18.) The "power" or "right to become children of God" is, of course, dependant upon belief in Jesus as the Son of God. (John 1:12.) This "right" is exercised by confessing faith in Jesus (Matthew 10:32,33.); by repenting or turning away from sin (Acts 17:30; 2:38.); and by being baptized for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38; 22:16.)

Baptism is the consumating act by which we become "children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." (Galatians 3:26,27.)

Having become "children of God," we are then "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified with him." (Romans 8:16,17.)

Truly, our Father does own the world. "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof." (1 Corinthians 10:26.) But according to His own decree, all these things will eventually pass away, nevertheless, "according to his promise, we look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." Read 2 Peter 3:10-13.

Friend, does YOUR Father own the world???

MY FATHER OWNS THE WORLD

A well-known Christian gentleman was taking his customary morning walk. His head was up, his shoulders back, and his step was lively. A friend stepped up to him and said:

"Sir, you look like you own the world."

Without slackening his pace, the Christian sharply replied:

"No, I don't — but my Father does!"

This blessed privilege of a Father-son relationship with God is possible and offered to all people. (2 Corinthians 6: 17, 18.) The "power" or "right to become children of God" is, of course, dependant upon belief in Jesus as the Son of God. (John 1:12.) This "right" is exercised by confessing faith in Jesus (Matthew 10:32,33.); by repenting or turning away from sin (Acts 17:30; 2:38.); and by being baptized for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38; 22:16.)

Baptism is the consumating act by which we become "children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." (Galatians 3:26,27.)

Having become "children of God," we are then "heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified with him." (Romans 8:16,17.)

Truly, our Father does own the world. "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof." (1 Corinthians 10:26.) But according to His own decree, all these things will eventually pass away, nevertheless, "according to his promise, we look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness." Read 2 Peter 3:10-13.

Friend, does YOUR Father own the world???

Foreign Relations Faces Change

Doves Settling In Committee?

WASHINGTON UPI —Richard M. Nixon may face a Senate Foreign Relations Committee even more monolithically opposed to the Viet Nam war and devoid of "hard-liners" than the one which gave President Johnson nightmares the past three years.

The committee lost five members through retirements and election defeats and some members would like to see only one of the vacancies filled, preferrably with Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.

If that happens, only Sens. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., John J. Williams, R-Del., and Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. would be left holding the cudgel for a hard line in east-west relations.

MANY SENIOR committee members, including Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., have long held that the panel is too big and unwieldy with 19 members. In important hearings, such as those on Viet Nam, in which Secretary of State Dean Rusk testified, members were seldom able to pursue their interest to the root.

The committee was left with nine Democrats and five Republicans through the retirements of Sens. Bourke Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, and Frank Carlson, R-Kan. and election losses incurred by Democrats Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, Joseph Clark, of Pennsylvania, and Wayne Morse of Oregon.

The addition of Javits to the committee would give the GOP six of the panel's 15 members, reflecting the party's gains in Senate elections Nov. 5. The committee has had 12 Democrats and seven Republicans since 1966.

JAVITS and at least nine other committee members can be expected, to one degree or another, to continue plugging for a negotiated settlement in Viet Nam, east-west detente, and a more effective role for the Senate in foreign policy decisions by the Nixon administration.

Dodd, Williams and Mundt would take the opposite tack, and the views of Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., and Stuart Symington, D-Mo. are not so clearly defined, although Symington has been increasingly restive about the Viet Nam war.

A reduction in the size of the committee is by no means certain. It will not be settled until the 17-member Democratic steering committee meets in January to make committee assignments.

Several senators who want to be on the panel probably would not stand still while some of the seats were eliminated. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., wants on the panel and probably will be doubly desirous of the seat if he loses his contest for Senate Republican whip. Sen. Gale McGhee, D-Wyo., was bumped from the committee in 1967 to make room for a Republican and it is understood he wants back on.

NONETHELESS, some members see a golden opportunity to cut the committee down for a more workable size without kicking anybody off.

The last time the size of Foreign Relations Committee was changed was 1965, when membership was increased from 17 to 19.

Insects Beware! Your Bad Habits May Be Mated Out

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here's the problem: you are a wheat farmer and your crops are being damaged by hessian flies.

In which of the following ways would you react: dust the wheat with hessian fly powder; become an oat farmer; sell the farm and get a job as a brain surgeon.

If you checked any of the above solutions, it shows a singular lack of ingenuity on your part. Which isn't surprising. If you had any ingenuity, you probably wouldn't be a wheat farmer in the first place.

IF YOU had any ingenuity, your name would be Dr. Robert L. Gallun and you would be working for the U. S. Department of agriculture.

Gallun, a USDA entomologist, is attacking the hessian fly problem in a truly ingenious manner. It is his idea to save the wheat by insect interbreeding.

As he explained at the international wheat genetics symposium in Australia this fall, there are eight races of hessian flies that look alike but differ in their ability to infest various wheat varieties.

The Great Plains hessian fly, for example, is unable to infest soft wheat.

OKAY. IF you are Dr. Gallun, you produce a big bunch of Great Plains hessian flies in the laboratory and then you turn them out in a soft wheat area and let them mate with other types of hessian flies.

If things work out right, the next generation of hessian flies will inherit the genetic characteristics that render Great Plains hessian flies incapable of infesting soft wheat.

I stand in admiration of Dr. Gallun for thinking this up and I want to be the first to predict that it will usher in an entire new era of insect control.

The day when we attacked insects with flit guns, fly swatters and other crude devices may soon be gone forever. Instead, we simply cross them up genetically and let heredity do them in.

IF THE Gallun plan works for hessian flies, it should work for other types of insects, such as ants. Among the many varieties of ants, there must be at least one variety that dislikes picnics.

Large numbers could be produced in a laboratory and then released in public parks, there to mate with other ants. In a couple of generations, every grassy knoll would be crawling with picnic-hating ants.

Then we could start breeding a strain of squeamish mosquitoes that faint at the sight of human blood.

With Charm, Johnson Thanks 60 Secretaries

WASHINGTON UPI — President Johnson sentimentally thanked more than 60 White House secretaries for their service Tuesday and told them they "made the impossible possible" during his administration.

Johnson said when he assumed presidential power five years ago he vowed "to use every bit of it for good."

"AND YOU HAVE been my instruments," he told the smiling secretaries, who gathered in the White House fish room for the meeting with their boss. The secretaries work for Johnson and his White House assistants.

The President has held similar thank-you meetings with telephone operators, correspondence clerks and employes in other White House departments.

Johnson gave the girls gold charms with the presidential seal. He quipped that it "could be worn in any administration" and is "a symbol of the office and not the man."

CHARM, THE President said, means "to ward off evil."

"It's a little late to give it to you now," he said. The secretaries laughed.

The group, which applauded when the President entered the room, included his personal secretary, Juanita Roberts, and a number of others who have worked for Johnson for years.

Hike Bank Exchange Rate Offer

The board of directors of All American Life and Financial Corp. announced its intention to increase the exchange rate in connection with its proposed offer to stockholders of O'Hare International Bank. The new rate of exchange will be 2 5/8 shares of the common stock of All American Life and Financial Corp. for each outstanding share of the common stock of O'Hare International Bank. The exchange remains contingent on All American receiving at least 80 per cent of the 230,000 shares of outstanding O'Hare Bank stock.

On July 18, it was announced the rate of exchange would be 2½ shares of All American for each share of O'Hare. Commenting on the increase, E. E. Ballard, president and chairman of All American Life and Financial Corp., said the new exchange rate was made to reflect changes in certain relative values and hopefully will result in a larger participation on the part of O'Hare stockholders and that the necessary shares would be tendered at an early date.

Palatine Band Signs Associate Conductor

DR. JOHN SHOEMAKER

The Palatine Village Band this week announced that Dr. John R. Shoemaker, Palatine, will be the associate conductor of the band following the resignation of Don Caneva from that position.

Dr. Shoemaker was for six years the conductor of the Palatine High School Band which consistently won first division ratings in the Illinois State Music Association contests. He has a doctorate in music education and is currently authoring articles on methods in the field of music education.

While working toward a Bachelor of Music Education degree, he performed as trombone soloist with the Drake University Band when that organization toured the Midwest. He was also instructor of brass instruments in the Des Moines Public School system and played regularly with show and dance bands, among them Blue Baron and Ralph Flannigan.

AFTER ONE YEAR of teaching experience in Iowa, Shoemaker returned to school for his Master of Music degree at Northwestern and then moved to Palatine. In 1965 Shoemaker began work on his doctorate at Washington University and assumed the duties of assistant conductor of the WU Band. The following year he was appointed acting conductor of bands.

During Shoemakers last year in St. Louis he played with the Collegium Musicum Society, the St. Louis symphony and conducted the Washington University Brass Ensemble.

DR. SHOEMAKER appeared as guest conductor of the Palatine Village Band on Aug. 9 and 16 for the final two performances of the past summer series.

The Sunday Nov. 24 free concert at 4p.m. in Prospect High by the Palatine Village Band will include Sousa marches, a Puccini aria, folk melodies, and music by Nelhybel, Schubert, Bielwa, Hazelman and Wagner.

Palatine Band Signs Associate Conductor

DR. JOHN SHOEMAKER

The Palatine Village Band this week announced that Dr. John R. Shoemaker, Palatine, will be the associate conductor of the band following the resignation of Don Caneva from that position.

Dr. Shoemaker was for six years the conductor of the Palatine High School Band which consistently won first division ratings in the Illinois State Music Association contests. He has a doctorate in music education and is currently authoring articles on methods in the field of music education.

While working toward a Bachelor of Music Education degree, he performed as trombone soloist with the Drake University Band when that organization toured the Midwest. He was also instructor of brass instruments in the Des Moines Public School system and played regularly with show and dance bands, among them Blue Baron and Ralph Flannigan.

AFTER ONE YEAR of teaching experience in Iowa, Shoemaker returned to school for his Master of Music degree at Northwestern and then moved to Palatine. In 1965 Shoemaker began work on his doctorate at Washington University and assumed the duties of assistant conductor of the WU Band. The following year he was appointed acting conductor of bands.

During Shoemakers last year in St. Louis he played with the Collegium Musicum Society, the St. Louis symphony and conducted the Washington University Brass Ensemble.

DR. SHOEMAKER appeared as guest conductor of the Palatine Village Band on Aug. 9 and 16 for the final two performances of the past summer series.

The Sunday Nov. 24 free concert at 4p.m. in Prospect High by the Palatine Village Band will include Sousa marches, a Puccini aria, folk melodies, and music by Nelhybel, Schubert, Bielwa, Hazelman and Wagner.

Chamber Music

Members of the Allied Arts of Arlington Heights will be entertained by the Countryside Chamber Music Group Tuesday, Nov. 26 at 1:15 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Karl Siedentop. Helen Young is the pianist and plays the harpsicord, Joan Dunlop plays the viola and alto recorder, Jean Lindner plays both the alto and tenor recorder, Nan Stocking plays the viola, Christel Siedentop, hostess and member of Allied Arts, plays all the recorders, and Joan Grisell does the narrating.

Chamber music dates back to the 16th century. The Countryside Chamber Assembly is a non professional group. They play for the pleasure of performing for their families and friends.

Ivanhoe Wins Agine With 'Mary Sunshine'

by RACHEL HEUMAN

Ivanhoe's premiere musical "Little Mary Sunshine," produced and directed by George Keathley, was a smashing success. The Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy spoof was thorough in running the gamut of characteristics familiar to old time musical melodrama. The effect was hilarious fun.

In fact, it was difficult to say who was having the better time, the cast or the audience.

Script, lyrics, music, choreography, set and costuming were so well combined that the total effect could not have better achieved the play's intended purpose — to point up for its greatest entertainment value, the humor in the stereotyped musicals of the Victor Herbert, Sigmund Romberg vintage where God and country and "the true, the good and the beautiful" were the unassailable virtues of the day.

FROM THE opening song and dance routine performed by those clean-cut, wholesome, sound of mind and body forest rangers to the conclusion when the virtuous and innocent Mary Sunshine breaks into spontaneous song with "My Country Tis of Thee," (with accompanying flag-waving) the play is a "Laugh-In" of fun.

It has been said of Rowan's and Martin's Laugh-In (where Miss Brennan made an appearance last season): "If you miss a joke, wait a second and there'll be another." This pretty well describes "Little Mary Sunshine."

BETWEEN THE pert star's caricatured facial expressions and "meaningfull" head wagging, to the choreographing mimicries designed by Luis De Ybarrondo, to the unbelievably daring lyrics by composer Rick Besoyan ("You've had your cake and now you'll have to lay in it; if you've made your bed, now you'll have to eat it," or "I couldn't see the forest rangers for the (girls') limbs,") the play evoked delighted laughter throughout.

Eileen Brennan is a natural comic with the light touch and perfect timing that keeps the necessarily fast-moving pace in step. She was supported by an all-around excellent cast, some of the more predominant being Dick Stadelmann (Captain Big Jim), Jane Johnston (Nancy Twinkle, the pants-crazy maid), Marijane Maricle (Mme. Ernestine Von Liebedich), Charles Berendt (Cpl. Billy Jester, a rather cowardly forest ranger) and Art Kassul (Gen. Oscar Fairfax, an honorable wolf).

The play ended too soon, too soon — both for those who well remembered the MacDonald-Eddy team and for those who had had little or no exposure to it. And with a series of inward meaningful wags of our heads as we reluctantly arose from our seats we thought, "Oh-h-h-h, God bless you, Little Mary Sunshine — for an evening of pure fun!"

And a good time was had by all — at a recent open meeting of the Guild Players.

For their first Guest Night of the season, the Guild players rapidly dispensed with business to get into the meat of the evening which included a brief autobiography of the 11-year old group, excerpts from their children's play, "Mystery Rocket," and from "Anastasia" and "The Odd Couple." Refreshments and a get-acquainted period concluded the evening.

CELEBRATING their eleventh season, the Guild, in addition to their regular four-play season, is active in community affairs. Some of their past endeavors have included the presentation of toys to the children of Little City and of scholarships to students of Conant and Lake Park High Schools.

Though their business is conducted in Hoffman Estates, the Guild hopes to attract talent from all sectors of the Northwestern suburbs and encourages interested individuals to attend their meetings and receive their literature.

It's a Mystery

The Mystery Rocket sighted in the area last week has changed course. Rumor has it that its new destination is the Ice Planet ruled by the unsociable zafrigida. It has also been noted that the Mystery Rocket is carrying more passengers than had originally been estimated. One appears to be a human, and another, a dog, species undetermined.

Meanwhile, Rickey Sorenson, Earth Boy, has been reported missing. It is said by neighbors that he was concerned about his dog, a recent volunteer for the space program. Are there connections between the events? When asked for comment, Norma Simone of the Guild Players had this to say about the puzzle: "Don't quote me." You've been quoted anyway, Norma. Ha ha.

Will Rickey Sorenson return? Who are the strange passengers on The Mystery Rocket? Watch for further developments.

Snow White Held Until Dec. 21

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will run for three additional weeks at the Mill Run Playhouse Children's Theatre. The new closing date is Dec. 21. Children's Theatre productions are presented each Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

Members of the cast include Gayle Trulove, Arlington Heights and Denise Sabala, Des Plaines.

Countryside Gallery Has American Craft

Countryside Gallery, 407 N. Vail, Arlington Heights, is currently presenting a Pottery, Construction and Crafts Show. Eight gallery artists and four guests have on display a collection of crafts and constructions until the end of November. The Gallery artists include Dorothy Roberta Kruse of Palatine, Dianne Syverson of Arlington Heights, Don Johns of Elgin, Masey Dorf of Skokie, Peg Tootelian of Naperville, Theo Lefmann of Northbrook, and Frances and Michael Higgins of Riverside.

Dorothy Kruse is well known for her fine work in constructions and collage. She has studied at the Chicago Art Institute and at Countryside Center. Mrs. Kruse has had three one-man shows and has won a number of awards.

DIANNE SYVERSON, one of the founders of Countryside Art Center, works with constructions. She has had several one-man shows and her work has been seen at many of the local art fairs. She won first and third prizes at the Illinois State Fair last year.

Don Johns is one of Countryside's best known artists. His pottery has been acclaimed all over the country and is in the permanent collections of Illinois State Normal University, the Northern Illinois Gas Company and the Borg-Warner Corporation.

A new artist at Countryside, Masey Dorf studied at Southern Illinois University and holds a Master of Fine Arts Degree. His primary medium is ceramics and his shows include the Old Capitol Art Fair and the Illinois State Museum in 1968.

PEG TOOTELIAN is another new artist with Countryside. Her midium is stoneware pottery. Most of her pieces are functional. Winner of numerous ribbons from local shows, Mrs. Tootelian is currently teaching pottery classes in her studio.

Theo Leffman does painting and sculpture in addition to the weaving which she is showing at the gallery this month. Mrs. Leffman's weaving was at the Riverwood Show in October, and is at present on display at the Springfield Art Museum Invitational Show. She recently won two awards at the Illinois State Museum.

DEDICATED to the complete exploration of one medium — fused, enameled glass — Frances and Michael Higgins have brought their glass to Countryside for the first time this year. Their work has been exhibited in the Corning International Exhibition of Glass, and at the Good Design Exhibition of the Museum of Modern Art.

The guests for the November Show are: Bertha Benjamin, mosaics; Reynold Mejer, enamel; Astra Strobel, weaver, and Tina Krythe, stitchery.

As prices of Gallery works are reasonable, the November Show will provide the weary Christmas shopper with an opportunity to purchase some original gifts, and to find out what's new in American crafts. The Gallery is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays and admission is free.

ROBERT Q. LEWIS and Gig Young co-star in the Neil Simon hit comedy, "The Odd Couple" at Mill Run Playhouse Tuesday, Nov. 26 through Dec. 22. Young plays Oscar Madison, the sloppy sportswriter, and Lewis is Felix Ungar, his ultra-neat roommate. The two poker-playing buddies decide to share an apartment when both their marriages break up. Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. There are two shows on Saturday, at 6:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. On Sunday the curtain is at 7:30 p.m. There is a matinee on Wednesday at 2 p.m. For further information and reservations call 297-2044 or the Chicago number 774-3825. Dinner reservations at the Mai-Tai restaurant adjoining the theatre may be made at the theatre box office.

It's a Mystery

The Mystery Rocket sighted in the area last week has changed course. Rumor has it that its new destination is the Ice Planet ruled by the unsociable zafrigida. It has also been noted that the Mystery Rocket is carrying more passengers than had originally been estimated. One appears to be a human, and another, a dog, species undetermined.

Meanwhile, Rickey Sorenson, Earth Boy, has been reported missing. It is said by neighbors that he was concerned about his dog, a recent volunteer for the space program. Are there connections between the events? When asked for comment, Norma Simone of the Guild Players had this to say about the puzzle: "Don't quote me." You've been quoted anyway, Norma. Ha ha.

Will Rickey Sorenson return? Who are the strange passengers on The Mystery Rocket? Watch for further developments.

Snow White Held Until Dec. 21

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will run for three additional weeks at the Mill Run Playhouse Children's Theatre. The new closing date is Dec. 21. Children's Theatre productions are presented each Saturday morning at 10 a.m.

Members of the cast include Gayle Trulove, Arlington Heights and Denise Sabala, Des Plaines.

Let Schools Set Own Tax Limits, Educators Urge

by MARY SCHLOTT

High School Dist. 214 has vowed a floor fight if necessary to get Illinois Assn. of School Boards' support for scrapping limits on size of an educational tax rate referendum.

The Dist. 214 delegate, Mrs. Ethel Beal has received pledges of support from several local school districts, the 50-district Lake County Assn. and 16 North Shore school boards making up the North Suburban School Revenue Committee.

First work for her and her cohorts will come at a resolutions committee meeting at 9 a.m. Saturday, the opening day of the Illinois Assn. of School Boards three-day convention in Chicago. Action by the full convention is set for late Saturday afternoon.

The resolutions committee has recommended "against adoption" of the resolution, which calls for the legislature to make it possible for a school district to seek whatever tax ceiling raise it thinks it can pass. Maximum educational tax rate hike that can be sought currently is 21 cents per $100.

"WE THINK a local school district should be able to ask for any educational tax raise it thinks it needs and has public support for," Mrs. Beal told Paddock Publications this week. "The amount should be the decision of the voters, not the legislature or the resolutions committee."

Not every local district will join Dist. 214 in seeking the change. James Ronchetto, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 delegate to the IASB meeting has been instructed to vote "No."

Dist. 214 originally submitted seven resolutions of 21 resolutions up for consideration at the IASB convention. Five were given approval by the resolutions committee, the one on eliminating tax rate referend ceilings was turned down and a seventh — regarding incentive pay for students in in-school work programs — was reported out "without recommendations."

OTHER resolutions call for:

—Repeal of the negatively-worded teachers' loyalty oath already held unconstitutional in other states by the U.S. Supreme Court.

—The Governor to appoint a committee to press for implementation of the 1966 Task Force on Education report. (The governor has already done this).

—Raising the constitutional five per cent debt limit that hampers growing suburban districts in keeping up with building needs.

—Giving additional funds to the Illinois School Building Commission which helps districts past their bonding limit.

—Granting state aid to preschool classes if the district provides them.

—Increasing state aid to $600 per pupil for elementary pupil and $750 per high school student, as recommended by the Task Force.

Top Educator Says We Make School Boring

by KATHY GOSNELL

A top Illinois education administrator moving to Berkeley, Calif., will find there far more student unrest than has erupted on campuses here.

Dr. Lyman Glenny, executive director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), will leave Jan. 1 to teach one course and work for the Center for Research in Higher Education in Berkeley.

He finds student complaints about education "more than half justified.

"Learning is an exciting business and how we're able to make it so boring is beyond belief."

Education "is a pretty hodgepodge affair," Glenny said. He believes elementary education is the only effective teaching system today.

Glenny said the problem is one of recognition: Educators haven't appropriately recognized the type of student now in school. Once only the upper middle classes went to college; now the door is open to virtually everyone and the system hasn't adjusted, he said.

SOME STATES, Illinois among them, have made efforts to meet new needs, but Glenny said they are "token" efforts.

Part of Illinois' effort is the move to junior colleges.

"Junior colleges do meet a need," Glenny said. "States without junior colleges aren't meeting those needs."

But another type of institution is needed for the products of the junior college who want to continue their education. For this reason, two senior colleges have been approved in Illinois and more likely in the near future, one in the Northwest suburbs.

But new types of institutions aren't the whole answer.

ESSENTIAL teaching methods aren't for every student, Glenny said. Liberal arts teaching needs some updating, he said.

"It isn't the new kid (first in his family to go to college) or the average kid. It's the bright kid" who is pressing for changes in the university.

Some educators try for the "best" and find it isn't what students want or need, Glenny said.

"I don't know if any institution can provide what human beings need," he said.

Does student unrest accomplish anything?

"I think the kids are getting through," Glenny said. But most faculty members are opposed to students' aims, he added.

"Change to them is anathema," he said, but some new teachers are learning.

Not every local district will join Dist. 214 in seeking the change. James Ronchetto, Mount Prospect Dist. 57 delegate to the IASB meeting has been instructed to vote "No."

Dist. 214 originally submitted seven resolutions of 21 resolutions up for consideration at the IASB convention. Five were given approval by the resolutions committee, the one on eliminating tax rate referend ceilings was turned down and a seventh — regarding incentive pay for students in in-school work programs — was reported out "without recommendations."

OTHER resolutions call for:

—Repeal of the negatively-worded teachers' loyalty oath already held unconstitutional in other states by the U.S. Supreme Court.

—The Governor to appoint a committee to press for implementation of the 1966 Task Force on Education report. (The governor has already done this).

—Raising the constitutional five per cent debt limit that hampers growing suburban districts in keeping up with building needs.

—Giving additional funds to the Illinois School Building Commission which helps districts past their bonding limit.

—Granting state aid to preschool classes if the district provides them.

—Increasing state aid to $600 per pupil for elementary pupil and $750 per high school student, as recommended by the Task Force.

Top Educator Says We Make School Boring

by KATHY GOSNELL

A top Illinois education administrator moving to Berkeley, Calif., will find there far more student unrest than has erupted on campuses here.

Dr. Lyman Glenny, executive director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), will leave Jan. 1 to teach one course and work for the Center for Research in Higher Education in Berkeley.

He finds student complaints about education "more than half justified.

"Learning is an exciting business and how we're able to make it so boring is beyond belief."

Education "is a pretty hodgepodge affair," Glenny said. He believes elementary education is the only effective teaching system today.

Glenny said the problem is one of recognition: Educators haven't appropriately recognized the type of student now in school. Once only the upper middle classes went to college; now the door is open to virtually everyone and the system hasn't adjusted, he said.

SOME STATES, Illinois among them, have made efforts to meet new needs, but Glenny said they are "token" efforts.

Part of Illinois' effort is the move to junior colleges.

"Junior colleges do meet a need," Glenny said. "States without junior colleges aren't meeting those needs."

But another type of institution is needed for the products of the junior college who want to continue their education. For this reason, two senior colleges have been approved in Illinois and more likely in the near future, one in the Northwest suburbs.

But new types of institutions aren't the whole answer.

ESSENTIAL teaching methods aren't for every student, Glenny said. Liberal arts teaching needs some updating, he said.

"It isn't the new kid (first in his family to go to college) or the average kid. It's the bright kid" who is pressing for changes in the university.

Some educators try for the "best" and find it isn't what students want or need, Glenny said.

"I don't know if any institution can provide what human beings need," he said.

Does student unrest accomplish anything?

"I think the kids are getting through," Glenny said. But most faculty members are opposed to students' aims, he added.

"Change to them is anathema," he said, but some new teachers are learning.
